NORWICH TOWN

The Gallup home, situated in the large triangular lot at Harland's corner, and facing Town street, always brightly lighted at night, has presented a lonesome appearance, since being closed last December. The occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Gallup at that time, took an apartment at the Wauregan hotel, that Mrs. Gallup might regain her strength during the winter months. Instead, her condition gradually grew worse and Monday morning her death occurred. Her friends and neighbors who had anticipated her home-coming about a month hence, to the home in which she took such pride and which she loved so well, were grieved to learn of her passing. A dutiful wife and mother, Mrs. Gallup has always been a kind-hearted and agreeable neighbor, since locating in Norwich Town about five years ago, at which time the home at 6 Town street was purchased.

ACCEPT PLANS FOR NEW SANATORIUM BUILDINGS

In the absence of Gov. John H. Trumbull, who is confined to his home by illness, State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers of New London, as the ranking member, presided Thursday at Hartford meeting of the state board of control. The board accepted plans and recommendations submitted by Dr. Stephen J. Maher, president of the state tuberculosis commission, for the erection of three new buildings at the state tuberculosis sanitarium at Norwich. The board also announced that contracts for the buildings which will cost $120,536.57, will be awarded at once. Funds for the erection of the buildings were voted at the last session of the legislature.

Hon. Joseph Alsop, president of the state commission on water supplies, reported to the board of control, recommending the installation of two new water systems at the state agricultural college, at Storrs, at a cost of approximately $150,000. The report was accepted.

WILL REQUIRE PERMITS FOR BRUSH BURNING

The Connecticut State Forestry Department has issued directions to the local fire wardens relative to the approach of the April fire hazard season, when the leaves and underbrush become dry, and forest fires are most liable to break out. Every person having brush in Norwich and vicinity is urged to burn it during the remaining two weeks of March, first obtaining a permit from the fire warden, who for the town of Norwich is F. A. Benton, phone 2213.

No permits will be issued during the month of April to burn brush unless it has rained the day previous.

JURY'S VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN EAST LYME SLANDER SUIT

A verdict for the defendant, Mrs. Mary Emma Lincoln, formerly of Niantic, now of New London, was returned about 7 o'clock Thursday evening in the superior court at New London in the slander suit for $6,000 damages brought against Mrs. Lincoln by Mrs. Minnie Erskine of East Lyme, formerly a school teacher there. The jury was out about two hours.

The entire morning of the court day was taken up with the cross-examining of the defendant by Atty. George Curtis Morgan. Associated with Attorney Morgan as counsel for the plaintiff was Atty. Abel P. Tanner, while Attys. Frank L. McGuire and C. Hadlai Hull conducted the defendant's side of the case.

Mrs. Lincoln is alleged to have written a letter to Superintendent of Schools Gove of East Lyme, in which, according to the allegations, she maligned Mrs. Erskine's character, branded her as immoral and held her up to public ridicule and contempt. According to the testimony of Mrs. Lincoln, she did not intend to malign the character of Mrs. Erskine but she wrote it in an attempt to have a stop put to Edward Erskine, grandfather of Mrs. Erskine's children, living at the same home where the school teacher resided.

CONNECTICUT POPULATION IS TO BE 1,606,491

Connecticut, with an estimated increase in population of 34,803 since July 1, 1925, will, on that date this year, be the 39th most populous state in the country, according to figures issued Thursday by the department of commerce at Washington. In giving these figures the department points out that the population for each state is arrived at by distributing the total increase for the United States since 1920 on the basis of the distribution of the increase between 1910 and 1920, except that state census figures are substituted in all cases where a state census was taken in 1925, and no estimates are made for those states which showed a decrease of population from 1910 to 1920, the figure given in such cases being the population in 1920.

Connecticut's total population on July 1, a year ago, was 1,571,688, the 28th highest in the country, while on July 1, this year, according to the bureau's estimates it will have grown to 1,606,491 the 29th highest. Florida's population will, this year, exceed Connecticut's. The January 1, 1920 census showed the population in the Nutmeg state to be 1,380,631.

Figures for the other New England states are as follows: Massachusetts, population in 1920, 3,852,356; on July 1, 1925, 4,144,205 and July 1, 1926, 4,197,288, the eighth highest in the country.

Maine, which has the third highest population in New England, will have 790,053 inhabitants on July 1, next, the 14th lowest in the country, as compared with 786,713 last year, an d768,014 in 1920.

New Hampshire's population increased from 443,083 in 1920, to 452,026 in 1925, to 453,808 this year, the seventh lowest population of the states.

Rhode Island, which is fourth highest in New England, had a population of 604,397 in 1920, 679,260 in 1925, and 692,794 the 13th lowest on July 1, 1926.

No estimates are made for Vermont, which showed a decrease between the 1910-1920 census.

MOOSUP CONTRIBUTES IN JEWISH RELIEF APPEAL

A delegation from the Norwich Jewish Relief committee, consisting of Jacob Wechsler, Solomon Wechsler, Ben Schleifer, Daniel Polsky and Max Hanover visited Moosup and Danielson Progressive club, on Wednesday. Daniel Polsky introduced Max Hanover, the executive chairman of the Norwich Relief committee, who made a very sincere appeal for contributions for the starving Jews of Europe. The response to the appeal was several contributions made by the members present. The donations were as follows: Stainman Bros., $100; Allen Mopsick $15; D. Kochler $15; Abraham Beyer $10. The club also appointed a committee to canvass all the members of the organization so that all should contribute to this worthy cause. Jacob Wechsler, Benjamin Schleifer and Solomon Wechsler of Jewett City volunteered to work with the Moosup committee to carry out the resolution of the club. The members also promised to attend the relief mass meeting at the Community house in this city, on Sunday evening, March 21. Jacob Wechsler, Benjamin Schleifer and Solomon Wechsler vouched that the Jewish people living in Jewett City will line up to a man in support of the drive.

A surprising feature of the relief campaign in Norwich is the receipt of many contributions in denominations of one, two, five and ten dollar bills signed "a friend". The relief committee is very grateful for these contributions and is encouraged by the charitable spirit shown by the donors. Several of the contributions were accompanied by letters wishing success to the drive and good luck to the committee. The Norwich Jewish Relief committee wishes to express the most sincere appreciation and reciprocation of the good wishes and kindness of those unknown friends. Their contributions are the noblest kind of charity.

LIONS HAVE DINNER AT HOME SERVICE DEPT.

Holding its regular weekly meeting in the home service rooms of the city gas and electric department on Shetucket street and having dinner served by the home service department made a special event for the Lions club at noon Thursday and there was a large attendance of members and their guests. These included Manager C. W. Taggart and other officials of the department.

President William A. Anderson opened the meeting in the usual way and George Madden was song leader. The dinner was served under the direction of Miss Gildays L. Peckham, home service director, with a number of young women of the office force serving as waitresses. The following was the menu:

Queen Olives
Celery Hearts Sweet Pickles
Grape Fruit Cocktail
Bouillon
Roast Beef
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Buttered Peas Rolls
Hearts of Lettuce—French Dressing
St. Patrick Sunde
Assorted Cakes Demi Tasse
Salted Nuts Mints

An address of welcome was given by Commissioner James Connor and Miss Peckham spoke upon How Home Service Serves as follows:

Home Service serves in many different ways and often has far-reaching results unsurmised by those most interested in its success. There are many public utility corporations all over the United States that are installing departments for service in the home. It is in the home that fuel is used, it is the home-maker who uses the appliances and the fuel. Home Service gives direct aid by teaching the housewife the correct uses for the appliance and creating new uses, by bringing about the more constant use of appliances, all of which build up the domestic gas and electrical load.

Home service assists and educates the home-maker in creating more perfect homes and happier families, through better cooking and more efficient housekeeping. Home Service workers instruct all purchasers of new appliances in their homes when desired. Free cooking classes and lecture demonstrations held at the office are for the instruction of the public in phases of cooking and housekeeping. Home Service gives lectures to women's clubs or other organized groups at any time, or before domestic science classes of public schools. In other words, Home Service is an educational enterprise for the use of our patrons. We are trying to keep our patrons pleased with the service obtained through our public utility corporation. Will every member of the Lions club here today please tell their families and friends of the service we are giving and help us to reach those who need our help and are not wholly satisfied with either appliance or fuel? We want to help the people of Norwich to know of this offer so that none may fail to benefit by it. It is for the public. It is to emphasize the fact that the city of Norwich G. & E. department is one of your best friends and will help you in any possible way if you'll call on them.

A tour of inspection through the office and show rooms was conducted by Edward A. Rich and of the electric plant on North Main street by R. B. Mather, where William P. Shanley demonstrated how gas is made.

The Lions expressed their appreciation of the dinner by a rising vote of thanks.

The regular weekly luncheon fee of $1 was charged so that the affair was carried out without expense to the city department.

COOLIDGE FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY TO REFLECT SIMPLICITY OF HIS LIFE

Latest Revision of the Episcopal Ritual Will Be Conducted in the Parlor of the Coolidge Homestead at 2 P. M.—There Will Be Neither Hymn Singing Nor Eulogy—Burial Will Be in the Little Cemetery Near Plymouth, Vt.—After the Burial President and Mrs. Coolidge Expect to Start on Their Return Trip to Washington, Arriving There Sunday—Official Washington Paid Tribute to Colonel Coolidge

PLYMOUTH, Vt., March 19—(AP)—Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the president, will be buried tomorrow in the little cemetery near this hamlet with simplicity in keeping with his 80 years of life.

Arrangements for the funeral were made today after the arrival here of the president, who learned of his father's death while hastening to his bedside from Washington.

Services, brief and extremely simple, will be held at 2 p. m. in the Coolidge homestead. They will be conducted by the Rev. John White, of the nearby village of Eberburn, who will use the latest revision of the Episcopal burial office. There will be neither hymn singing nor eulogy.

After burial, the president and Mrs. Coolidge expect to start on their return journey to Washington, arriving there Sunday. The special train which brought them to Woodstock, 16 miles from here, is being held for the return trip.

The president and his wife are spending tonight in Woodstock. On their arrival there shortly after sunrise this morning, they went to the inn for breakfast, then set out for Plymouth, traveling for 10 miles to Bridgewater Corners in a closed automobile and the remaining six miles in an open horse drawn sleigh.

After spending an hour at the family farmhouse, where Col. Coolidge lay in death, they returned to Woodstock for the remainder of the day and the night. They are making their headquarters at the inn. John, their son, a student at Amherst college, is with them.

The presidential party detrained at Woodstock to find the temperature record 10 degrees above zero and three feet of snow on the ground drifted at places as high as a man's head. The sun shone brightly throughout the day and the temperature rose until by midafternoon it was just about the freezing point. Tonight, however, it became colder again.

Snow plows and gangs of workmen had worked far into the night to clear the road from Woodstock to Plymouth, and although it might have been traveled by automobile, it was decided to use sleighs and obsleds for the last six miles. Stepping out of a limousine at Bridgewater Corners, the President and Mrs. Coolidge climbed into a three-seated sleigh, their son John and Attorney Sargent, who came with them from Washington, riding with them.

Behind, trailed other members of the party, including secret service men, newspaper reporters and photographers who had made the trip from Washington.

At 10:10 o'clock, nearly twelve hours after his father had passed away, the president arrived at Plymouth. A detachment of Vermont National guardsmen were on duty here, as at Woodstock and Bridgewater Corners.

President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son on entering the farmhouse, went into the room in which rested the colonel's casket. They remained there several minutes, then called for the attorney general to join them.

While they were in the house the Rev. Mr. White called and the president discussed funeral arrangements with him. When the presidential party returned to Woodstock, Mr. Sargent remained behind to see that everything would be in readines for the funeral services and burial tomorow.

A rotary snowplow and a score of men with shovels were pressed into service to clear a path for the funeral party to the cemetery which is a quarter of a mile from the family homestead. In the cemetery another group was at work digging the grave, already marked by a headstone, which is in a plot adjoining that in which the president's mother, sister and son Calvin, who died in the summer of 1924, were buried.

Keeping vigil tonight over Col. Coolidge's body, were three friends who cared for him during the closing days of his life. They are Mrs. May Johnson, nurse, Miss Aurora Pierce and Deputy Sheriff Angus MacAulay.

It had been expected that funeral services would be held in the little church across the road from the Coolidge home, where the colonel worshipped for years, but in accord with the wishes of the president, it was decided to hold them in the farm house parlor. Folding doors, separating it from the sitting room where by lamplight the colonel administered the oath as president to his son in August 1923, have been opened, and it is this enlarged enclosure that tomorrow's services will be held.

CONGRESSIONAL TRIBUTES TO COL. JOHN C. COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, March 19. — (AP) — Expressions of sympathy for President Coolidge because of the death of his father were mingled in Washington today, in and out of congress and official life. With high tribute to the character of Colonel John C. Coolidge.

The senate adjourned out of respect to Colonel Coolidge, an action which is rarely taken except as a mark of respect for some one who had been high in official life. The house, on motion of the democratic leader, Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, expressed profound sorrow over the passing of one whose "character, gentleness and simpleness of life furnished to all mankind an example worthy of emulation."

Vice-President Dawes, in a tribute to Colonel Coolidge, whom he styled a "personality in himself", said he imagined the people at Plymouth more often thought of the president as the son of Colonel Coolidge than they did of Colonel Coolidge as the father of the president.

Secretary Kellogg issued a statement saying that, "in common with the other members of the cabinet, the news of the death of the president's father, although not unexpected, came to me as a shock."

Nurtured in the rugged climate of Vermont, he lived to the fullness of years in the high esteem of his neighbors and all who had the privilege to know him," the secretary continued. "He was of the best type of our citizenry, and his private virtues were such as to make him the object of honest pride to his countrymen and worthy of the emulation of all."

Senator Dale, of Vermont, reported the death of Colonel Coolidge to the senate and offered the resolution for adjournment which was carried without a record vote. In the house, Representative Gibson, of Vermont, delivered a eulogy in which he declared the father of the president was "a great man when measured by the yardstick that truly determines the real value of citizenship."

There was no display of official mourning symbols throughout the city, such as flags at half mast on government buildings, these honors not being authorized for private citizens. Assistant Secretary MacNider, acting on behalf of the war department, however, tendered a military funeral escort, if desired by the Coolidge family, a squadron of cavalry from Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont. The white house forwarded the tender to Plymouth.

Mr. Gibson said: "Today there has come news of the death of a simple citizen of the nation—news that has carried its sad message to all parts of the world. Colonel John C. Coolidge has been a resident of my district all his long life. I have known him personally for more than 30 years. To know him was to admire his sterling qualities of heart and mind and to have an abiding respect for his character.

"He came of a people who put duty and patriotism above all else. Colonel Coolidge was a great man when measured by the yard stick that truly determines the real value of citizenship. He was of the type that founded the republic and nourished its existence.

"His example of simple living, hard work and honest dealing has had a wholesome influence on the millions of his fellow countrymen.

"Though he has passed from the sphere of actual physical existence, who can doubt that he still lives in the fine traits of character passed on to his honored son, the president of the United States."

PRESIDENT INHERITS THE COOLIDGE FAMILY FARM

PLYMOUTH, Vt., March 19.—(AP)—Three weeks before his death, Plymouth learned today, Colonel John C. Coolidge transferred to his son Calvin, the farm on which members of the Coolidge family have lived for generations. The farm consists of 225 acres with the white farmhouse which was the president's boyhood home.

Throughout the colonel's lifetime, the family property stood in the name of his father, Calvin G. Coolidge. The town records show that the transfer was made from the estate of C. G. Coolidge to the president.

The colonel died ostensibly penniless, although a man of substance. Neighbors say that all property other than the land was made over to the president during his lifetime. Plymouth never knew the value of the Calvin G. Coolidge estate and the same secrecy was maintained in the case of the colonel's property. There was no will.

In addition to the homestead, the president owned the lime kiln lot which is the Coolidge sugar orchard. This tract he inherited from his grandfather.

WHEN FIRST SELECTMAN CAN ADMINISTER OATHS

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—First selectman can administer oaths only when presiding at meetings of the boards of selectmen and then only to persons testifying in matters over which the board has jurisdiction. Charles H. Martin, first selectman of Stamford, has been advised by Attorney General Healy. Selectman Martin asked the attorney general whether it would be legal for him to administer oaths to constables or other town officers appointed by the selectmen. He was told that he could not, as his authority to administer oaths does not extend beyond official meetings of the board.

ADVICE TO SUFFERERS OF MILD FORM OF INFLUENZA

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—"Stay at home, and at the same time avoid the members of your family as much as possible, if you are a sufferer from the mild form of influenza now prevalent in the state," was the advice given today by Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health.

The grip or mild influenza attacking many persons at this time is not severe, he said, but is generally inconvenient and unpleasant. The best medicine is preventative medicine. The contagion should not be allowed to spread from one person to another. A few days spent quietly at home, in bed if necessary, will prevent this and at the same time benefit the sufferer.

PROSECUTING DEALERS FOR SELLING WATERED MILK

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—Four prosecutions of milk dealers of the state for selling watered milk or a product below the required standard, as the result of investigations by the investigators of the state dairy and food department, were reported today by Commissioner Thomas Holtz The dealers prosecuted for selling watered milk were Sylvester Cocivi and George Gregory, of Bridgeport, and John Segaline, of Durham, and Matthew Meyers, of Fairfield, was convicted of selling below standard milk.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Clemenceau in Senate Rooms

PARIS, March 19—(AP)—Clemenceau, France's wartime premier, appeared in the senate lobbies and committee deliberation rooms today for the first time since he was defeated for the presidency of the French republic by M. Deschanel in 1920, sending a thrill through the upper house and exciting queries such as, "Has the Tiger decided to re-enter the political arena?" It turned out that Clemenceau merely came to consult the superb library of the senate with a view to gathering material for a theosophical work—"God's Influence on Earthly Affairs Throughout the Ages."

VALUE OF THE FRANC IS STRINKING IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 19—(AP)—The French franc tumbled today to depths hitherto unknown, so far as Paris is concerned, in the history of the third French republic—breaking even the low record of March, 1924. After the bourse had closed the franc as quoted at 28.25 to the dollar and 197.2 to the pound sterling.

Meantime Raoul Peret, the new minister of finance appeared before the finance committee of the chamber of deputies for the first time and informed that body, as was done by his immediate predecessors, that the remedy for the financial situation was in additional taxation. His reception was cool, especially when he referred to the necessity of increased taxes on business transactions, proposals for which have been twice defeated by the chamber.

Experts agree that the present downward movement of the franc is not caused by speculation. It is due, they say, to real purchases made in the market, where heavy amounts of francs have been taken up by London, Amsterdam and New York during the past few days.

NOT PESSIMISTIC ABOUT CONDITIONS IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—Published dispatches linking the name of American Ambassador Houghton with pessimistic observations regarding the situation in Europe led the state department to issue tonight a formal disclaimer.

In a one-sentence statement, the department said that neither the ambassador to London nor the American minister to Switzerland, Hugh Gibson, who also is in conference with high officials here, had disclosed to any outsider the nature of their reports to President Coolidge.

Stories purporting to set forth Mr. Houghton's views in some detail closely followed the disclosure in authoritative circles here that, although American officials were preparing to take part in the league of nations preliminary conference on disarmament, they were none too hopeful of the outcome.

TRIBUTE TO PROFESSOR MORRILL AND HIS WORK

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—Dr. Albert B. Meredith, state commissioner of education paid the following tribute to Professor Morrill and his work today.

"The forty years devoted by Professor Arthur B. Morrill to public education, has been of immeasurable benefit to Connecticut. The first normal school principal in the state, he organized both the Willimantic and New Haven Normal schools. Not alone to the organization of these schools, the state owes much to his skill as an organizer and administrator. He was always a skillful and stimulating teacher. A student of the sciences, he combined geniality and the powers of a brilliant conversationalist among other attributes of his inspiring personality."

PREPARING TO PLANT LARGE ACREAGE TO CORN

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Despite the corn surplus produced last year, the farmers of the country apparently are preparing to plant almost as large an acreage to corn in 1926 as they harvested in 1925.

Department of agriculture figures announced today, based on a census conducted March 1, disclosed a decrease of only one-tenth of one per cent in the intended planting this spring as compared to the harvested acreage of last fall.

Spring wheat acreage showed a decline of 1.8 per cent and oats and barley increased 4.6 per cent and 5.7 per cent, respectively.

BLUE WATER MEDAL WAS AWARDED HARRY PIDGEON

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—The blue water medal of the Cruising club of America has been award to Harry Pidgeon, adventurer and yachtsman, for his recently completed feat of circumnavigating the world in a 34-foot yawl, it was announced today.

Only one other man ever has circumnavigated the globe in a small boat, according to the records of the Cruising club. He was Captain Joshua Slocum, of Gloucester, Mass., an experienced navigator. Pidgeon, however, is only an amateur. He learned navigation by studying in the public library.

Open Hearings on the Prohibition Question

Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee to Recommend That Proceedings Be Ordered.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Open congressional hearings on the prohibition question moved a step nearer today with a decision by a senate judiciary sub-committee to recommend to the entire committee next Monday that such proceedings be ordered.

Under the program agreed upon over the protest of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, the wets and drys would be given six days each in which to present evidence and argument.

Senator Walsh plans to carry his fight against public hearings to the entire committee.

Senators Edge, republican, New Jersey, and Bruce, democrat, Maryland, leaders of the wets, all are satisfied with the program proposed, while Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, said the league was not opposed to a hearing, but would oppose at every step of the legislative procedure any measure that would weaken or repeal the national prohibition act.

The sub-committee decided to postpone indefinitely consideration of the bill, by Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, for repeal of the Volstead act. This will leave five measures on which the hearings would be held with attention given first to the constitutional amendment so that the government would control the manufacture and distribution of intoxicants, with the status quo of local option restored as it existed when the 18th amendment was ratified.

Hearings then would follow on the four bills for modification of the Volstead act. One of these, by Senator Edwards, proposed to legalize four per cent beer. Another by Senator Edge would legalize 2.75 per cent beer and still another by the same senator would legalize beer "not intoxicating in fact." The fourth would remove the present restriction of prescription whiskey.

The sub-committee decided that the hearings should be confined to the bills themselves without going into the general proposition of whether prohibition has been a success or a failure. Direct information would be sought as to how the pending bills would or would not aid in correcting conditions as they exist with respect to law violations and difficulties in enforcing the Volstead act.

Senator Bruce expects to have one or two Canadian government officials come here to explain the operations of the Canadian law under which the government itself controls liquor distribution.

Senators Edge and Edwards will call law enforcement officers as well as ministers and educators in support of their proposals.

"We will be ready to meet any argument the wets can present at public hearings against prohibition or for beer and light wines," said Mr. Wheeler.

To Make Fight For Brookhart in Senate

Friends of the Iowa Senator Are Preparing For Fray on the Senate Floor.

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—A bitter senate fight is shaping up over the Steck-Brookhart election contest.

Rumblings of it have been heard in protests against the length of time taken by the sub-committee to reach a conclusion and now that this sub-committee has recommended against Senator Brookhart the friends of the Iowa senator are preparing for the fray on the senate floor.

Senator Stephens, democrat, Mississippi, who led the successful fight for the seating of Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, after the majority of the elections committee had recommended against that action, is preparing a minority report in which he holds that Senator Brookhart is clearly entitled to his seat. He takes three major positions in favor of Brookhart, which he outlined today as follows:

"First, the discrepancy of several thousand between the number of marked ballots delivered to the elections committee and the number of ballots issued to the voters.

Second, no evidence is continued in the record that the law was complied with, with reference to preserving the ballots after the election.

"Third, considering the ballots received in Washington, Senator Brookhart received a larger number of votes than did Mr. Steck."

Just how much support Senator Stephens will receive in the entire elections committee will not be developed until after the committee meets next Monday to act upon the recommendation of the sub-committee.

$2,000,000 FORECLOSURE ON H. & S. STREET RAILWAY CO.

HARTFORD, March 19.—(AP)—An order to foreclose the $2,000,000 property of the Hartford and Springfield Street Railway company, on a mortgage debt of $860,000, based on default of the payment of $600,000 of bonds held against the property by State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers as trustee, will be signed by Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court Tuesday, following foreclosure proceedings before him today.

The proceedings brought from the judge and Lucius F. Robinson, who presented the case a sharp criticism of the decision of the supreme court of the United States, which permits interstate busses to operate in the state of Connecticut without being subject to the control of the public utilities commission, as intrastate busses are.

"It is to be hoped," said Judge Avery, "that congress will pass some law in the future to control interstate busses within the state of Connecticut. It is absurd to think that outside busses can come in here and operate in competition with local busses without being subject to the public utilities commission. Its an intolerable situation."

GIBBS QUITS AS SUPT. OF SCHOOLS IN MERIDEN

MERIDEN, March 19—(AP)—Dr. David Gibbs, superintendent of schools who resigned his position when the board of education voted to permit a dance in the high school, terminated his services with the schools of the city today.

Dr. Gibbs tendered his resignation on January 19, immediately after the board had voted to permit a trial dance in the high school, dancing having been banned by the superintendent and principal for the last three years. The superintendent in his resignation, stated that the reason for his action was the granting of this permission, when the rules of the school board provided that dances in the high school should be under the control of the principal and the superintendent. The dance has not yet been held, and no date has been set for it.

This resignation was laid on the table, but at the meeting of the board on March 1, it was taken from the table and adopted to become effective March 19, that being the date specified by Dr. Gibbs.

DESIROUS OF AMERICAN STATESMEN AT GENEVA

Conference to Be Convoked to Discuss U. S. Reservations to World Court Membership—Jurists Are of the Opinion That if American Agents Would Interpret American Conditions a New Protocol to the Court's Statutes Could Be Drawn Up and Signed By All.

GENEVA, March 19.—(AP)—Disinclination by certain countries to take responsibility for answering the communication of the United States concerning American membership in the world court with reservations, is believed in some league circles to have inspired the initiative of the league council in convoking a conference of the members of the world court to discuss the American reservations, and the council's decision to request the United States to participate in the conference.

There was an informal exchange of views by the jurists of various governments present at the recent league assembly, and the idea of making common reply to Washington seems to have come as a sequence to these discussions. It is learned that the jurists pointed to out to their ministers the possibility that a government might unqualifiedly accept some of the American conditions, but hesitate as to others, thus delaying, if not rendering totally impossible, American membership in the court.

All the governments are described as desiring American adhesion, and no one government it is declared, wished to bear the onus of refusing the American conditions, preferring to consult with the other governments before a reply is dispatched to Washington. Furthermore, it is remarked, if one or more governments made reservations to the American conditions, the situation would get out of hand and be never-ending.

The jurists apparently believe that if the American representatives come to Geneva and interpret the American conditions to the agents of the other signatories, a new protocol to the court's statutes could be drawn up and signed by all.

One suggestion is that Washington could sent an ambassador, several senators and legal experts to the September conference for a general exchange of views and the drawing up of an agreement. As it is realized that such an American delegation probably would be unable definitely to accept any protocol agreement, it is remarked that provisions could be made for submitting the agreement to the United States senate for its approval.

TRIBUTES IN HOUSE TO LATE WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Republicans joined with democrats in the house today in tribute to the late William Jennings Bryan in observance of his 66th birthday anniversary.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican leader, said he had differed with Bryan on many questions but admired him "for his clean personal character," and for his zeal in "every righteous cause as he saw the right."

Representative Moorehead, democrat, who represents Bryan's old Nebraska district, said he would be remembered as the "pathfinder of the common people" while Representative Howard, also a Nebraska democrat, who served as secretary to Mr. Bryan during his membership in congress, praised him as "magnificently human."

Mr. Howard also referred to him as an example that "down through the years will serve as an incentive to the greater endeavor," adding that, "although he is gone, I hope in some small way to carry on for him."

SLAYER OF SIX HAD OTHER PERSONS LISTED FOR DEATH

STOCKTON, Calif., March 19—(AP)—Not all the persons listed for death by John M. Goins of Stockton were slain by him yesterday in the series of six murders which terminated with his suicide as he was being pursued by officers last night.

This was indicated today when Alvin Mathews, former Stockton newspaper reporter, said that he saw a small book in which Goins had written a number of names, including that of Mathews, and that Goins had stated "these are to be settled with."

Mathews said he was told that his name was on the list because he had written a story about a court case that went against Goins.

"But I only did my duty as a reporter," Mathews said.

"All right, we'll scratch you off," Goins replied. Then he drew a pencil through Mathews' name.

The names of Captain Smith and Officer McHugh of the Stockton police force also were in the book, Mathews said.

Delia Podesta, Goins' sister-in-law, was said to have been marked for death also.

KRESGE MAKES $1,000,000 SETTLEMENT WITH WIFE

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—S. S. Kresge, proprietor of a chain of 5 and 10 cent stores, and his young wife, Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, have come to a financial agreement, which is understood to have resulted in Mrs. Kresge receiving a settlement of $1,000,000. Her suit for a like amount on the grounds of breach of promise in a pre-nuptial agreement was ordered withdrawn today from supreme court.

"Whether or not the financial agreement will lead to a marital agreement, remains to be seen," a friend of the couple said tonight. "They are on the best of terms, but the next few days will see what will develop."

Trial of the suit was begun March 5, but was halted as Mrs. Kresge was about to take the witness stand. Resulting rumors of a reconciliation were said to be "premature."

At about the time Mr. Kresge's first wife divorced him in Detroit, he met Miss Doris Mercer, a vocal st udent. He agreed to finance her musical education. Four months later they were married.

CHINA TO CURB RADICAL MOVEMENT OF STUDENTS

PEKING, March 19—(AP)—The Chinese government took action to repress the radical movement among students and teachers, and attempted to throw on this movement the blame for yesterday's shooting affair in front of the chief executive's palace, as a result of which 32 persons, including two girl students, are dead.

The government ordered the arrest of half a dozen radical leaders, including the director of the Sino-Russian university, a former minister of education and professors in the National university. It also prohibited mass meetings, to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's tragedy, which followed a gathering of 2,000 students and other radicals to protest against the government's acceptance of the powers' ultimatum demanding clearing of the way from Tientsin to the sea. THE NATHAN HALE HOTEL TO BE NAME OF NEW BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 19—Various matters subject to discussion are explained in a supplementary report made by the purchasing committee of the Community Hotel corporation which awarded contracts Thursday for the interior supplies of the new hotel being erected here and which is to be known as the Nathan Hale hotel. There were but three members of the committee present, James P. Bath, James B. Fullerton and George S. Elliott, the other members being called away on urgent business matters. In view of the fact that representatives of all the interested firms which had submitted bids were present it was practically impossible to postpone the meeting. The committee deliberated during the entire day before making final announcements of the contract awards. An attempt was made to include in the successful firms as a large a number as possible of Willimantic concerns. The contracts were awarded on an absolutely flat net cost basis, plus five per cent to provide for the cost of handling, with the exception of the contracts for the large pieces of furniture, which are shipped crated and must be set up and rubbed down. These latter contracts were allowed on the flat net cost basis, plus ten per cent. From this it can be seen that the various firms sought the contracts principally for the advertising value derived from handling them.

Baby tortured by skin trouble

After using two jars of Resinol Ointment, her skin was completely restored to its healthy condition. Isn't Nature Wonderful?

Lucas Malet—"We are all, whether old or young, very actually the age morning declares us to be, and too often unflatteringly discloses." But with the subsequent difference that, whereas the old grow younger as the day goes on, losing some of their frailness, the young grow older, losing some of their freshness.—Boston Transcript.

You, too, can now have a whiter wash —without washboard rubbing

For millions of women, this granulated soap takes the work out of washday

HOW would you like to net your wash clean every week—instead of rubbing, and scrubbing, and wearing yourself out over tubs and boilers?

You can do it! You can get your clothes whiter, cleaner than ever—in half the time—without touching a washboard! Even the most soiled things need only a gentle rub between the fingers to make them snowy!

"My grocer first told me about Rinso and said many of his customers would not consider using anything else. Even the articles most soiled come out spotless after a gentle rubbing following their soaking in Rinso suds. Rinso is saving on clothes for it prolongs their life and I find it gentle for my hands as there are no harsh after-effects."

MRS. T. F. BURNS,
250 Broad Street,
Norwich, Conn.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.

All you need on washday

Just let the wash soak in Rinso suds. You need no bar soap, chips or powders—just Rinso. In hard water, in soft water, it makes rich, creamy suds that seep through the soiled clothes and gently loosen the dirt. Then you just rinse, and the clothes are whiter than ever—whiter than you could rub them—whiter than boiling could make them! Sterilized, too!

Saves clothes—saves hands

Clothes last longer this way, because the dirt is not scrubbed out, but soaked out. And Rinso is so mild that you could soak your finest white table cloth in it for days without harm. It contains no acids, harsh chemicals or bleaches to injure white clothes or fast colors. Your hands show the difference—they don't get red and parboiled.

In washing machines, too

Use Rinso in your washing machine. You never saw clothes get so white and bright! 23 washing machine manufacturers recommend it.

Try Rinso once and be convinced. Get it from your grocer and follow directions on package.

Lever Bros. Co.

Cocoa a Mans Drink

BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA

Has a full rich flavor delicious to the taste; it is invigorating and sustaining.

Henry C. Sherman, Professor of Food Chemistry, Columbia University, in his book "Food Products" says: "Cocoa, in addition to the stimulating property, due to the alkaloid theobromine, and the flavor which makes it popular both as a beverage and in confectionery, has a considerable food value."

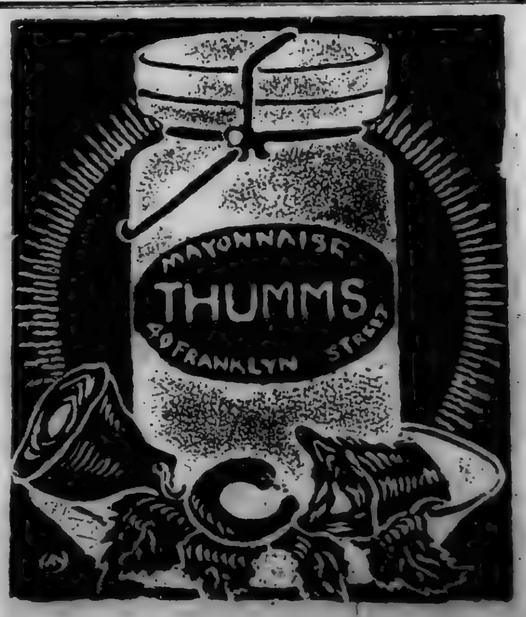
Read of Other Women Who Found Health

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 35 Central Ave., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at sometime in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.



DANIELSON

RUMOR BROOKLYN FORMERS ARE PEEVED BY HUNTERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 19.—There is some concern among sportsmen here over the report that property owners in the western section of the town of Brooklyn are angered over game law violations they have noted and over a statement that the farmers will retaliate by posting their land against trespassers. Here is a situation that likely has been brought about by the indiscretion of a few hunters, and not by an act on the part of many who hunt and obey the law. It is a matter that all good sportsmen deplore, and likely the assistance of these sportsmen will be available to bring about a correction of the conditions about which the West Brooklyn people have been complaining.

HIGHWAY WORK GOOD SIGN TO OBSERVING TOWNSMEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 19.—The survey has been made and the stakes that have been set out by the state highway department along the Danielson-Wauregan trunk line is taken as a good sign by those who oppose the abandonment of this route, in case the proposed new trunk line via the Green Hollow road is built. Killingly does not oppose the Green Hollow route on any other ground than that involving the abandonment of the present trunk line between Danielson and Wauregan. Therefore, the indications that the state is to improve the present route by the elimination of curves is taken as a good sign. Traffic is sufficiently heavy now to warrant the construction of the new route and the maintaining of the old one by the state, and it is a safe prophesy that the traffic will be even heavier by and bye than it is right now.

The Windham County Y News for the month contains various items of special interest to members of the organization in various communities of the county. Friday was a field day for the women of Danielson. Maybe that isn't an accurate description, because this is about millinery openings and spring hats and garnitures and other such things, and none of these grow in a field. But, anyway, women moved out in battalions Friday afternoon to look over the new offerings. The weather was conducive to the thoughts of spring and new headwear. The women were volubly enthusiastic. The occasion approximated that of May 15 for mere man—a day when he tosses aside the old felt and adorns himself with a new straw headpiece. No attempt will be made here to describe the new hats for the ladies. That's a job for some one who knows something about the subject over and above some information as to what they cost and how long they remain in style.

People who a fortnight ago received an impudent demand to pay within eight days for goods sent them unsolicited, at Christmas time, and who have returned them, in some cases even refusing to accept the packages at the post office, are sitting tight waiting for the next move in the attempted collection. The eight days have expired and they have not paid. Furthermore, they do not intend to, not giving this concern a penny. In the meantime, though the time limit has expired, no further demand has come from this concern, with which scores of people in various Windham county towns are thoroughly disgusted.

200,000 miles and more . . .

Observe the speedometer of any "used" Willys-Knight, should yours be the rare good fortune to find one available. Nine times out of ten, the mileage registered there is easily twice that of any other used car you may meet with.

The reason for this is the absolutely unique service afforded by the patented Knight sleeve-valve engine in which carbon troubles, valve grinding and all wearing and weakening factors common to the poppet-valve type of engine have been permanently done away with.

The engine of a Willys-Knight is everlasting. It never wears out. Unlike any other motor-mechanism in existence it does not deteriorate. It actually IMPROVES with use. At 100,000 miles and over, a Willys-Knight is a more powerful, more efficient, smoother and quieter car than the day it left the factory. Hence, high mileage tends on "used" Willys-Knights are invariable, inevitable. Cases without number are on record in which Willys-Knight engines that have been run over 300,000 miles are in better condition today than when they first were purchased.

GOOD WORK FOR HIGHWAY SAFETY

Some idea of what the condition of motor vehicle lights are in this state is disclosed when it is reported by the motor vehicle department that in the past nine months there have been nearly 45,000 cases where auto drivers have been given tags indicating that they have defective equipment and directing them to have it repaired and make report to the department.

These tags have been given out by state policemen as the result of their inspection of equipment. Not all of this work is done at night but much of it is, for most of these defects concern headlights, which are not focused right, do not have legal lenses or in some way make the highway dangerous for the other fellow.

In many of these instances the defective headlight is not known to the driver and he is only too glad to be informed and make the correction. Where this disposition does not prevail and no report is made to the department that the required changes have been made there is an immediate investigation started by the department.

Defective headlights are a menace. It is important that the roads should be properly lighted but it is the road where the light should be concentrated, and not in the eyes of the drivers coming in the other direction. The same policy is carried out in regard to brakes and weak tires, or in fact any other part of the machine that might be seen to be dangerous to the other users of the highway.

The desirability of such a step invariably is recognized by the driver. It is decidedly fair and much preferable to ordering them before a court. No reasonable driver is going to resent being told that he is unknowingly creating a menace for someone else. The right attitude is to appreciate the information that is imparted and act upon it without delay. It is through such assistance that much is being done in the way of increased safety for the steadily increasing number of highway users. The department is certainly doing a good thing and it should get the cooperation it deserves.

STOPPING LITTER SCATTERERS

Representatives of nine organizations met in the park commissioner's office in New York this week for the purpose of taking action that would stop the litter nuisance in the parks of that city.

It is to be noted in this connection that they came to the conclusion that results could be obtained by launching a campaign of education in which an appeal would be made to children in particular to discourage the leaving of papers in the parks and to discourage vandalism.

Getting at reforms through the children is a popular method. Without a doubt it brings results, but it is also to be realized, as one of the speakers pointed out at the meeting, that it is a wrong thing to ask children to be good citizens when their parents are bad citizens—in that sense at least.

New York differs none from other cities in the desire to eliminate the litter from the parks, and also from the streets. It is to be realized, however, that it is not always the children who are responsible for this condition. They do as they see others do. They are not so much responsible as those who have taught them. By all means it is a good thing that they should be instructed in what is right, and against littering parks and streets but at the same time efforts need to be directed to the adults.

Because it is the great outdoors there's a temptation to leave the rubbish just where it happens to fall and be unmindful of the fact that others would like to enjoy the unmarred attractions at that very spot. It is nothing but a bad habit and pure heedlessness that is responsible for such conditions. Invariably the suggestion that the debris should be cleared up and taken away meets with a ready response. The trouble is that few carry such a thing in mind. They overlook the effect of their pleasure seeking upon others. It is going to require long and persistent educational efforts before the existing tendency is corrected.

REGISTRATION OF ALIENS

There are those who are voicing their opposition to the idea of registering the aliens because they maintain that it would impose an injustice upon them. Nothing is said, of course, about the injustice that is imposed upon the people of this country, and those who are allowed to enter it under the laws, by those who defy the laws and get in illegally.

Those who come in under the immigration laws would have no difficulties concerning registration. They would be obliged to register each year so long as they remained or until they became citizens, but that would involve no more than the registering that is done by voters in a large city prior to an election. It imposes no hardships and is no more drastic a regulation than should be expected.

In view of the fact that there may be a million in the country who got in illegally registration can be regarded as fully justified by those who have respected the laws of the country concerning their entry. They have good reason to feel that the bootlegged alien should be tagged for what he is and that compliance with the law should obtain for them due recognition.

It is only through the registration of all aliens that it can be told where the legal and the illegal entrants are to be found, and certainly the latter class has no justification for remaining in the country under such conditions. The fact that there may be a million who might be deported if known simply shows the need of some method of detecting those who have gotten in in defiance of the law. Under such conditions can it be regarded as a hardship to require the aliens to disclose each year whether they are here by right or by defiance of the law? We have the idea that such a situation in other countries would result in the quick demand for not only what is being urged here but much more. It is time that we began to look to our own welfare in regard to this situation. The longer it goes unchanged the more encouragement we give to defiance of the law.

COLONEL JOHN C. COOLIDGE

Probably no father of a president has been brought into such wide public attention as Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of President Coolidge. Colonel Coolidge is a typical Vermonter, a New Englander, who has lived an exemplary life within narrow borders but with the utmost respect of his friends and neighbors.

Such a life would have been lived like many another without more than ordinary attention but for the fact that his son became in turn governor of Massachusetts, vice president and then president of the United States. And even then it is realized that Colonel Coolidge has been thrown into great public attention from the time he administered the oath of office to his son in the quiet Vermont farmhouse late at night and under the light of a kerosene lamp.

Likewise the country has been deeply impressed by the fondness and the thoughtfulness that have been displayed between father and son. There was the leadership that helped to furnished the ground work and the training for the present chief executive. He was unmindful of the great honor that had come to his son but he was not drawn away from the Vermont hills thereby.

The country has displayed a keen interest in this sturdy Plymouth character, this man who was held in such high esteem by a wide circle of friends and whose life of simplicity, service and devotion won wide admiration. His stewardship has led to great honor and distinction and the country sincerely sympathizes with the president in the loss of a much honored father.

PREVENTING DISRESPECT

Only by the distressing acts of vandalism which are displayed from time to time is it possible to grasp the attitude of those who are found to have displayed so much disrespect at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington cemetery as to call for plans for the placing of a special guard at that point during the hours the cemetery is open.

Vandalism to the extent of defacing the tomb has not been committed, but there those so indiscreet as to use the tomb as a place for eating their lunch and a place for merry making in utter disrespect for the national shrine. Whose body lies within the tomb is unknown, but it typifies all those who were slain in the great struggle across the water. It is a special mark of distinction to the great number of unknown dead who gave their lives in the service of their country and which mark of honor should be treated with all due deference and respect.

That most of the acts are thoughtless is entirely probable, but it nevertheless displays a deplorable lack of respect, an apparent indifference to the meaning of the tomb encased body.

It might seem entirely uncalled for to establish a uniformed guard at such a point, and it is for most people, and yet there are those who by their acts make such a thing necessary. New law, greater restrictions and sterner enforcement are constantly being forced upon the people because of this class of careless individuals who have have no thought about anything except their own pleasure and who seem to think that nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of it. It is deplorable that a guard should be thought necessary to prevent such disrespect.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It would seem are long that the word "impossible" would have to be stricken out of the dictionary of science. Things are constantly coming to light through scientific discovery which in the past—and not a very distant past—would have been regarded as clearly impossible, that is, miraculous. Suppose Jonathan Edwards should suddenly reappear in his old Northampton home, and during his first meal should hear Dr. Cadman speaking in Brooklyn. If he hadn't advanced somewhat from his conservative theology, he would be very apt to say: "Surely this is the work of the devil!" And if he looked around a bit, from his standpoint he would feel that the devil was quite in evidence. From the application of steam to locomotion to the latest improvements in radio we are inclined to say: "What wonders hath God wrought!" There is some reason for believing that we must coin some other word to take the place of "impossible," at least when dealing with science.

As evidence that the above is not the mere whim of the imagination take the newly-discovered method of teaching the deaf by means of radio. At first it sounds like a bit of extravagant fiction, but Popular Mechanics for March which describes it fully is not devoted to fiction but fact. The instrument through which the seemingly impossible is accomplished is called the audiometer, "which detects remnants of hearing that might escape other tests." It is a well known fact that "totally deaf persons do not learn to talk, simply because they do not hear others speak; but they can be taugh by proper methods. "It is quite possible to hear through the fine spring-like." Let the large end of a stethoscope be covered with a strong piece of paper drawn taut, or over a horn used in the radio. Let the deaf person put his fingers on the paper and the vibrations are communicated to the auditory nerve, and they will be detected.

But are there not equally amazing things performed in the realm of spiritually that are less noticeable because they are less spectacular? Getting dead ears to function is wonderful, but getting new life into dead souls is vastly more so, and this is being done every day. Take the man who only yesterday was a terror in his home. He simply made it hell for his helpless wife and children. One day something came to him which was not of the nature of a lullaby. It shook him violently from center to circumference, and remorse made him suffer as a penalty for his long continued transgressions. But a new soul seemed to be born in him. It was not the old man patched up, because there was not enough of real manhood left that was worth patching. The old man had entirely disappeared, and the new man came and worked a greater miracle than the audiometer.

In speaking of the wonderful change that came to those men who felt the strange power at Pentecost, Washburn in his suggestive book, "The Holy Spirit," says this: "These men were not made over into prodigies of what we call learning; they had their limitations; and they sometimes yielded to temptation and sinned, just as good men among us do now, but their repentance, punishment and forgiveness are also set forth." It is not easy to state in so many words all that this change involved. Outwardly they looked about as they did before, and yet there was a radiance, a spiritual glow that almost transfigured them. Still they did not lose their personal identity. Their temperament was not changed, but mysterious something had crept into their lives, that gave to life generally a new aspect. There were new viewpoints and life generally had taken on a new glory, and under the impact of the same power new lives have been created ever since.

The miraculous act of Christ in feeding the 5,000 hungry pilgrims is given by all four of the evangelists. It is an event of so much importance that they all agree as to its details. The first three are careful to state that it was "a desert place" where the miracle was performed. It was an arid bit of territory quite near the little hamlet of Bethsaida Julius, on the north east coast of the sea of Galilee, six miles from Capernaum. So desolate is the spot as not to be inhabited; so barren as not to support animal life, and only the more stunted form of vegetation. The miracle teaches that Christ could work quite independently of natural productivity. But in the midst of this terrible barrenness the 5,000 were fed, for under his powerful hand the "desert place" seemed like a fruitful paradise. Perhaps Isaiah was looking forward to this event when he wrote: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom like the rose."

One of the intimate contacts with Christ reveals him unto us as the Comforter. He fully realizes that his children everywhere must go through the great black kingdom of the shadows. It is one of the prices we all have to pay for the privilege of living. Nobody escapes these tough experiences. They do not come to all at the same time or in the same way. If they did the world would not be able to carry on; and that would mean sooner or later the utter collapse of civilization. But at some time and in some way every human soul is clutched by the icy hand that seems for the time being unendurable. And it is right here that by our side is "the form of the fourth that is like to the Son of God," and he says, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

It is very refreshing to find now and then the most indubitable evidence that the world is growing better—at least along some lines. All thinking people are forced to admit that many things exist for which there is no justification whatever. And as we may be inclined to feel in the presence of so many existing wrongs that the world is growing worse it is inspiring to come face to face with the facts showing conditions extant in this country once that would not be tolerated for a moment in any civilized land. We are told that the wreckers tearing down the old Colonial hotel in Washington "uncovered rows of dark, filthy, iron-barred cells around the walls of its cellars." A slave market once existed in the neighborhood and evidently "slave-drivers once herded their human chattels in those lightless cells preparatory to auctioning them off in the slave market." Whatever wrongs may exist in "this land of the free, let us devoutly thank God that this hideous nightmare is gone—and gone forever!"

The Federal Council of the Churches of America among other topics useful for the Lenten season has one on the Inner Relationships: those that bring out the deeper and richer relationships that subsisted between the Master and his disciples. The New Testament record shows clearly that our Lord did not reveal the depths of his heart on all occasions. It was only his chosen followers who saw the riches or treasure of his being. We may call these contracts intimitate because they suggest a line of thought that comes from close personal fellowship with him. It was the contact of spirit with spirit; it was personality touching personality; it was God through the personality of his Son getting right at the hearts of that inner circle, bringing to the surface the very best he had to give.

THE COWARD.

When the prosperous condition of the Chalmerses made it possible for them to possess a car there was, of course, great talk about who should run it. Maurice, the 17-year-old son who would next year be in college thought that this privilege should be paramount. Dick Polk's father had lately purchased a giant automobile and Dick's success in manipulating the machine was making him the envy of the town.

"Dick made 75 miles on the state road last night," boasted Maurice. "The speedometer is out only for 70 and the pointer went clean around and jumped over the pen."

"That's it exactly," said Mr. Chalmers. "But you'll do no such thing as that with our new car. It isn't going to be turned into a racing machine for a lot of wild youngsters like you to risk your lives in. This car is for the pleasure of us all—a pleasure to be used chiefly for week end trips and Sunday picnics and to cool off in after the day's work. I shall drive the car myself," ended Mr. Chalmers, "and then I'll know what is being done with it."

Maurice's bubble was pricked. He looked sulky and crestfallen. Correspondingly, his father looked assured and magnificent. For once Mr. Chalmers dominated his son, who was a head taller than himself.

The car came and Mr. Chalmers went home with the demonstrator to take his first lesson. He went forth confidently, admired by his family, but he came back with a wilted collar and too much color in his ordinarily pale face.

"Well, dad, how does it go," demanded 15-year old Aileen.

"Fine. But I tell you there's a lot to learn when you begin to drive a car," Mr. Chalmers admitted.

After supper he started out again. He walked home.

"Why, daddy, I thought you were going to drive the car home and give us all a nice ride," wailed 12-year-old Dena.

"The car," Mr. Chalmers choked a little "had to go to the garage for some slight repairs."

"Repairs! On a new car!" gasped Mrs. Chalmers. "I'm afraid it's going to be frightfully expensive, Tom, if it starts that way."

Mr. Chalmers did not answer, but this was not unusual for Mrs. Chalmers was supposed to say a great many unanswerable things.

For the rest of the day nothing more was heard of the car. Then Maurice found out something.

"Dick Polk is a four-flusher and no fit associate for my son. See that you cut him out in the future, Maurice. As for the car," he ground his teeth, "I wouldn't touch it again for—for anything." He stalked out of the room.

The car came home next day and it stood in the barn two days before Maurice, who had been taking lessons in secret from Joe Bartlet—he had kept clear of Dick since his father's command—attempted to take it out. Mrs. Chalmers stood anxiously by while Maurice was backing out of the barn. There was a crash and a splintering sound and Maurice stopped white as death. He had not calculated distances and a fender was ruined.

"Don't tell dad," he pleaded. "I'll take my own money and pay for a new fender." And he did, but he showed no more interest in the car.

Then Aileen attempted to drive the Leviathan as she called it, but a scare or two soon made her reluctant to touch it. In the meanwhile Mr. Chalmers had reached the point where he would say only:

"I got it for you folks. Run it or leave it. If you don't want it, I'll sell it. I'm too busy to bother with the thing."

The situation was distressing, to say the least. The delightful picnics and outings that had been looked forward to so eagerly did not occur. Mary Chalmers began to think about them wistfully. She also began to fear that her husband, her children, lacked some important element in character.

"There's an excuse for Tom," she thought, "he works so hard and he's getting on in years. But there's no excuse for a great boy like my son or for a girl like my daughter. I hope they are not cowardly. But if they are it is all my fault, for there never was a worse coward than I am."

Mary Chalmers was troubled. She had hoped, she had believed that she had thus far successfully kept her cowardice out of sight, but evidently it was like a grain of radium, not to be hidden. For her children had inherited it. It was coming out in them.

"I must conquer it in them and in myself," she thought. "I must do something. I must set them an example."

One beautiful May morning after Tom had gone to work and the children to school, Mary Chalmers went to the barn. For two days she had been studying the mechanism of the Leviathan from the books she had found in the pockets of the machine, and she had also been experimenting with the gear shift and the pedals; she knew the mark lever from the throttle. Now she looked at the car and gritted her teeth.

"You're going to obey me" she said, as she had once, in a thrilling showdown, said to her son before she spanked him.

She climbed into the car, started it, and backed out of the barn. She managed to steer clear of the doors, but she backed all over the yard before she got it headed for the street. It was a quiet street at that hour empty and a mile long. Mary went the whole length of the street and back again. Then she got the car into the barn.

She was limp as a dishrag, as she said to herself, when she got into the house flushed, purple, and covered with sweat. But in spite of all she felt glad and proud and triumphant.

That afternoon she went forth again. There was a little more traffic now, but she kept the Leviathan going when she came back she was a driver.

She drove the car three days before she dared make her exploits known. Then one evening at the supper table she invited her family to take a ride.

"But who'll drive," Maurice exclaimed.

"I will," answered his mother.

"You!" gasped Maurice. "Why, mother, you know you're afraid of a tack hammer."

"Nevertheless I've learned to run the car all by myself," said Mary. "And you're going to learn to run it, too, without smashing it, all three of you. I'll have no cowards in my family."

"Why, Mother Chalmers!" said Aileen. "If you don't beat all! Of course, if you taught yourself, I'd be ashamed not to be able to do what you've done."

But it was not until they were in a secluded spot on the state road that Tom Chalmers gave vent to his admiration for the little woman who sat at the Leviathan's wheel.

"And a tiger," added Maurice.

So they gave three cheers and Mary Chalmers smiled. She was happy beyond words, but nevertheless she kept the Leviathan straight to its course. —Detroit News.

Sunday Morning Talk

JESUS OUR SALVATION

Then he called for a light and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, and brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved.

And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. Acts 16:29-31.

Paul and Silas were confronted by the mightiest question that ever agitates a human soul, when that poor jailer of Philippi lay trembling before them. They did not stop to expound a doctrine; they enforced a deed; they did not point to a system of truth, but to a personal saviour. To an almighty person, a loving compassionate person, to a divine person whose atoning blood cleanseth from sin. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Not in Christianity but on Jesus Christ. That is what they told the jailer.

Mark that little and yet supremely great word "on." It is not enough to believe in Christ. Millions of unconverted people believe in Jesus just as they believe in Howard as a noble philanthropist, and in Washington as a pure patriot, in Newton as a profound philosopher. But they do not trust their souls to Jesus. They do not build their characters on Him as the only foundation.

One of the survivors from the terrible burning of a great hotel tells us that when he was driven back by the flames in the hall, he seized the escape rope in his bedroom, and from an upper story he lowered himself through the smoke down to the sidewalk. He had seen that rope before, but had felt no need for it. He had a good opinion of the strength of the rope, but it was only an opinion; he put it to the test when he swung out of the window and trusted his life to it. Now that was a saving faith; he let go everything else and committed his whole weight to those well braided strands of hemp and when a human soul lets go of every other reliance in the wide universe and lays hold of the sin-atoning Redeemer for salvation, that soul "believes on Christ." He entrusts himself to Jesus for pardon, for acceptance with God, for grace, for strength, for guidance, and for a full salvation.

From Small Beginnings

William H. Gibson, Insurance Agent, American Artist and Author

A very small boy sat in a hard chair before a table, bending most intently over his work. Before him on the tables lay a mess of wild flowers that he had picked in the fields near his house. He looked at each long and searchingly, as though he would read the innermost secret the blossom could tell. Then he would draw on paper what he had seen. He was only a very small boy, a mere child, and this was his play. Then, too, he was fond of butterflies, and was accustomed to run after them, to catch them, and to draw pictures of them also.

The parents of this "Poor Boy" were rich, and they expected their son to follow in his father's work. But, suddenly, came the crash. The father lost his fortune, and soon afterwards died broken-hearted. William Gibson, a little over 17 years old, was thrown on a world that does not spend its time gathering flowers nor chasing butterflies, but in hard, breadearning labor. There are still people in Brooklyn, New York, who remember the attractive boy who tried to sell them life insurance. There are some who remember the pleasure William Gibson showed when they filled out the blank forms for insurance. There are none who heard him complain. In the evenings he turned to his former play—the study of flowers and the drawing of pictures. He became more and more proficient. There are countless men and women today who remember the pleasure they had in looking at William H. Gibson's pictures in The Youth's Companion and St. Nicholas. There are still more who remember how they looked for the appearance in Harper's Magazine of the various articles that Mr. Gibson wrote and illustrated, every article showing a most beautiful love of nature and a painstaking observation. The evening amusement of the young insurance agent very quickly became his real work, for he found that he could turn his play into results that would bring money.

He was accomplished in many ways, engraving on wood and on stone, and drawing pictures for a great number of books about the outdoors world. He was never tired of rambling in pleasant places, among mountains and along rivers, but wherever he went he took beautifully selected pictures, and found material for his pen. In a certain sense he never left the garden in which he played as a child.

With 260 delegates present, the 53rd annual conference of the Connecticut D. A. R. opened at the Methodist church in Stamford this afternoon. Mrs. Charles Bissel, state regent, presided.

Whitefoot the Wood Mouse Complains

Though shines the sun, or falls the rain,
Some people always will complain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit had safely reached the old Stone Wall along the Old Orchard, just behind the Black Shadows which had come creeping out from the Purple Hills, after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had gone to bed. He felt quite safe in the old Stone Wall, for you know there were many hiding places there. That old Stone Wall is a favorite place with Peter. He ran along close to it until he reached the point where the Old Orchard and the Green Forest met. There he hesitated. He was anxious to get into the Green Forest that the night satisfy his curiosity about the stranger he had been told was there. But Reddy Fox was somewhere in the Green Forest. Yowler the Bobcat was there; Old Man Coyote might be there; Hoooy the Owl probably was there, and the one to be feared more than any other, Puma the Panther, was there. Do you wonder that Peter hesitated?

"I'm afraid, Peter. Yes, I'm afraid," squeaked little Whitefoot

He sat down close to the old Stone Wall, on the side nearest the Green Forest. "Perhaps," thought Peter "some one of whom I can ask questions will come along. I wish my cousin, Jumper the Hare, would come along. He would be sure to know about this stranger."

Just then he was startled by a voice almost in his ear, a squeaky little voice. "Hello Peter Rabbit! What are you doing here?" said the squeaky little voice. It startled Peter so that he jumped in spite of himself. "Hello, Whitefoot," said he, for it was Whitefoot the Wood Mouse. He was sitting on a stone of the old wall just back of Peter. "Hello, Whitefoot," repeated Peter. "I'd like to know what you are doing here. Why aren't you over there in the Green Forest, where you belong?"

"I'm afraid, Peter. Yes, sir, I'm afraid," squeaked little Whitefoot.

Peter chuckled. "That's nothing new," said he. "I never yet have seen you when you weren't afraid."

"But I am more afraid than ever," declared Whitefoot. "That is why I have left the Green Forest."

"Pooh! Why should you be any more afraid than ever?"

Whitefoot drewy a little nearer. "There's another stranger there," he whispered in Peter's ear. "There's another stranger there, and he likes Mice."

"How do you know he does?" demanded Peter. "How do you know he likes Mice?"

"Because I've seen him hunting for them," whispered Whitefoot. "Because he has hunted me."

Peter's eyes popped wide open. "Then you've really seen this stranger?" he cried.

Pretty little Whitefoot stroked his whiskers with one of his little white hands. "Yes," he squeaked. "Yes, I've seen him."

"What does he look like?" cried Peter eagerly.

"He looks like a Fox," squeaked Whitefoot. "Yes, sir, he looks like a Fox. He looks altogether too much like a Fox to suit me. Just as if there were not Foxes enough around here without that fellow. Why, only this very night I saw Reddy Fox over in the Green Forest. It's bad enough to have Reddy always on the watch for me, and Mrs. Reddy, and Old Granny Fox, now comes this fellow and it is more than I can stand I'm afraid, Peter Rabbit, and I don't care who knows it. I'm afraid."

"But this stranger," persister Peter "does he look like Reddy Fox?"

"He does and he doesn't," replied Whitefoot. Before he could say more the voice of Hooty the Owl was heard only a short distance away. Timid little Whitefoot disappeared between the stones of the old Stone Wall.

For five years he acted as managing editor of the Commercial Intelligencer of London. He is a fellow of the Royal Statistical society, and possesses the rare gift of being able to make statistics clear and at the same time interesting. In 1903 he was instrumental in bringing about a complete revision of the British Board of trade returns. He was elected to parliament in 1906 as Liberal member for North Paddington, a seat he occupied for four years. In 1910 he was elected for East Northants. Sir Leo Chiossa Money was actively engaged on various committees, and for some time acted as private secretary to Lloyd George, the prime minister.

POETRY

The Snow-Shower

Stand here by my side and turn, I pray,
On the lake below thy gentle eyes;
The clouds hang over it, heavy and gray,
And dark and silent the water lies;
And out of that frozen mist the snow
In wavering flakes begins to flow;
Flake after flake
They sink in the dark and silent lake.

See how in a living swarm they come
From the chambers beyond that misty veil;
Some hover awhile in air, and some
Rush prone from the sky like summer hail.
All, dropping swiftly or settling slow,
Meet, and are still in the depths below:
Flake after flake
Dissolved in the dark and silent lake . . .

Yet look again, for the clouds divide;
A gleam of blue on the water lies;
And far away, on the mountain-side,
A sunbeam falls from the opening skies.
But the hurrying host that flew between
The cloud and the water, no more is seen;
Flake after flake,
At rest in the dark and silent lake.
—Bryant.

An After Song

The love I might have whispered
In the days gone by
Comes back now to haunt me
When she's no longer nigh.
Oft her sad eyes pled for
The loving words she craved—
Too late upon my aching heart
Now those words are graved.

You who have your loved ones,
Listen to my song:
Wistful hearts ask never,
They only love—and long!
While the dear one still is near
Be not cold and dumb;
Sighs and tears 'twill save you
In the years to come.

Walking up to a Moro datto and requesting a sample of his blood for analysis looks like a formidable job, when it is recalled that the Moros, warlike Malays with a reputation for fanatical Mohometanism, are usually regarded as the most truculent of all the peoples of the Philippines. Yet this is what Mrs. Ella F. Grove, an American scientist, now on her way back to the United States, has done, not once, but hundreds of times. Mrs. Grove has been conducting anthropological studies based on comparative blood tests among a number of oriental races whose origins are still a riddle, under the auspices of the National Research council and the New York hospital. In addition to her large collection of data from the Moro country, she has similar sets of facts gathered among the more tractable Philippine tribes, including the Bogobas, Igorots and Negritos.

DONAHOE MILL AT BALTIC IS SOLD TO NEW ENGLAND MILLS CORP.

Restoration of the Donahoe woolen mill at Baltic to active operations that will give employment to approximately 200 hands was forecasted when it became known Friday that an agreement for the purchase of the mill property had been made by the New England Mills Co. of this city (Oscar L. and Clarence E. Peterson) with Thomas J. Donovan of Bristol; the present owner of the property.

It is understood that the New England Mills Co. is acquiring the Baltic mill in order to operate it in addition to the present mill of the Norwich company which is located near the plant of the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co. in the Greeneville section of the city.

The property to be acquired is two brick buildings which are connected, one 200x40, four stories, and the other 130x40, three stories. It operates 85 looms and with the exception of the American Woolen mills, is the largest woolen mill in the immediate vicinity of Norwich. The operating power for the mill is provided through 100 horse power by water and two 300 horse power boilers. There is an engine and dynamo plant for making electricity for the mill. The new owners contemplate putting in their own yarn mill and will make some building additions at the plant which will probably be in operation in two or three months as it will take that time to go over the machinery thoroughly and get it into order after the long shut down at the mill.

Both the mill off North Main street and at the New Baltic property the New England Mills Co. has its own dyeing and finishing departments. The mill in this city operates 30 looms and employs about 35 hands, having had continuously successful operation since the time it was started.

The Donahoe mill at Baltic had been owned about a year and a half by the Daniel Boone Co. of Chicago which operated it only intermittently, and the mill was finally put up for sale at auction. The only bid received was so low that the superior court declined to permit the receiver to make a sale at that price. Subsequently the mill was sold to Thomas J. Donovan of Bristol, a son-in-law of Michael J. Donahoe, the original owner and operator of the mill.

TELEPHONE CO. STOCK IS WIDELY DISTRIBUTED

Some interesting facts concerning the ownership distribution of the stock of The Southern New England Telephone company appear in the March issue of The Telephone Bulletin, the monthly magazine issued by and for the employes.

The capital stock of the company, when incorporated on October 2, 1882, was $300,000 and there were five stockholders. Today the company has $24,000,000 capital stock outstanding and this is owned by 5,562 stockholders.

To show Connecticut's large interest in this home financed and home managed utility, 5,065 of the stockholders are residents in this state. The other 497 stockholders are scattered throughout the country, nearly every state in the Union being represented in the list. A large majority of the stockholders, 4,138 of them, may be classed as small holders as none of them owns more than 25 shares and their average holding is between nine and ten shares. Of the large holders there are 1,131 who own from 25 to 100 shares each and 238 who own from 100 to 1,000 shares each. A large number of employes hold small lots of Southern New England while many more own stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

PROMINENT ZIONIST WILL ADDRESS JEWISH RELIEF

Rabbi Teitelbaum, prominent executive member of Zionist organizations of America, is to be the principal speaker of the Jewish relief mass meeting to be held at the Community house Sunday evening. The committee is greatly elated by Rabbi Teitelbaum coming as he is a very inspiring orator, greatly respected by the people in every walk of life. Rabbi Teitelbaum addressed the Norwich Jewish relief mass meeting in March, 1922, and his eloquence was of such inspiring nature that it left a marked effect upon the minds of his listeners. It was then conceded by the committee that the rabbi's sincerity of appeal was greatly instrumental in the success of the drive.

Daniel Polsky, of the Norwich United Jewish relief committee, in company with I. Horowitz and Samuel Florman, visited Montville on Thursday, and from several Jewish people living there collected donations and pledges for Jewish relief amounting to $149, with promises of more donations before the drive is over. Several Jewish people with very small means surprised Mr. Polsky by insisting on subscribing to pledges which appeared beyond their capacity to pay. But the donors with tears in their eyes offered their bit as a sacrifice in this very serious emergency afflicting the people of their faith in European countries. The executive committee of the relief organization met at relief headquarters, Fay's block, on Thursday evening, and completed arrangements for Sunday's meeting. Several pledges in large amounts were promised to the committee by Jewish people who are greatly stirred by the misfortune which has befallen their co-religionists in European countries. They realize that Jewish men in the United States, the land of opportunity and humanity, must make real sacrifices to help the afflicted poor in Europe, and the Jewish men and women in our town are thoroughly aroused to their duty in this relief drive. The committee is in the hope that not a single Jewish man and woman who is physically able to attend Sunday's relief mass meeting will stay at home. In sending out the call for this meeting the relief committee says to the Jewish people of Norwich: "No Jew of Norwich and vicinity can afford to absent himself from this meeting in fear that he may be persuaded to make a charitable donation to this worthy cause. The alternative of staying home by its very nature, will entail a much greater sacrifice. The cost of the reproach of his own conscience for letting his Jewish brothers across the ocean die of grivation and suffering when he was able to extend a helping hand, will outweigh by far the value of any contribution that he may make."

An added strength to the relief drive is the promise of Samuel Goldberg to do all in his power to help along the appeal. Mr. Goldberg was the first man in Norwich who advocated that the Jews in Norwich should organize and participate in the $15,000,000 United Jewish campaign. Now that the organization is complete he is ready to further its charitable purpose.

RISKO HANDS BURLENBACK TERRIFIC BEATING IN EARLY ROUNDS OF FIGHT

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach's quest for recognition as a heavyweight contender was abruptly checked tonight when he was decisively whipped in a slashing ten-round battle with Johnny Risko of Cleveland in the feature match at Madison Square Garden. The referee's decision was almost unnecessary to determine the result.

The world's light heavyweight king not only was battered from start to finish by his 22-year old opponent, a comparatively newcomer to fistic ranks, but was close to a knockout in each of the first three rounds of one of the most sensational ring upsets of the season.

Berlinbach was floored for a count of four in the first round by a crashing left to the jaw, saved only by the bell as he careened to the canvas again in the second round under the impact of another pile-driving left and groggy under a hale of punches in the third.

Surviving this unexpected and terrific storm, however, seemed to have a stimulating effect on Berlenbach for he rallied and nearly held his own for the rest of the fight, staving off Risko's rushes and finishing with a spirited rally in the tenth round.

Berlenbach's gameness and stamina, however, were unequal to offsetting the superior power in Risko's punches and the tremendous weight punching enjoyed by the Clevelander, who tipped 190 to the champion's 171 1-2. Both tired under their terrific pace but Risko was the stronger at the finish.

A crowd of 16,000 fans, whipped to a frenzied pitch of excitement, saw Risko pound his way to a sensational victory which stamped him as an outstanding heavyweight contender while it virtually blasted the hopes Berlenbach entertained of entering the heavy division. The young Clevelander displayed a granite jaw which absorbed Berlenbach's blows without damaging effect, as well as a terrific punch in either hand.

Chick Suggs, New Bedford, Mass., Negro rated by Tex Rickard at the top of the bantamweight division in U. S. gained the judges' decision over Leandro Petrone of New York in the ten round semi-final.

After being decisively outboxed and outfought for nine rounds, Petrone staged a slashing rally in the last round in which he sent Suggs to his knees with a right uppercut to the jaw. Both were groggy from their furious pace at the bell. Suggs weighed 120 and Petrone 120 3-4.

Tony Vaccarelli, slugging Harlem lightweight, battered his way to victory over an East Side rival, Joey Silvers, in a ten-round preliminary to the Berlinbach-Risko bout in Madison Square Garden tonight. Vaccarelli scored knockdowns in the first and sixth rounds. He weighed 133 1-2 while Silvers scaled 133 1-4.

Murray Glittz of New Haven, Conn., earned a draw with Happy Howard, a sparring partner of Berlenbach, on the strength of his aggressiveness in their six-round go. Howard landed several telling blows but Glittz carried the attack steadily to his rival. Glittz weighed 176 1-4 and Howard 168 1-4.

In a four-round bout opening the card, Billy Kelly of Scranton, Pa., punched his way to victory over Mickey Durano of Brooklyn. Kelly weighed 119 and Durano 114 1-2.

AMERICAN ATHLETES SCORE HEAVILY IN ENGLISH MEET

LONDON, March 19.—(AP)—American Rhodes scholars now students at Oxford university scored heavily for their English alma mater in the 55th annual track meet with Cambridge today, but their contribution was not sufficient to achieve an Oxford victory. Cambridge won first place in eight of the eleven events, two of Oxford's tracks last succumbed to by R. L. Hyatt a former Harvard athlete.

Besides Hyatt's two firsts, in the broad jump and pole vault, the American Rhodes scholars, including also S. Harrison Thomson, formerly of Princeton; H. H. Jack formerly of Pennsylvania and W. A. Rosebrough, formerly of Oregon, took one second and four thirds in scoring this meet, however only first places counted.

Hyatt was the outstanding individual star, soaring with Lord David Burghley, England's foremost hurdler, and R. S. Starr, Cambridge distance runner, the distinction of being winner of two first places. Hyatt, however added to his performance by taking third place in the shot put. He also set a new varsity record in the pole vault clearing 12 feet in an exhibition leap after having won the event at 11 feet 6 inches. The former record, 11 feet 5 inches, was his own.

The former Harvard athlete missed his chance in the high jump by waiting until the bar had risen to 6 feet before entering competition. Then he failed.

Lord Burghley, in capturing both hurdle events, displayed the same impressive style he showed on American tracks last year. Chill wintry winds probably slowed him down a fraction of a second but several thousands of overcoated and blanketed spectators hailed his new varsity record in the high hurdles of .15 and 1-2 seconds with delight. Oxford and Cambridge athletes have been running high hurdles races since 1864, but in only four meets has the time for this event been better than 16 seconds.

Jack the former Pennsylvania, looked like a winner in the quarter mile until near the end. He took the lead rounding the third turn but could not hold it.

What seemed to worry old time Oxford and Cambridge varsity men more than the failure of the present generation to set up new records was the scarcity of silk hats in the fashionable pavilions of the Queens club. Before the war the Oxford-Cambridge meet was a sort of athletic mascot as a fashion show. Today only one official wore correct formal day attire, with morning coat, buttonhole flower and white spats, while steamer rugs and borrowed overcoats predominated among the women.

YALE BASEBALL SQUAD HAS FIRST OUTDOOR PRACTICE

NEW HAVEN, March 19.—(AP)—Coach Joe Wood of the Yale baseball squad took his men outdoors today for their first workout at Yale field this season. The squad of about thirty men reported several weeks ago but have been forced to hold their practice in the indoor cage.

Today's practice consisted of infield and batting work with special instruction for the batteries. The burden of the Eli pitching this season will fall on Bill Holabird, who starred last season in the big three contests. Pat Moran and Tom Burnel, members of last year's squad, were said by Coach Wood today, to be developing into excellent material. D. T. Smith and W. T. Shoop, of last year's freshman team are considered valuable new pitchers. The receiving end this afternoon was occupied by G. H. Walker and G. M. Barclay, veterans from last year's team.

Coach Wood shifted his infield today by moving Captain Dan Lindley from second base to the outfield, where he already has Larry Noble and Bill Cushing from last year's team. The men tried out in the infield today were Kline, McLaren, Coleman and Festa from the 1925 varsity squad and Vaughn, Hammersley and Brown from last year's freshman team.

MCGRAW OPTOMISTIC OVER GIANTS' PENNANT PROSPECT

SARASOTA, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Fortified with stronger pitching and the addition of A Tyson in the outfield, the New York Giants face the 1926 National league campaign with excellent pennant prospects, in the opinion of Manager John McGraw.

"Pittsburgh, of course, is the team we will have to beat," said McGraw, in discussing his outlook for the Associated Press, "but I regard the St. Louis Cardinals as a contender."

"We are stronger in pitching than we were last year," the veteran Giant chieftain continued, "and for that matter stronger than for many years past. Tyson, the Louisville centerfielder, will help us.

"These two factors sum up our added strength so far as I can count with any certainty. Our team should at least be as stout this year, as last. We ought to be able to count on less accidents, thought we might have more. Jackson seems to be all right. His knee has given him no trouble at all so far in training. Groh looks good this year. His bad knee seems to have come around. He is giving Lindstrom a close battle for the third base position.

"I have not yet made up my mind who will play the bag. Groh, with his experience, will, of course, have the edge, if his knee is strong."

"I will start Tyson in centerfield. Southworth will be utility. I regard Tyson as a most valuable addition to the club. He is fast and he can hit and field.

"The most promising young pitcher I have in camp is Fay Thomas, the college boy from Southern California. He looks even better to me than Greenfield did at this time last year. Not for many years have I seen such a likely pitcher.

"Kelly will play first straight through. I know nothing of Terry. He is a holdout. I am perfectly satisfied with my catching strength. Hartley the veteran is one of the most youthful men in camp. Snyder has another great year in him. I am pleased with my team as a whole."

PRO FOOTBALL TEAMS PLAN TOUR OF EUROPE

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Plans for an invasion of Europe next winter by two American professional football elevens, one headed by Red Grange and the other by George Wilson, All-American halfback of the University of Washington, were disclosed today by C. C. Pyle, Grange's manager and vice-president of the newly launched American League of Football clubs.

To pave the way for the European tour, William H. Pickens, Pyle's representative, will sail tomorrow for a four weeks' visit to France and England.

While abroad, however, Pickens also expects to open negotiations with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen with a view to inducing the French tennis star to come to the United States this summer. Pyle already has expressed an interest in engaging Lenglen here but declined to say today what form the overtures to her will take or whether she will be offered a contract to turn professional.

Meanwhile, formation of the new professional 10-club circuit sponsored by Grange and Pyle with William H. (Big Bill) Edwards as president, is proceeding rapidly, Pyle disclosed today. Clubs already have been formed in Boston, Newark and New York, which will be the home city of Grange's eleven. Negotiations with Chicago and Cleveland promoters according to Pyle, will be closed within a week or ten days, in addition to which clubs are slated to be located in Milwaukee and Philadelphia. Applications for other franchises have been received from Baltimore, Indianapolis Pittsburgh, Washington and Cincinnati. George Wilson's "Wildcats," composed of far western stars, will play a "roving" assignment in the circuit.

Ball Gee won the Florida handicap, Tampa's feature today, with Texas second and Rundark third. The time for the 5 1-2 furlongs was 1.06 4-5.

COMPLAINT AGAINST KAPLAN FILED BY CANADA BODY

NEW YORK Mar. 19.—(AP)—Complaint against Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., world's featherweight champion, for failure to fulfill a contract to fight Kid Roy, Canadian champion, in Montreal, November 2, 1925, was filed today with the state athletic commission by the Montreal boxing commission.

Chairman Farley ordered Kaplan and his two managers, Dennis McMahon and "Scotty" Monteith, to answer the charges at next Tuesday's meeting. All three will be served with summonses.

Kaplan Had Injured Thumb

MERIDEN, Mar. 19.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of this city, world's featherweight champion, was prevented from meeting Leo (Kid) Roy, A. Montreal last November because of an injured thumb, sustained in a training workout.

Kaplan was taken to Montreal and examined by three physicians, who upheld the champion's claim of injury. The Montreal commission at that time ordered Kaplan to fight Roy before meeting any other fighter in Montreal, however.

Kaplan is signed to fight Roy at Montreal on April 21. Kaplan's featherweight title will not be at stake, as both boys will scale in at 130 pounds. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

"Y" TOURNAMENT STARTS AT "Y" GYM TODAY

A section of the state tournament games is booked for the local "Y" gym for this afternoon when the teams representing the Willimantic, New London and Norwich "Y's" will clash for the privilege of playing in the finals which will take place in Hartford next Saturday afternoon. That the competition will be fast and exciting is assured, for the teams are composed of some of the best players of the associations represented, who have been practicing and looking forward to the tournament for some time.

The local squad is said to be a winning aggregation this season among the players being H. E. Robbins, E. C. Dunbar, Cornwall Jackson, Oliver Hargraves, James Osten, E. A. Harris, P. Harwood and John Evans.

The game of volleyball has increased rapidly in popularity during the past few seasons, due chiefly to the new style of play, which calls for considerable skill and action, a fact which has drawn many younger men to play the game. The national volleyball championships in which the various state tournament winners will be eligible, will be held in Philadelphia May 7-8.

Today's games will begin promptly at 2:30 and all persons interested are invited to visit the "Y" gym to see the volleyball teams in action.

HOFF IN FINAL INDOOR MEETING THIS EVENING

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Charley Hoff will make his farewell appearance of the indoor track season tomorrow night in an attempt to exceed the world's indoor pole vault record for the tenth time at the annual meet of the postoffice clerks. A height of 13 feet 8 inches, surpassing his present mark by one full inch, has been set as the final indoor achievement of Norway's wonder athlete.

Hoff has abandoned his original intention of competing against Dehart Hubbard of Cincinnati in a special broad jumping contest, at which the Norwegian set a new world's indoor record of 23 feet 7 3-8 inches Tuesday night. Hubbard, holder of the world's outdoor record at 25 feet, 10 7-8 inches will be opposed, however, by William Dowding of Georgetown intercollegiate indoor champion, and Paul Courtois, national penathlon title-holder.

Emerson Norton of Georgetown who finished second to Hoff in Tuesday's scythation at the K. of C. games, will vault against Hoff. Two university of Pittsburgh athletes, Edwin Woolev and Victor Rickard, also will compete. The latter represented Canada in the 1924 Olympic meet finishing fifth.

MRS. MALLORY NOT ON AMERICAN TENNIS TEAM

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Selection of an American women's team consisting of Helen Wills, Elizabeth Ryan, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Mary K. Browne to compete in international matches in England and France this summer was announced today by the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association. Eleanor Goss of New York is named as alternate.

Mrs. Mola Bjurstedt Mallory, for ten years a prominent figure in international tennis and No. 3 in the 1925 ranking, declined to place her name on the available list, the committee announced, due to prior plans for a foreign trip this spring. Miss Browne, holder of the women's singles title in 1912, 1913 and 1914, has been appointed captain of the team.

Although the players will have as their main objective the recovery of the Wightman trophy, won by England in 1924 and retained at Forest Hills last summer, their schedule calls for appearances in three events. An international team match with France on May 28, 29 and 30 in Paris will follow their arrival on May 17. They then will participate in the French national championships from June 3 to 13.

Wightman cup team matches at Wimbledon on June 17 and 18 will next take the players to England. Their final appearance abroad will be in the English golden jubilee tournament, June 21 to July 4.

The events, three of which hold the possibility of return contests between Miss Wills, America's No. 1 player, and Suzanne Lenglen of France, take overseas what is considered by the Davis Cup committee as the strongest women's team that ever represented this country abroad.

FAST AND CLOSE GAMES FEATURE SPRING EXHIBITIONS IN THE SOUTH

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP)—A game of mid-season intensity featured by hard hitting and a belated ninth inning rally was reported from Fort Worth, Texas, today where the Chicago White Sox were on display. Manager Collins shifted pitchers and the lineup but knew no peace until the final putout.

The Texas league champions of Jakey Atz found three Sox pitchers for 18 hits and were a run ahead when the last inning opened. Two opportune home runs, bringing in five runs were largely responsible for the big leaguers' narrow winning margin, 9 to 8.

Brooklyn again proved nemesis for the St. Louis Browns, winning 8 to 6 for the fourth out of five starts. Ernie Nevers, California grid star, went five innings for the Browns, allowing five hits and two runs. The Dodgers took the tile in the ninth by touching Charley Robertson for six runs out of seven hits.

The St. Louis Cardinals continued a no loss pre-season record by besting Houston 9 to 4. Bottomley turned in a home run.

The Detroit Tigers engaged in their second strictly Detroit game with the decision going to the squad piloted by First Baseman Blue. The Tigers play their first exhibition game tomorrow, with the Toronto Internationals.

During the meeting the auxiliary voted to purchase the poppies to be sold for Memorial day from ex-service men now patients at hospitals, for by this method the wounded veterans are doubly benefitted, receiving money from the purchase price by the auxiliary, as well as by donation by the auxiliary through sale of the poppies to the public.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Moment by Moment

Moment by moment I'm kept in His love.
Moment by moment I've life from above.
Looking to Jesus 'till glory doth shine
Moment by moment, O Lord I am thine.
Never a trial that He is not there
Never a burden that He doth not share.
Never a sorrow that He doth not share.
Moment by moment I am under His care.
Never a heart ache and never a groan.
Never a teardrop and never a moan
Never a danger but there on the throne
Moment by moment He thinks of His own.
Never a weakness that He doth not see
Never a sickness that He cannot heal
Moment by moment in woe or in weal
Jesus my Saviour abides with me still.

Serenity

We may not climb the heavenly steps
To bring the Lord Christ down,
In vain we search the lowest deeps
For him no depths can drown.

But warm, sweet, tender even yet
A present help is He;
And faith has yet its olivet,
And love its Galilee.

The healing of that seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain
We touch Him in life's throng and press.
And we are whole again.

Through Him the first fond prayers are said
Our lips of childhood frame;
The last low whisper of our dead.
Are burdened with his name.

O Lord and Master of us all.
Whate'er our name or sign,
We own thy sway, we hear thy call.
We test our lives by thine.

IN LAWS

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: Greetings to all the members.

Buffalo: Your letter on In-laws was all right. You have taken the right attitude and show the right spirit. In other words you used good common sense and in doing so saved yourself and many others a whole lot of trouble. In-laws are not so bad if we do our part to help and to keep them good. We are in this world to live and to let live, not only in society but in the home. The home is one of God's greatest blessings and should be guarded as sacred and as far as possible should be kept free from everything contrary to the spirit of the Master for He loved the home.

Joan: Your contribution of the old song, The Gypsy Warning carried me back a long ways. I have sung that song a great many times in my younger days. I think that Jack's Wife would remember it, too.

I wonder if some sister could favor us with another one of our old favorites the chorus went something like this:

I am dying for someone to love me
Someone to call me his own
Someone to love and caress me
For I am tired of living alone.

This song has been sung by a great many precious jewels that are still living in single blessedness. Whether they all enjoy it or not I am not at liberty at this present moment to say.

J. E. T.: How about that auction that you spoke of last spring? I have a few articles that I will donate any time that you want them. Some of them I have outgrown and some of them have outgrown me but you are welcome to them any time that you are ready.

TO AMUSE CHILDREN

Dear Corner Members: Let the children find and cut out pictures from old magazines of houses, trees, children, animals etc. Then take a large piece of wrapping paper and with a pencil line out the streets and paste the pictures on so as to make a village. Any number of things may be added so as to make it interesting. It keeps little minds and hands busy and it also keeps them amused. After the village is finished it can be colored with crayons or paints.

Another mode of amusement for children is to take an ordinary lapboard and convert it into a tic of pegs. Have a carpenter or your husband, make square holes on the underside of the table, ten each way, about 1-2 inch apart. As many can be made as desired, according to the size of the board.

The pegs can be bought at a little cost from a kindergarten supply house. You can substitute matches by breaking the heads off. By placing the board on a low stool, the children can sit around it. The little hands learn with a few instructions, how to make circles, squares, rectangles, triangles, etc. Most of the letters of the alphabet can be formed by the pegs. Counting, adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing, come to them naturally with this play. The pegs can be colored with simple dyes, green, yellow, brown, (all the white uncolored pegs the grain which the farmer plants in the garden, two or three rows of green peas, the growing plants, a row of yellow peas represents the corn, ripe, and ready for the farmer to gather; and at last those of brown show the stalks after Jack Frost has come and touched them.

CLUB NO 1'S ANNIVERSARY

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: The 16th anniversary of the Social Corner was duly observed by Club No. 1 on March 10th at Willimantic. The weather was perfect for an early spring day, so brought forth a large attendance. I was informed there were about 140. Many visitors came from the other clubs. An excellent dinner was served, the tables being decorated with yellow crepe paper, also bouquets of flowers of the golden hue. Neighbor Everady was hostess, and with her helpers did much to serve the sisters, and make a very pleasant day. They were each supplied with the latest style in millinery made of very dainty yellow crepe paper, trimmed with white, and exceedingly becoming to every face. I regret not to know the name of every assistant to the hostess, but mention those I do know as follows: Maine Lover, Debbie, Frances, Buttercup, Theoda, Wandering Jew, Effie M. and Harleth. As Theoda had charge of the donations and has given a good report in last week's paper, I need not repeat that. After taking our places at the dinner table and while standing we sang the usual Doxology, following a few minutes of silence with bowed heads, in respectful memory of those sisters who have passed on to the Great Beyond during the past year. After the dinner was over, a special birthday cake was cut and served to those who had a birthday in March. A very pretty birthday cake, bearing 16 tiny candles was carefully packed in a large pasteboard box and sent to the editor with compliments of Club No. 1.

As it was donation day, the program was in favor of that subject. The lady captain of the Salvation Army read a paper giving a brief history and telling of the work of the Salvation Army in a general way. A lady from the welfare bureau also read a paper describing the work of that organization referring to the benefits given to local cases.

We all enjoyed a very social time, as in all former meetings. Was glad to meet familiar faces, and pleased to make new acquaintances. I am sure we all hope for continued success of our Social Corner. Best wishes to all.

JENNIE.

SOME GOOD AND NEW RECIPES

Dear Editor, Social Corner Sisters and Readers of the Corner: I am sending a few recipes that you will be more than pleased with after having tried them. You know he who saves for a rainy day, won't be running round looking for a financial umbrella shoud that time come.

Fish and Hominy Loaf: Cook 1-3 pound of hominy until thick. To this add one can of salmon, mashed fine. Stir all together, salt to taste, mold in a pan, when cold, mold in 1-2 inch pieces, roll in corn meal and fry in hot fat. The flavor is just like fresh fish and will keep for days.

Fried Clams: One quart with their liquor, cracker crumbs, salt. Clean clams, stir into the clams and liquor, enough salted cracker crumbs to make a stiff batter. Fry in half butter and half lard or all butter.

Fricasee of Fish: This makes a casserole dish. Beat some smoothed mashed potato, with a little milk and butter until light and creamy, season with salt and pepper, then add the stiffly beaten white of an egg. Turn the potato into your buttered casserole and mold into a round case. Smooth with a knife which has been dipped in hot water, brush over with egg yolk and brown in hot oven. Make a sauce with 1 tablespoon of butter and 1 of flour to each 1-2 cup of milk, add a few drops of onion juice. Remove the skin and bones from some cooked white fish. Divide into flakes and heat in the sauce. Take the potato case from the oven. Fill with the fish and scatter chopped parsley over the top.

Toasted Bread: Cut thin slices of bread, butter the inside of the bread and toast the outside. This has the butter melted in the center and the toasted outside is delicious with coffee.

This is toasted bread with the bread being toasted before frying. Four slices of bread evenly toasted, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons bacon fat. Put toasted bread in a bowl, beat egg, add milk, sugar and salt. Put bacon fat in frying pan. Dip toast in egg mixture then put in frying pan brown and serve with maple syrup.

Apple Snow: Beat whites of 4 eggs, then grate three medium sized apples. Sweeten to taste. Beat thoroughly together, serve cold with custard sauce. This is fine for children.

GUESS WHO?

STUFFED TOMATOES

Dear Social Corner Friends: I think it is a shame to be as lazy as I am. But I am not lazy when it comes to reading. The Bulletin every Saturday morning. I am the first one to read it.

Well I hope that some of the sisters enjoyed the nice snow we had this winter. I was out sleigh ridand I do like snow.

Well spring will soon be here and it will soon be time to plant vegetables, and flowers. I am a lover of flowers.

I will ask if some of the sisters would send in a good recipe for Brown bread.

Here is a recipe for stuffed tomatoes with egg and pepper.

Stuffed Tomatoes: Cut the inside from large solid tomatoes and refill with a mixture of equal parts of chopped sweet, green peppers, well moistened with melted butter and onion juice and seasoned with salt. Put in a baking dish, cover, and let bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Tomatoes may be stuffed in a great variety of ways using fillings of chopped onion, fried cucumber spinach or bread dressing with sage. Wish you all good night and good luck.

Dear Editor and Members: I would like to join the Social Corner if there is room. I haven't been to any of the meetings yet but know some of the members that go and have such good times that I want to go. I will take as my pen name if there isn't one like it.

LONG A MEMBER OF THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: If I do not hurry I will never get around. I do believe in the once a month letter for it gives us a good chance to air the mind and keep in touch with all the sisters. I did not get my letter in in February for there were not days enough in the month for me to turn around in and if I do not be careful and get a move on they will have to add a few more days to March. I was snowed in for three weeks. We had so much snow we would have given some away and if we had seen some one taking any without asking for it we would not had them arrested for stealing. After the snow we had ice and then a nice pond. The birds enjoyed the latter. What fun they did have bathing. Have fed them all winter and they came right up on the door step for their breakfast. I have attended the Social Corner gatherings which is going some for me. When Married and Happy gave her first at home for Social Corner sisters I had the great pleasure of standing to watch the first Social Corner parade. I was the only one on the reviewing stand. As they passed by they looked at me and I looked at them. They were all modest women as they passed by they did not speak to me or I to them. But not so now. That is now something of the past for now I never heard of one Social Corner sister passing another one without a friendly greeting. I think I felt rather proud to be in the parade on March 10 where I marched up Main street in Willimantic with Nellie Bly as my pal to be at the 16th anniversary. It meant a great deal to me as that place was once my home. I had the pleasure of meeting with old friends and neighbors and they did surely look good to me.

The say a woman is modest about her age. I am just one year younger than the Social Corner, as I wrote after the Corner was about a year old. I have never been sorry I wrote that first letter the Social Corner Woodbox. The Man of the house, the lessons in tatting and the friendship of so many lovely women has helped to make those 15 years pass very pleasantly.

Many thanks for the lovely calendar received.

Best wishes from

SISTER READY.

FACE CREAM

Dear Corner Members: I am sending by request a face cream recipe and then use no other. Rose water 8 ounces; almond oil, 8 ounces; spermaceti, 2 ounces; white wax, 2 ounces; benzoin, 2 drachms. Heat oils together in double boiler then beat in liquids and beat till all is a fine cream. Put in wide mouthed jars and keep covered when not in use. I know anyone who makes this will be pleased. I have a good flesh building cream if any one would like it.

To make a writer of yourself is not nearly as easy as you think or imagine. But if you have any good ideas write them out and see what you can do. Write on one side of the paper only. Put your name and address in the upper right hand corner of the manuscript, and enclose it with return postage to the editor of the publication in which you think your story is best suited.

I wish you good luck. I have written a great many stories but have sold a very few. I haven't sent them out but am going to trot them out soon.

Dear Sister L: I've imitated C. Columbus more than once, and "discovered" new worlds, or thought I did, and woke out of my dreams and found it was the same old world after all, and somebody did the discovering long before I appeared on the scene and as Janette says, "Still I got the thrill of believing and that is something, and the old world took on added glories, because I thought it new." But the best "new world," and the one that kept "new" the longest was the world of magic, mystery, dreams, fears, delight, torments that opened up before me with little lips to call me mother, and little minds looked at me for directions day by day, and now you have your little one, and have discovered it for yourself. You'll find something new and wonderful to be interested in each day. You say the baby needs attention all the time. Let the baby alone some of the time during this the first year. Let nature have a chance at him for soul and body it really has the growing life in charge though you are important in your job of seeing that the little body is not weakened by too much food, late hours, excitement and dirt.

The "problem" is really simple.

It begins and ends with you. You can be a "good mother" without being a fussy one and it's the first years while the back yard of the park is their world and makes the foundation for all the years to stand upon. And don't let anyone persuade you to give up the joy of those first years. When kissing and cuddling of soft little bodies make you feel that the mischief and naughtiness is just a little funny and "perfectly dear."

If you manage to keep your grip on the baby mind; if you make the baby understand that in your arm is comfort and that you shut out by some magic, the hurts and perplexities of living, it won't be so difficult to keep the child near you in heart and in mind. Keep it coming to "mother" with the bigger hurts, the more difficult problems that come with life.

Give the baby a fair start if you want the finish to be worth while. One thing you must remember that your child is going to have a few "hateful ways" (as the neighbors see it) like any child of the street. Don't expect them to be angels, nor protest that they are, but get the little fellow ready for the "growing of wings," by grounding him in a firm faith in His of whom the angels sang.

KITTY LOU.

RED HAIR

Dear Corner Sisters: Here is a little subject on red hair. Red hair usually known as "sandy" and auburn is the kind of hair that the great painter Titian admired and introduced into his pictures. He compared it to a halo or crown of gold. The possessor of red hair has often a refined face to correspond. So with a crown of beauty and a refined face one may become a charming lady if she dresses tastefully. So don't despise your hair, you who have red hair but treasure it and make the most of it. Never wet it, but brush it carefully as though every thread was gold. Arrange it in a loose, easy style, so that it will really carry out Titian's idea of a halo, and always have fluffy waves above the face, but never have straight bangs. Never wear any color that will deaden its sunshiny effect. A red haired person cannot wear red or pink, because her hair contains all the bright color her face can bear. Red or pink placed near her face makes it look more florid than it really is. She cannot wear blue near her face, unless it is a pale blue, as her eyes are usually pale blue, and any color of blue darker than her eyes would make them look washed out, like a piece of ribbon. But still the darker shades of blue and also green contrast agreeably with the hair and may be worn with a quantity of soft, cream white lace around the throat, so it will contrast with the eyes. Violet looks well with the hair, but it wipes out the blue eyes, and its excessive warmth would add to the redness of the face.

A red haired woman may wear a dress of black, seal brown, olive, sage grey or white. Black is becoming to everybody and can be contrasted with any color except brown. Seal brown is a remarkably happy choice for a red haired woman. With seal brown as the lowest tone and the gold in her hair as the highest, she can exhibit in the same costume a charming scale of color. Olive, sage, and grey dressed may be relieved by pale blue or pale green ribbons. Pearl and silver ornaments are preferred to golden ones. Gloves may be black, tan or neutral tints.

Black Eyed Susie: Your nice letter at hand. Will answer soon.

I wish to thank Whildwind, Saville, Saville's Daughter, E. L. M., Eca, Interested Reader, Aries, Catnip and B E Susie for booklets, letters and cards for my birthday also kind greetings from Balsam Fir. Hope the starters of the Shore Line club had a goodly number and that some one of the club newly formed will send in an account that all other clubs may know what success they had.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

WAY DOWN IN OLD VIRGINIA

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Sweet are the romances of old Virginia. Immediately upon leaving Washington the soft languor of the south becomes apparent. The drowsy southern winds seemingly whisper these old time romances, and the plaintive melodies of the plantation songs are seemingly a part of this land of sunshine.

One cannot enter this dreamy atmosphere without realizing the heartfelt longing expressed in the old plantation song, Carry Me Back to Old Virginia.

All this section is rich in romance. Within this area were the homes and early associations of so many of the presidents of the United States and the battlefields of the Revolutionary and Civil wars.

Fredericksburg, one of the cultured cities of the south, still maintains its original characteristics, and its truly American atmosphere and historic background, offers a delightful comparison in these days of foreign intrusion. The old houses bear the lines of two or more centuries ago and have settled into stern antiquity. Some of these old homes are open to the public and many of them are inscribed with items of historic interest. The Mary Washington home, the original home of the mother of George Washington, Kenmore, built in 1752 by Fielding Lewis, one of the original landowners for his wife Betty, George Washington's only sister. The Rising Sun Inn, the stopping place of Washington, Lafayette and other leaders, are some of the picturesque places.

In the vicinity of Fredericksburg on Mareye's Heights, in December 1862, was fought one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil war.

In the Confederate cemetery, unchanged since the days of '63, are the rows of little white slabs which mark the graves of 1,500 Confederate soldiers. In the centre of this enclosure stands a monument with the words To the Confederate Dead. The grim soldier with his weapon of defense is looking afar over the fields of battle, even to the visible outlying hills from which the city was bombarded. There are those living who remember the bombardment of Fredericksburg.

In the National cemetery, on Willis hill, a part of Mareye's Heights, where the battle of December 1862 was fought, are 15,395 soldiers graves, of which only 2,500 are known. This is said to be one of the largest national burial plots in the south.

The old Farmer's hotel, where the planters came every year to buy or sell slaves is still standing. An old Negro was reclining on the old slave block, where he said his mother was sold as a slave in 1860.

But the genial hospitality and charm of the native southerner cannot be overlooked, nor their loyalty to old Virginia. The distinguishing feature, however, is that of being related to a president, and the honor is equal to that of the Mayflower immigration in the north.

The south today is the land of promise and attraction, and it certainly has its fascinations. It is the land of opportunity and progress.

In the Presbyterian church the colored choirs of the city were invited to sing the Sunday evening I spent in Fredericksburg, and the real old time darkey melodies were sung by genuine songsters in dialect. Swing Low Sweet Chariot, Speed Away, and the revival songs of the race were sung in true fantastic style. This was singing with vital feeling and inimitable rythm coming stright form the hearts of a simple people. These songs have a fine poetical spirit, and in their own sphere carry as much art and eloquence as heard in the cathedrals of Europe.

But six or more miles back in the country where the Five Mile fork or the Zion church is the mark of embarkation from the main highway over the country roads, there exists in certain seasons of the year a peculiar interest, which is concentrated in clay pits (Virginia mud is a sticker) which are indescribable. The darling little mare Flossie pulled me through five or more miles of Virginia clay, and when solid ground was again under foot that little creature was ecstatically embraced. Yet, when I reached Rosslands and relaxed before a Virginia wood fire, I began to realize the heart yearnings that are anticipated in the sunny south.

But the beautiful valley of Virginia offers a compensation. In either direction stretch forests of green spruce, pine and balsam. In some places these forests have been cleared and a road trailed through the underbrush. The nearby Rappahannock river winds through its midst, and the line of the Blue Ridge mountains dims the horizon. It is said that the "mountains of Virginia have looked down upon and have heard the reverberation of cannon more than any other mountains in the world." The country houses are some distance apart, and have no means of communication with the town. Through this valley the sunsets are gorgeous, illuminating the whole western horizon, and encircling the distant mountains with a glorious blaze of light.

I hold in mind these parting words "You will come again!" How can I help it?

THE CLOT OF BLOOD IN THE APPLE

Dear Corner Sisters: There is a curious Connecticut fruit that is said to carry a Cain mark.

The story of the Mike apple and the drop of blood in it is a familiar one in New London county, and old people never tire of relating it.

In almost every country town in this part of Connecticut, where the fruit originated, is to be found one or more Mike apple trees, and at this time of the year children vie with each other in getting the first amber hued windfalls and finding the drops of blood in them. Sometimes the drop is found just under the silver skin, a thin streak of carmine that penetrates to the core and that colors the silvery pulp, if touched, as a drop of blood might do. Often it is an isolated clot as large as a whortle berry, and sometimes the apple is banded by a narrow crescent of crimson that reaches half around the fruit on the outside of the rind.

Apples thus marked present a very striking appearance, the crimson patch being so clearly defined and so vivid in contrast with the silvery green rind. They are always regarded with romantic interest by their possessors.

The mike apples is just ripe now. Never was the fruit fairer than this season, and the trees are heavily laden. The old tree on which the queer fruit first appeared, in the town of Franklin, about six miles north of this city, perished many years ago, but shoots spring from the roots, and one of these is a large tree whose branches are bowed with luscious apples this season. It is on the farm of Jack Armstrong, the miller at Peck Hollow, a wild romantic glen, on the line of the New London northern railroad, near the center of the town. A squat, weather beaten old farm house, a few rods from the depot, was home of Micah Rood (Mike,) whose name the ill-mannered fruit bears, and the "mike tree" is at the back of the house where the garden slopes into an old apple orchard.

From this tree and its predecessor were taken the sprouts and seed by means of which all the mike apples have been propagated in eastern Connecticut.

From it Hezekiah Huntington of this town took away a few days ago an apple, clearly marked with the rare crimson outside hand.

The red path scimeter shaped, about one half the size of the fruit, is as distinctly traced and is of as deep a blood color, as though blood had been painted on it with a brush. The rest of the rind is of a rich glistening amber hue In a little work compiled by a logical historian in Connecticut with the local celebration in 1868 of the 150th anniversary of the founding of Franklin Congregational society, this authentic account of Mike and his famous apple tree is given:

Rood, Micah, the youngest son of Thomas, was an early settler upon the east side of the Shetucket. Micah had upon his farm an apple tree which bore large, fair fruit, but always with a red globule like a clot of blood near the center of each apple. The apple, which had become a great favorite in this vicinity and is called the Mike apple from its originator, still retains this peculiarity and is the object of much curiosity. This story of its origin, handed down from father to son for over 100 years, has at length grown to be a fixed tradition, implicitly believed. As the story runs a peddler entered town, vending that costly and luxurious wares as had never been seen before in the settlement. The simple Micah, dazzled by the display, invited the peddler to his house, and at an evil moment plunged his knife to his heart, beneath this very tree, so that his life blood flowed down and mingled with his roots.

The next spring its blossoms changed from snowy white to red, and in August when the apples cam tumbling down—large and yellow, and juicy—there hung in every one a drop of blood. There they lay before the terrified Micah the evidence of his now never to be forgotten deed. With nature in spring time and autumn so strangely promoting the goad of his conscience, who shall wonder that the simple hearted Micah should change into morose and melancholy man and lead an accursed life? Such was the fact. Time went for naught but the memory of his crime, business was neglected, and soon from a prosperous farmer he became a pauper, dependent upon the charities of the community. In 1717 he was glad to increase his slender means by assuming charge of the meeting house, receiving therefor a peck of corn yearly from each family in the society.

Of his last years, or pauper death, the record tells briefly but scientifically: July 6, 1727. The inhabitants do now, by their vote, agree to allow to each man who watches with Micah Rood two shillings per night. Also to those who have attended ad Rood by day three shillings per day.

Dec. 17, 1728, to Jacob Hyde, for digging Micah Rood's grave, L 0. 4 s. 0d.

In fact of the facts, who shall pronounce the story of Micah Rood a fiction, or think it too strange that nature should record her horror of human crime?

Two foot notes accompany the account.

Thirty years ago it was called indifferently the Mike or the Rood apple, but now the former name has generally obtained.

October ye first day, 1717, ye society agreed by their vote yet each family shall give Micah Rood a peck of corn for sweeping ye meetinghouse one year.

The foregoing is an unvarnished tale. Tradition depicts him as a simple natured good hearted fellow, the favorite of all the neighborhood children.

Each year, when the apples became mellow on the early tree in the garden, the children stopped at the garden gate on their way from school and Mike brought to them armsful of the fruit.

In the September following the crime the children stopped at the gate, and Mike met them with a sad face.

"The tree is cursed children," said he.

"There is blood in the apples," he added after a moment, moodily shaking his head; it is the peddlers blood."

The children were persistent, however, in demanding the apples, and Mike finally yielded. He went to the tree and returned with an armful, which he gave to them. Then pulling out his jackknife he split one of the apples in twain. A bright stain followed the blade and colored the pulp from rind to core. "There!" he exclaimed, you see the blood. He turned away, and went into his house muttering. It was his partial admission of guilt to the children that first led his neighbors to suspect that he was the cause of the peddlers mysterious disappearance.

The tradition hat it that Mike, instead of dying a pauper, hanged himself to a limb of the tree under which he had buried the peddler.

The Mike apple has a tart agreeable flavor, and it is one of the best early fruits.

A fine large Mike apple tree is on the Pine Tree farm at East Great Plains in this town.

All the trees are distinguished by blood red blossoms.

It is a popular belief that the stain does not appear in the fruit from a grafted tree. Propagation can be accomplished only by planting seed or transplanting shoots.

There were two Mike Rood trees on the farm where I spent some of my childhood.

This account was taken from a scrap book used by Nathan D. Morgan of Norwich Town in 1837.

FIRST MEETING OF THE SHORE LINE CLUB

Dear Editor and Sisters: I will write a few lines this morning as I want to say the first meeting of the Shore Line club held with Tatting Tuesday, March 16, was a decided success. 19 ladies and one gentleman (the little son of Tatting) being present. At the close of the program an original poem was read by Interested Reader.

The ladies present not members decided to join the Social Corner. Thank all who helped make the first meeting a success.

Best wishes to all.

SOME ONE WHO CANNOT SEE

Dear Members and Editor: So glad to see the members keeping the page full of interesting letters. The pussy willows are peeping out, so we know spring, beautiful spring, is almost here. How thankful we ought to be for the gift of sight! One sister wrote about being passed by a friend without recognition. I used to be very much grieved by people not recognizing me when we met. But since my eyesight has become so poor I can say—the reason people pass without nodding is that they cannot see. I used to be told that was the reason but I would not believe it until my own eyes became affected to such an extent that I am unable to recognize people as they pass.

Rural Aunty: What wonderful music selections we hear over the radio! We had the opera from Boston the other evening.

Esmaralda: Why so silent? Tell us about the Garden of Eden.

Best wishes from

ARIES.

TOO BUSY TO WRITE

Dear Social Corner Members: It has been a long time since I wrote although not for the lack of interest because I do love to read the letters. They are all so interesting. But I have been very busy papering and painting at home and going nursing. I am out at present but expect to be home Friday. Well, Lucy Acorn, I know those chicks are lovely as where I am staying they just received three thousand and they are lovely.

Nelly Bly: Where are you?

Well, Plain Nancy and I had a very nice chat with Calla Lily Christmas. I heard Plain Nancy was sick but thought she must be better as May B saw her at the whist club. Had a letter from Merry Widow and she thought she would go to the anniversary meeting. All good wishes for the success of the Corner.

DUDLEY'S WIFE. (Club No. 2., Oct. 5.)

ALL SEASONS PLEASE

Dear Social Corner Members: We read with much interest the letters from old time members in the anniversary number. There have also been many helpful hints and suggestions from new and old members.

Like many others we are looking forward to warm weather and the pleasant tasks of that season when we can be out of doors or inside as one may choose. However there is much of interest in each season. The winter time has the pleasant cozy evenings around the fireside for reading music or sewing, the summer time for auto trips, picnics and summer tasks, the autumn when the harvest comes, and I would not care to eliminate any of them.

With best wishes to all.

JIM AND CALIFORNIA POPPY.

GREETINGS FROM COSMOS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I can talk much better than write. Who would not like Taft's date pie, especially with whipped cream?

Wonder if Effie M. found a chair at the anniversary with collers on it?

E. (L. M. is out to start a Shore Line club. Hope no one else will spill coffee on her.

Spring weather will soon be upon us when we can start our housecleaning and get our rake, shovel, hoe and lawn mower and enjoy ourselves after a long cold and snowy winter. Hoping I may do better next time. With good wishes to the Shore Line club.

WHITE FEATHER CAKE

Dear Social Corner Friends, one and all: Just a few words of greetings, as I have not written for some time. I do so enjoy reading the lovely letters each week, and I only wish I were able to attend the lovely social gatherings at Clubs No. 2 and 5.

J. E. T.: How are you and hubby this fine weather? Suppose you are very busy planning how to plant your garden seeds to raise the largest crop, ha, ha.

Aunt Merusha: Would like to call on you and fake dinner with you as Violet told me you had recently butchered a pig and I am very fond of spareribs, ha, ha.

Peter Prose: You certainly know how to send in good recipes as well as poetry to our Social Corner page.

L. T. H.: I think you have a birthday the 21st. I am going to send you a card. Hope you get it all right. Was sorry to hear you were sick.

White Feather Cake: 1-2 cup butter, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 3-4 cups cold water, 2 1-4 cups of flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 5 egg whites, 1 teaspoon of vanilla.

Cream butter and sugar, alternately the in the water and flour which has been mixed and sifted with the baking powder. Lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and flavoring. Bake in layers in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes. Frost with boiled frosting and sprinkle with cocoanut if desired.

Will close for this will never get beyond the waste basket if I don't.

JUST I.

PINEAPPLE DESSERT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have been trying for two weeks to answer Joan's request to repeat the recipe for pineapple dessert but Wednesday passes very quickly. Was pleased that she and Silent Partner liked it.

Pineapple Dessert: Put 1 cup of brown sugar in your iron skillet add 2 tablespoons butter and allow the mixture to cook together. Now lay slices of pineapple all over the top of the mixture. Make a crust as follows: one tablespoon butter creamed with one cup sugar, add 1 egg well beaten, pinch of salt and 3-4 cup milk. Add 1 1-2 cups flour sifted with 1 1-2 teaspoon baking powder. Spread over the mixture and bake for 20 minutes or until crust is nicely browned. Turn out upside down and serve with whipped cream. Very nice without cream.

Calla Lily: I tried your recipe for your yum yum cake and it was fine.

Lucy Acorn: Glad to see a letter from you last week. Don't think you will have much spare time if you take care of those chickens. Too cold to clean house now. It snows about every day a little.

Delilah Deal: You have my heart felt sympathy.

Diana: I am afraid you have a very poor opinion of me. I have owed you a letter so long, but will write soon.

DELIGHT, (Sept. 12.)

SHORE LINE STRONG AND HUSKY

Dear Social Corner Folks: Have just returned home from the first meeting of the Shore Line club where we all had a jolly time and such wonderful eats" especially those baked by E. L. M.

We also enjoyed the entertainment furnished by several members, and among other things learned what not to put up for our son's lunches.

For a new club the Shore Line seems very strong and husky with every indication of rapid growth.

Am enclosing a recipe for caramel cake which one sister asked for.

Caramel Cake: 2 cups milk, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups flour, 2 eggs (yolks in cake, whites for frosting), 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 cup grated chocolate, 4 teaspoons baking powder. Boil together the chocolate, sugar, yolks of eggs and half of the milk; when cold add the rest and bake, cover with boiled frosting.

Best wishes to all

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the old Norwich almshouse was totally destroyed by fire with a toll of 14 lives. All the dead were inmates of the almshouse and burned to death, being unable to escape from the building. Wauregan Hook and Ladder company held its annual banquet the same week and the New London County Agricultural society officers at a meeting named the judges for the society's annual exhibition.

Interesting extracts taken from the files of the Norwich Bulletin of 1876, are as follows:

Monday, March 13, 1876—A few minutes before 11 o'clock last night the town almshouse, which is situated on the west side of Yantic cove, was found to be on fire. The fire was discovered by one of the inmates who was awakened by the smoke. He at once wakened Mr. G. M. Mills, the superintendent, and the two attempted to enter the cellar where the heating apparatus was situated but found the smoke too dense. Mr. Mills sent the other man to give the alarm in the city and at once proceeded to rouse the occupants of the house. There were 55 of these, many of them were invalides and it was necessary to carry them out.

The alarm was given in the city from box 14, at the corner of Main and Thames street. The firemen turned out promptly but owing to the distance to the fire from the nearest hose house and the heavy road they were obliged to take it was beyond control before they reached it.

Shortly after Chief Engineer Carrier reached the fire he ordered a general alarm which brought out the entire department. The injured are Nancy Raymond, colored, one leg broken; Mary McDougall, both legs broken and a woman named Quinn who is hurt generally. The almshouse was a large brick structure, three stories high with Mansard roof and two large wings. It was erected about 12 years ago and was a valuable building. Nothing was saved from it, not even the clothing of the inmates. The loss will not be far from $18,000 with insurance of $5,000. The authorities desire us to appeal to the charitable for clothing for the people rescued from the almshouse. Contributions may be sent to police headquarters.

Tuesday, March 14, 1876—The last 24 hours have shown the fire at the poor house to be one of the most shocking disasters ever known in this section. Seven bodies were taken from the ruins yesterday. The search for the dead was begun as early as possible yesterday morning.

At the third annual reunion of the National Union or Andersonville survivors, which has been announced as to be held in Grand Army hall, Norwich, Conn., there will be present many survivors from all portions of the country. Incidental responses have already been received from persons as far south as Texas and as far west as Wyoming territory. Invitations are to be issued to all known survivors.

A large audience gathered at the Broadway church last evening to hear the Rev. George F. Pentecost, D. D. of Boston. His subject was healing of the ten lepers.

Wednesday, March 15, 1876—The search at the almshouse was continued all day for the missing. At the time of our last report seven bodies had been recovered from the ruins and during the day six more were found. They were all shockingly burned, being little more than cinders. Of all the thirteen some have been positively identified. It is now thought that all the bodies have been found except probably one or two.

Although the celebration of the national feast of the Irish people in this city will be confined this year to the Ancient Order of Hibernians of New London county, the managers are confident, should the weather prove favorable, that it will be a fine and successful effort.

A Preston man has been missing for three days, and as he was recently married grave doubt exists as to whether he is sitting around in a barn loft somewhere meditating on the price of spring bonnets or has merely drowned himself.

Friday, March 17, 187—A large number of the members of the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company, with invited guests, assembled in the handsome parlors of the company last evening to partake of the annual supper which has become an institution in the annals of that organization. A special meeting was held early in the evening to receive a delegation from the Excelsior Hook & Ladder company of Willimantic, who presented to the Wauregan boys a handsomely engrossed and frame set of resolutions as a testimonial of appreciation of the courteous treatment the Excelsiors received when at the parade in this city last May. Captain Clark received the testimonial on behalf of the company.

The case of Bartholomew Shurrup, rescued through a window, is very singular. This man has been a raving maniac for many years and it has been impossible to keep even a thread of clothing on him. He was rescued through a window. He is now perfectly quiet and contented—decently clothed and moves around whenever he chooses. Yesterday he asked for a pocket handkerchief.

SOCIAL CORNER

NEW CLUB DECIDED SUCCESS

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: I feel I must write and tell you that our Shore Line club meeting at the home of Tatting on March 16 was a decided success and Tatting interested reader and myself feel well repaid for what we have done in getting the club started. Members were present from Mystic, Westerly, North Stonington and Bradford, most of them bringing a friend or two with them, and they too joined our club, so that now we have 19 members. We thank all who helped to furnish the entertainment in the afternoon which consisted of reading by O. D., E. Natural and Maybe. There were solos by Fanny. Interested Reader read an original poem How the Shore Line Club Was Started.

The Shore Line club meeting day will be the third Tuesday in the month. The next meeting will be held April 20, at the home of Rebecca who will be hostess for the day with Cosmos and Dorothy Bradford as helpers. Directions for finding the place will be given later. E. L. M.

A FRIEND OF THE SOCIAL CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: While living in the city now one of the largest in our state I was a subscriber to the Courier as I was anxious to keep informed on my native town and other places nearby and when the Social Corner was started never missed reading the letters and if my memory serves me correctly sent a few letters to the women's page. Have continued a steady reader receiving much useful information and comfort from the sisters letters. Circumstances necessitated our leaving the city after a quarter of a century and now are back near my former home and instead of taking the Courier the Bulletin is left at the door every morning. I want to be a member of the Social Corner and send a letter occasionally and do my duty giving something for what I receive. Will take for my pen name,

B. NATURAL.

TWO WORTHWHILE IDEAS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The sun is shining, the birds are singing and incidentally house cleaning time is here again. So let us be thankful that we can see the sun, hear the birds and yes, thankful also for the housecleaning. That's if we are able to do it, eh?

Here are a few helps that I found while little Susie was sick in bed.

In order not to disturb her while she was asleep I put coal into small paper bags and laid them in the stove without a sound and you all know the noise made with coal from the bod.

Then I took an orange box covered one end and all around with cretonne and stood it on end side of the bed. It was just the right height for her to lay things on and when she was through with her books and papers she had the shelf to hide them on. That was the board that separates the box in two parts. It is very handy if there is only a small space on one side of the bed.

E. L. M. and Tatting: Thought of you Tuesday. Suppose the Shore Line club is well established by now.

Hope that all the sick are on the road to recovery and that all will have a happy Easter.

COURTSHIP RECIPE

Social Corner Editor: I attended a Social Corner meeting at the home of Tatting and I enjoyed it so much that I should very much like to become a member and may I have a pin please?

Here is a recipe for courtship:

Two or three dears and two or three sweets;
Two or three balls and two or three treats,
Two or three serenades given as a lure;
Two or three oaths, how much they endure;
Two or three messages sent in one day,
Two or three times led out from the play;
Two or three soft speeches made by the way;
Two or three tickets for two or three times;
Two or three love letters with all in rhyme;
Two or three months keeping study to these rules.
Can never fail making a couple of fools.

I will take for my penname.

RACHEL OUT OF HOSPITAL

Dear Sisters: I have at last got back home which seems fine to me after being in the hospital four weeks. I am feeling pretty good now. I can walk on crutches a little but it is hard work for me as I am quite weak.

I wish to thank Club No. 3 for the beautiful daffodils they sent me. I thought of you sisters a number of times while lying in bed. Also want to thank other sisters for the cards I received.

Papa's Boy: I certainly enjoyed hearing from you. How are the children?

Diamond: Don't forget to come up. It will be a long while before I can get out.

Now I will close as I am getting rather tired. It don't take but little to make me tired. I am so weak.

Best wishes to all the sisters.

RACHEL.

SHORE LINE CLUB STARTED

Dear Social Corner Friends: Though the interest taken by E. L. M., Interested Reader and Tatting, a Shore Line Social Corner club has been formed.

In the Norwich Bulletin and The Westerly Sun invitations were extended to all persons who were interested in forming a Shore Line club to meet at the home of Tatting Stonington, Conn., on March 16, 1926.

Nineteen ladies today met at Tatting's home of whom seven were Social Corner members and eleven others signified their intentions of joining the Corner by writing letters as soon as possible and thereby automatically becoming members of the Shore Line club.

At noon, a bountiful dinner was served to which all did justice.

Sometime was spent in getting better acquainted with one another and in entertainment.

Fanny Ill entertained with ukulele and vocal music.

A number of readings were given. Interested Reader reading an original poem, How the Shore Line club originated.

Plans were made for the next meeting to be held April 16, 1926 at the home of Rebecca in North Stonington, Conn., she and Cosmos acting as hostesses. Dorothy Bradford will have charge of the entertainment. A vote of thanks was given to Tuberia's Assistance, Tatting, E. L. M. and Interested Reader and all felt they had more than done their part in getting the club started.

BEING A MOTHER

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I guess you think it about time this sister wrote again. I was reading a story about being a good loving mother was the hardest thing in the world and I began to believe it too. For it is hard to say the right thing at the right time. Mother has got to keep smiling every day of her life. No matter what comes she must keep smiling. It is just like a lesson, you've got to learn the way. First of all she must not to love and she must teach her children to love. She must trust them and teach them to put their trust in her. If she teaches them right in the home that teaching will go through life.

You cannot put off your boys and girls with any kind of answers. You must talk to them in a way they understand. If it isn't right to do things mother must tell them so and why. They should not be afraid to come and talk to their mother. Don't get your children afraid of you. Teach them to love their home. Make things happy there and do not let them run to the streets too much.

The mother of a family needs not only to smile but to teach her family to smile. I may again it is the hardest thing to be a mother for they look to her for everything. She must learn to say the right words in the right place.

Best wishes to the Corner.

RINCKLET.

DELIAN DEAL RECOVERING

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Through the request of Mrs. George Robinson (Delial Deal) I am writing to tell you how she is getting along.

It has been three weeks Friday, March 12, since she has been in bed. Mrs. A. Soule of Wickford, R. I., has been with her since her husband passed away. She was taken sick a week after with nervous prostration. Mrs. Soule has gone home for a week and Mrs. F. Fields a trained nurse is caring for her until Mrs. Soule returns. She has gotten where she sits up a little every day and finds she is gaining quite a little.

She wants to express her appreciation to all who have been kind to her and hopes that some day she'll be able to write for herself. She also would be very glad to recieve callers at any time.

Ma of Green Gables: She has lost the recipe you gave her for corn flake macaroons. Would you please send it to her or print it in the Social Corner? Thank you in advance. Will close with best wishes to the editor and the Social Corner sisters.

M. A. K. for DELIAN DEAL.

A PLAIN CAKE

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: What a nice time we had at Club No. 2's meeting. I did enjoy it. If I could go oftener to the meetings I would like it better, but I can't leave home. I have not had time to write for some time. I am living with my daughter this winter and have my husband and sister to care for and two small children, so I have my hands full because the others work and two go to school.

Will send my recipe for a plain cake. My granddaughters like it very much and perhaps the sisters will.

Plain cake: Two eggs, one cup sugar, four tablespoons melted butter or lard, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup water or milk, 2 1-2 cups flour, teaspoon vanilla.

Hope the sisters try and like the cake. VIRA.

CORNER GAINS NEW MEMBER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Have read some of your interesting letters and would like to become a member.

Think I know several of you.

Did you have a nice time yesterday, O. D.?

E. L. M.: I hear you were present also. Wish I could have been with you. Stonington isn't very far from my home.

If this misses the waste basket I'll write again. Sincerely

AMERICAN GIRL.

Dear Editor: Upon attending the 16th anniversary of the Social Corner held at Willimantic Wednesday March 10th, and seeing the great possibilities to be derived from it to humanity, I feel I should like to become a member. If there are any pins may I obtain one? Thank you.

POMFRET

Rev. George J. Donahue of Pomfret gave a highly praised address on "The Spiritual Value of Good Reading" before a large audience of the Hartford Council of Catholic Women at headquarters, 244 Main street, Hartford. Mrs. M. J. Morrissey, chairman of the council, presided at the meeting and the appreciation of the guests was most enthusiastic. Father Donahue urged his audience to cultivate a taste for the best in literature, as the lover of books is never lonely. The saying that "Success begets Success" does not apply to literature. The best books have usually been brought forth through painstaking effort, suffering and pain. Too frequently when a writer has gained popularity he writes hurriedly for commercial returns, consequently his work suffer in actual literary merit. Father Donahue quoted from the writings of Cicero and Caesar, and gave many illustrations from modern books. He urged his listeners to read Abbe Pierre and Kathleen Norris' novelette called "Mother." He urged them to go back and read some of the early novels of Dickens and other writers of that period and cultivate a love for poetry by reading aloud a poem a day. The real book-worm, one who has acquired a love for reading, enjoys the companionship of his books in sickness when he is deprived of all other pleasures.

WESTERLY

WHITFORD'S CRIMINAL RECORD HELPS SEND HIM TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 19—In the session of Third District court Friday morning which lasted until noon, Judge Oliver H. Williams called the following:

Criminal docket: State, Thomas E. Brown of chief of police of Westerly, vs. Percy L. Perry. Continued two weeks; vs. Tryon Whitford Marked ready; vs Julia Davis Marked ready; vs. Henry F. Narone. Continued two weeks; vs. Samuel A. Main. Continued two weeks; vs. James Gould. Continued one week and by agreement of Attornies Ferguson and Ledwidge, ready for trial. State, James E. Norman, state trooper, vs. Charles Golden. Continued one week. State, Elmer A. Smith, chief of police of Richmond, complainant, vs. John Habereck. Both Attorips Roche and Dunn were ready for trial, but defendant had not appeared. Pashed temporarily and later taken up for trial. Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci, alias. Continued for two weeks. Raffaelo Gastana vs. Wilbert Clarke. Continue done week. M. W. Arnberg Co., Inc., vs. Helen E. Collins. Plaintiff's Attorney Gallagher declared that the case had been settled.

Trial Calendar

State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, complainant, vs. Tyron Whitford of Westerly, was the first case taken up. The respondent was charged with being a lewd, wanton and lascivious person in speech and behaviour. The offence was alleged to have occurred on Saturday night a week ago when the defendant, colored, in attendance at a dance given by colored people at Caledonian hall, Westerly, was forcibly ejected. Patrolman George H. Champlin and Whitford at the time of the arrest rolled down the light of stairs leading from the dance hall on the floor above.

James Hazwell, a Westerly constable on duty at the hall, first witness for the state testified to seeing Whitford at the dance and described his conduct as "Looking for trouble." He had his cap and coat on and appeared under the influence of liquor. Going over to a table where refreshments were served he was reported to have said, when objection was raised to his pushing cake plates about on the table "You go to H——." That "No G—— d—— Nigger ladies" were going to tell him what to do. To Constable Maxwell he said "Take your G—— d—— hands off me!" and continued to push the plates around. Constable Maxwell went and got Patrolman Champlin and with the aid of Police Patrolman Curtin, Whitford was taken to Westerly police station. In reply to Attorney Turano who appeared for the defendant, Constable Maxwell said that he thought help was needed to remove Whitford from the hall and that the defendant used profane language several times, at the dance of the colored people which was attended y about a hundred.

Mrs. Frank Perry, Jr., testified that she was chairman of the committee which gave the dance and said that Whitford's condition showed him to be intoxicated.

Lyman F. Perry testified that he knew the "gentleman." the defendant who conducted himself as an intoxicated man in the small room 14' x 12' where there were chairs, benches and a stove and not room for more than seven persons. In answer to cross examination the witness said that he himself was not afraid of any man, because he had been a soldier in the World war.

Betty Stewart stated that Saturday night was the first time she had seen Whitford and at the dance he acted in an intoxicated manner.

Thomas Grayson corroborated the previous testimony and the state rested its case. Attorney Turano moved that the defendant be discharged, claiming that the charges were not substantiated. Town Solicitor Ferguson "refreshed" Judge Williams memory with the fact that while on the bench a few weeks ago the defendant's attorney as Judge Turano had found a respondent guilty who had used only one swear word in a similar case. The motion was overruled by Judge Williams and following the lawyers' pleas adjudged the respondent guilty as charged and sentenced him to six months' imprisonment in Providence county jail. When the amount of bail was asked to be set, Solicitor Ferguson read the following Norwich record of Whitford:

Octoebr 16, 1920, breach of peace, discharged; August 7, 1923, breach of peace and intoxication, fined $5 and costs; September 29, 1923, violation of automobile laws, nolled; October 14, 1923, breach of peace, nolled on payment of costs; April 30, 1924, breach of peace, 30 days in jail; December 20, 1924, breach of peace, sixty days in jail.

Judge Williams set the bail amount as $1,500. In case of an appeal and as a bondsman was not forthcoming Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell took Whitford to Providence county jail.

Tria lwas then begun i nthe case of State, Elmer A. Smith, chief of police of Richmond, vs. John Haberneck in which an assault was alleged as having been committed on Frank Knight of Westerly, deputy game commissioner when Haberneck was found setting snares on the farm of his son in Richmond. Defendant was represented by Attorney John Dunn, when Solicitor Clarence E. Roche for the state placed Frank Knight on the witness stand. Knight testified to going to the Richmond farm December 20th and that the defendant struck him several times with his fist and as a result of which the assault case was brought.

Howard Swan, deputy game commissioner, testified to visiting the Haberneck farm and to have witnessed the assault and said that he had placed the defendant under arrest and brought him to Westerly police station.

Other witnesses were Clarence Howard Swan, son of the game commissioner, and Chief of Police Elmer A. Smith, the complaining officer.

For the defense John Haberneck testified that he did not strike the officer and did not know but what he was a "bum" until he showed his badge. His son Frank Haberneck corroborated his father's evidence but said that some of the argument was only he ard by him as he was in a wooded patch looking over some traps.

Judge Williams found the respondent guilty and fined him $25 and costs.

When the case of the State, Thomas E. Brown vs Julia A. Davis, for the larceny of cloth at the Westerly Textile mill was called, Solicitor Ferguson told the court that a week ago a case was tried for the larceny of cloth when the man found guilty had placed the cloth in this accused's locker. He said that the officers of the Westerly Textile company and that the state recommended that the case be continued for sentence on defendant's own recognizance. Judge Williams declared the case continued for three months for final disposition and directed the withdrawal of the cash bail.

On complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Louis Guildiano and Frank Terranova were presented for an assault upon Annunziata Renna of Perkins avenue. Both entered pleas of not guilty nad were released on bail of $2,500 each, with their cases set down for trial April 2nd.

In the complaint alleged against Guildiano an assault Sunday, July 5, 1925, upon Renna, when he discharged a shot gun and wounded him. Through his interpreter J. P. Toscano, the accused claimed he did not know anything about it." On his bond went Michael and Louisa Rosso and Anna Gencesalla. It was alleged that an assault was made July 12, 1925, upon Renna with a revolver. Surety on his bail was Frank Sposato and Mario B. Sposato.

John Pendleton of Potter hill, is a patient at Westerly hospital, where he was taken a week ago Friday night, being struck by an automobile while walking home and near the Meeting House bridge over the Pawcatuck river. His condition continues serious and he is on the danger list. It is not positively determined whether he has a fracture of the skull or not. At the time of the accident he sustained a fractured pelvis and femur.

He spoke of the great advance in price of real estate near that which he bwns and closed by saying he was a booster for Florida—also for Mystic.

NOANK

VOLUNTEER FIRE COMPANY WANTS PUBLIC SUPPORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NOANK, March 19—Foreman W. R. Palmer, of the Noank fire company said yesterday:

"There are, among the townspeople, some who think about the fire protection of their homes. There are others who do not care about the fire department till their property is in danger, but there are very few who really know the fight it takes the department to keep its existence.

"The Noank Fire company has 55 paid members who pay dues at the rate of four dollars a year, making $220.00. This would not pay for the gasoline, oil and chemicals used in one year. The cost of running the department for 1925 is as follows:

"Coal $160, lights $37, telephone $26, insurance $25, janitor $120, secretary $25, state firemen's dues $10, chemicals, gas, oil, supplies for engine $250, total $653.

"On top of the current, expenses comes repair bills, hose and necessary equipment as follows:

"Hose $35, repairs $122, note to Winthrop Trust Co., $190, total $547.

"This makes the expense for the company over $1,300 a year toward which the dues bring in $220.

"As to equipment the company is in need of 1,000 feet of hose now, as it only has 850 feet on hand.

"This company does not own a helmet, rubber coat, pair of boots or mittens, which all well equipped companies have on hand. If the members answer an alarm without going home and dressing for a fire they are liable not only to lose their clothes but also their lives, as they have no protection either from falling articles, smoke or water.

"It is not fair play to expect a company of 55 men to come out on perhaps a zero night to protect property, and not give them in return, a help toward the upkeep.

"Again, it has been said that suppers which have been held in the rooms of the company were paid for out of money donated to the company. This is not so, as the members have always chipped in to pay these expenses, also expenses of trips out of town."

Asked if there was interest in the village in forming a fire district, a matter which years ago was fought for by a few, Mr. Palmer replied:

"Yes, there is considerable agitation for the forming of such a district for the purpose of raising money to keep the equipment in condition at all times. A petition has been drawn up and turned over to the town. There must be money to the amount of $1200 turned into the treasury of the fire department each year or there will be no fire department in Noank.

"The members will not work days on their own work and nights for a fire company in order to buy hose to protect people who do not recognise them.

"If every taxpayer paid to support the company it would be about one and one-quarter mill tax. Then the company would be well equipped and ready to answer any alarm without delay and it is well known that the first three minutes mean everything at a fire.

"The fair planned this coming month will just about cover what the company owes, and repairs on the building which must be made.

DECOY AT NEW LONDON WAS ABLE TO PURCHASE BOOZE AT PLACES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 18—The New London police this forenoon resorted to the tactics of using a stool pigeon for the purpose of obtaining evidence against two places long suspected of being resorts that dispensed liquor. As a result of the work of the stool pigeon two arrests were made and quantities of liquor were found in each place. The places raided were those of Harry Scheinman, 78 Washington street, corner of Brewer street, and Mrs. Bessie Lubchansky, 32 North Bank street. Scheinman, who is a shoemaker, was held in bail of $1500 and Mrs. Lubchansky was held in bail of $1,000. Both provided sureties on their respective bonds and will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning.

The services of the stool pigeon were obtained late yesterday and he at once started to collect the evidence for which he will receive a fee from the police court, $10 it is understood for each case where a conviction is secured. The fellow, the police declare visited the residences of Scheinman which has not had a good reputation for a couple of years, and Mrs. Lubchansky, where he purchased a half pint of liquor and after obtaining the bottled goods delivered them to the police. At one of the places, the Lubchansky house, it is understood, that the police gave the decoy $2 to purchase liquor and instead of paying that sum for the booze a sale was made for $2.00, the agent keeping the other dollar. With this information in their possession it was laid before Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky and a short time later Judge S. Victor Prince issued search warrants for both houses. A raiding squad consistin gof Sergeants Nelson Smith, John Cavanaugh and Samuel Hick and Patrolmen Frank Lenihan, George Perkins, William Graham and William Manice went to the Washington and North Bank street house where a systematic search of the premises was made for evidence of the law being violated. At the Scheinman house three quarts of Scotch, the specific brand being Old Smuggler Whiskey, a brand that the city has been flooded with for several months was found, while at the Lubchansky residence about three quarts of alcohol was seized. The liquor and alcohol were taken to the police station and will be used against the accused when they are given a hearing tomorrow.

Prior to the raids, Lonnie Brewer, colored, residing at 20 High street, was taken into custody on, it is understood, a technical charge of violation of the liquor law, for Brewer, it is reported, is the stool pigeon. He was not tried on the charge in the police court this morning but his case was continued until tomorrow morning when the Scheinman and Lubchansky cases will come before the court. In the meantime Brewer was remanded to jail to await the convening of court. Brewer is well known to the police for he has a police court record for various offenses. The police, naturally, would not reveal the identity of the stool pigeon, but from remarks made when queried as to the identity of the decoy, it was apparent that Brewer was the man employed by them in obtaining the evidence against Scheinman and Mrs. Lubchansky. Mrs. Lubchansky has not been apprehended before for violation of the liquor law, but there have been men and women by the same name taken into custody for this offense.

Frank Sanders is confined to his residence, 14 Whittlesey street, by a severe attack of the grip.

Theodore Morris strayed away from the cook stove long enough yesterday to indulge in fisticuffs with Dorothy Lewis. It appeared from the information that came to the police that Dot went to a dance with a "gemmen" friend from Norwich and this act aroused the jealousy of Teddy. Then he let himself out. He was mad and did not conceal the fact. He went to 907 Main street, where Dot is domiciled, and he began to sweep things into disuse. Dot yelled and neighbors called the police by telephone. Officers Clyde and Dennis Murphy found the doors of the Lewis home barred against all intruders but threats made Dot come to the front and permit admission. Teddy represented that he was in his own home and declared that he could do as he liked there. The officers held a different opinion, inasmuch as the public peace was disturbed. Teddy had taken a few powders of alcohol, wet or dry, and his ideas were somewhat warped. He had a cut on his face indicating that fist has landed upon him once at least. When he got into court today he was very docile and pleaded guilty of intoxication, though he could not accept the assertion that he was offending against the public peace. Judge Prince listened to a story that related the appearance here of Teddy from South Carolina and told that he prepares hash in a restaurant. That did not alter the circumstances of the arrest and Teddy was fined $15. He called Dot and she hustled out and raised more than $25 to settle for Teddy.

Alexander Johansen, a sailor on U. S. Ship Ericsson was fined $10 for operating an automobile without having a license. The accused said he did not have confidence to operate a car and did not think he could pass an examination. So he didn't try for one. That was bad judgment on the part of Alex and he paid for it.

Joseph Hassen, of 565 Bank street; Mrs Natalie Gray 94 Ocean avenue, and Mrs. Nostralia Facchini, 87 Willetts avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Margaret S. McCarthy has sold to Monica Rondomansky a house and lot on Seward street.

Henry G. Hall, residing at 44 Washington street, today lodged complaint with the police because of the practice of two owners of automobiles who park their machines indefinitely in front of the Hall residence. As a result of Hall's action the machines were tagged by the police with a summons for the two owners to appear in the police court tomorrow morning and answer a charge of violation of the city ordinance prohibiting the parking of automobiles in the highway longer than 12 continuous hours. It is the contention of the complainant that the two auto owners have continually used the east side of Washington street, between Methodist and Starr streets and in front of his house for purposes of parking and that it was not infrequent for the two autoists to cause their machines to be parked longer than the 12-hour limit.

Mrs. Louis Phillips, until today a resident at 10 Bulkeley place, now residing at 601 Montauk avenue, this morning complained to the police because of considerable damage having been perpetrated at the residence she has just vacated. Mrs. Phillips stated that she started to move to the Montauk avenue address yesterday and that while she was at the house boys entered the Bulkeley place residence and damaged some of her house hold effects, the last of which were removed from the house today. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and learned that the damage was done by three youths, all under ten years of age.

Mrs. John N. Leverone returned home this afternoon, having spent several days with friends in Waterbury.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Ganey have returned after having spent a fortnight at Southern Pines, S. C.

David Suitz, 197 Montauk avenue, complained to the police this evening because of the actions of youths residing in that neighborhood congregating in front of his home late in the afternoons and indulging in sport antics on his lawn and causing a disfigurement of the grass.

City Manager William A. Holt late this afternoon informed the police that youths were making a playground of the parklet corner of Lincoln and Jefferson avenue and requested that the practice be ended. Sergeant John Cavanaugh visited the park and found a number of youths assembled there. The officer warned the youths against using the parklet for a playground.

A still alarm was received at the central fire station early this evening because of a chimney fire at the Star garage, Bank street. Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Engine company and Allen Hook and Ladder company responded When the firemen arrived at the garage and in which there were a score or more automobiles stored, the soot in the chimney was exceedingly hot and threatened to ignite the woodwork and reach the interior of the structure. A quantity of chemicals was applied upon the burning mass and caused its being extinguished before damage of consequence resulted.

Newton J. Johnson, 22, son of Mrs. Elizabeth J., and the late Newton Johnson, died late yesterday at the residence of his mother, Waterford, following a few days' illness with pneumonia. He was born in Waterford and for some time had been employed as an orderly at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital. Besides his mother, Mr. Johnson is survived by three sisters, Mrs. H. M. Hughes, Waterford; Mrs. Anna Kardos, South Norwalk and Miss Edna Johnson, New York.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan O'Neill Sinclair, wife of William S. Sinclair, of Fishers Island and whose death occurred at Fishers Island several days ago of pneumonia, was held at that place at 2 o'clock this afternoon, in Union chapel. She had been under treatment at the Bridgeport institution about two years.

A serious grass fire occurred at Groton this forenoon when a large area of decayed brush on a tract between the Nelseco hotel and Sacred Heart church, Eastern Point road became ablaze. (Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 18—Morris Gullop, alias James Sacco, Bank street merchant of a few months was arrested charged with [illegible] fraud, about two weeks ago and that time he has been a prisoner at the New London county jail, awaiting hearing before United States Commissioner Russell H. George Arliss in Y. M. C. A. Pictures

At 4 p. m. tomorrow (Sunday) the local Y. M. C. A. offers to the public the privilege of seeing what is really a universal feature moving picture the title of which is "His Ruling Passion."

This is one of the pictures in which the leading character, George Arliss is seen at his best, and he is so very popular that no doubt a large audience will take advantage of this rare opportunity.

Briefly the picture story runs as follows: A wealthy automobile manufacturer who has worked himself to the verge of a nervous breakdown is ordered by his physicians to retire to the country and seek relaxation. This he does to the delight of his wife and daughter, but he soon finds that he has worked too long and too hard ever to find rest for his tired nerves in enforced idleness. He secretly goes into a small town garage business, with an almost penniless young man, and finds immediate rejuvenation and peace. The story abounds in romance and quaint humor, with a thread of wholesome health philosophy running through it.

Broadway Theater

Laura LaPlante, Nina Wilcox Putnam, Edward Sloman and A. P. Younger are the four persons responsible for the great success of The Beautiful Cheat, a Universal-Jewel which is coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday, as the first feature.

Actress, author, director, and adapter are the important offices consequent to the production of every photoplay. There are other positions as important in the eyes of the producer, but none that the general public ever hears about.

The story is written and published. The eagle eye of the scenario chief of the Universal Studios falls upon the story, in this case, as a starring vehicle for Miss LaPlante. An offer is made the author and the story is purchased after terms are settled.

In the case of The Beautiful Cheat the story was turned over to A. P. Younger to put into continuity form This he did with the collaboration of Edward Sloman, director.

Besides Miss LaPlante the cast includes Harry Myers, Youcca Troubetzkoy, Tom S. Guise, Kate Price, Walter Perry, Bertram Grassby, Alexander Carr, Robert Anderson and Helen Dunbar.

A pleasing romance of the southland is presented in Three Pals, starring Marilyn Mills, which comes to the Broadway theater on Sunday as the second feature. The story deals with the trials of two youthful lovers, temporarily separated when their respective fathers quarrel. There is an absorbing murder mystery, and a unique situation developed when the heroine's two pet horses dig up clues which result in the conviction of the slayer. Toward the climax an exciting horse race is staged with Miss Mills wining a $10,000 stake which tides over all financial troubles and paves the way for the lovers' reunion.

All seats as usual only 25c and other features include a comedy and news.

Breed Theatre.

Charming Aileen Pringle and that sterling actor, Edmund Lowe, are the leading players in the latest adaptation of an Elinor Glyn novel to reach the screen; the attraction being "Soul Mates," coming to the Breed treatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. This is a bright, snappy comedy drama of British society life sumptuously staged, beautifully photographed; in which the heroine first falls in love with, then repulses a nobleman, weds him under protest, and finally discovers that she loves him after all.

A picture alive with heart interest and sparkling humor, offering a brilliant supporting cast, Phillips Smalley, Edythe Chapman and Lucien Littlefield.

"Topics of the Day," the Pathe news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Syd Chaplin in "Charley's Aunt," the seventh chapter of "The Green Archer," and the Pathe news.

Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10.30 p. m.

Palace Theater

Today five great acts of vaudeville headed by the original Bozo and a picture on the screen. Audiences at the Palace theater sat fascinated and thrilled by the exciting story of "The Limited Mail," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen which opened there yesterday with one of the finest casts ever assembled for a photoplay.

Monte Blue plays the leading role of Bob Snobson, a black sheep of a wealthy Eastern family, who turns tramp, and, in the solitude of the Colorado mountains and in work finds peace and happiness.

Willard Louis is his most amusing self as a happy-go-lucky hobo who relieves the tension of the thrilling wrecks in this adaptation of Elmer Vance's melodrama.

Vera Reynolds makes an attractive little waitress, the heroine of Bob's romance; and Master Jackie Huff an appealing youngster who supplies many dramatic moments in the photoplay. Tom Gallery, Edward Gribbon, Otis Harlan and Lydia Yeamans Titus are equally good in less prominent roles.

"The Limited Mail" was directed by George Hill from Darryl Francis Zanuck's scenario. Charles Van Enger photographed the picture, which has the majestic Colorado mountains as its background.

Palace Theater

Three features are on the Sunday program. Zane Grey's—Wild Horse Mesa, with Jack Holt from the Paramount studios and the second lesson of the Charleston which patrons of the Palace are enjoying along with the Pulitzer Prize novel, "The Age of Innocence," by Edith Wharton, furnishes the story that will be offered movie patrons by the Palace theater, beginning Sunday at which time the screen translation of this popular book will be shown.

When it is remembered that Miss Wharton's novel, "The Age of Innocence," was chosen from amongst thousands of others as the best piece of literature published in 1922, the depth and merit of the story can very readily be appreciated. The plot is unusually interesting and deals with the novel experiences of a Russian countess, who attempts to acclimate herself to the conventialities of aristocratic New York, finding romance hedged about by restrictions that seem absurd and meaningless to her European code of living.

The biggest and best picture program ever offered by the Palace. No change in prices, evenings 35c, matinee 25c.

Capitol Theatre

The sweet singing voice of Olympia Macri is to be heard at the Capitol theatre, Willimantic, Wednesday, matinee and evening, March 24, 1926. The little mother will appear at the head of an organization banded together for a special tour of New England towns. Miss Macri will need little or no introduction to the numerous readers conversant with her misfortune and the long, hard and trying ordeal through which she has passed. Many have waited to learn just what occupation the little girl would adopt in order to provide for herself and baby, Lucy. It is generally understood that the little mother possesses a voice that is both clear and of a quality not too often heard outside the places devoted to opera. It is not the intent of the little artist to attempt the singing of selections that may be outside the understanding of the man or woman not possessing a musical education. Her repertoire will consist of songs that are familiar and easily understood by all. In addition to the appearance of Miss Macri the patrons will be treated to a genuine novelty program calling for the services of professional performers offering an eight act bill calculated to please the most exacting. Miss Macri will appear in songs only and not in any other division of the long program constituting the entertainment.

Chevrolet, in use 13 Years

Found: The oldest Chevrolet in active service.

A. R. M. Stone, stationary broker of St. Louis, Mo., still drives a 13-year old Chevrolet which has traveled 260,000 miles, a distance ten times the circumference of the world. He believes this machine is the oldest Chevrolet still in use.

Mr. Stone, a former locomotive engineer, purchased the car in 1912, the first year of Chevrolet production The loss of a leg had incapacitated him for railroad work. In order to operate both the clutch and brake pedals with his one foot he connected them with a cross bar.

This enabled him to throw out the clutch and apply the brakes in one operation. He drives from 60 to 70 miles daily within a radius of 40 miles of St. Louis

REACTION IN STOCKS.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(By The A. P.)—Heavy liquidation of the motor shares brought about another sharp reaction in today's stock market. Net declines in the active issues ranged from 1 to 9 points, with the average of 20 leading industrial shares down to within one-eighth of a point of the low reached in the drastic reaction around the first of the month. Total sales again exceeded 2,000,000 shares.

Hudson Motors was the outstanding individual weak spot, falling from an early high to 107 to 96 1-4 on total sales of 172,500 shares. Selling of this issue was accelerated by the publication of a report for the fiscal quarter ended February 28, showing net profits of $2,746,022, a decline of more than $1,000,000 below those of the corresponding period last year. General Motors, which has been offering strong resistance to selling pressure, was hammered down to 122 3-8 and then rallied to 127 7-8 for a net loss of 1 3-4 on the day.

Mack Trucks dropped from an early high of 120 3-4 to 115 1-8, a new record for the year. Chandler-Cleveland, Chrysler, Jordan, White and Willys-Overland common also sagged to new low levels for the year on widespread rumors that spring sales of automobiles were disappointing.

Publication of brokers' loan statistics for the week ended March 10, showing a reduction of $162,783,000 failed to stem the tide of selling.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported irregularity in business. Dun's states: "the main aspects of the general business situation continue favorable, though its irregularities have become somewhat more marked," adding that "current news from the great steel trade, upon whose prosperity so much depends, is distinctly encouraging, with promise of a new high record in output at different mills and yet with no sign thus far of the overproduction that was evident a year ago."

Bradstreet's says "bad roads, unseasonable cold weather and possible the psychological effects of the recent gyrations on the stock exchange, have helped to slow distributive trade considerably," explaining that "wholesale lines are doing about as well as a year ago, but retail trade in some localities is poorer."

Forced liquidation was again apparent in a number of industrial specialties. American Can dropped from an early high of 289 1-2 to 281 3-4 and then rallied to 283 1-2 for a net loss of 4 points on the day. American Brown Boveri, Case Threshing Machine preferred, Christie Brown, Fidelity Phenix Insurance, Kelsey Wheel, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Sloss Sheffield Steel, Western Union and Woolworth all showed net declines of 3 to nearly 7 points.

United States Steel common dropped 1 1-4 points to 123 1-8. General Petroleum continued to move against the current trend, closing 1 1-2 points higher at 53, after having passed 55. Ward Baking B rallied feebly on short covering.

Rails again yielded with the industrials, but except in a few high priced issues, such as Atlantic Coast Line, and "Nickel Plate" common, the net declines were not large. Chesapeake and Ohio common showed a net gain of 1 3-4 at 127 1-4.

A sharp break in wheat prices, which carried the May option down over six cents a bushel to 158 7-8 featured the commodity markets. Other grain yielded in sympathy. The cotton market was dull, closing at net advances of 3 to 7 points. Raw sugar prices touched new low levels for the season. Coffee sagged 7 to 14 points.

Call money continued to hold steady at 4 1-4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Establishment of a new low level since 1924 in French francs at 3.53 cents featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm at 4.85 3-4, while the Italian and Belgian rates showed nominal recessions. Norwegian kroner advanced 13 points to 21.45 cents.

The Taftville Fire department, Louis A. Paquette chief answered a call Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock for a grass fire on the property of Wilfred Peltier on the Baltic road above Occum. Mr. Peltier is building a new garage now and when the fire started he was afraid it would extend to the house constructed building so he called the department. Woodchoppers working on the premises extinguished the blaze before the arrival of the department.

NORWICH TOWN

Getting Acquainted With Madge" a three act comedy, was presented before a large and enthusiastic audience in Norwich Town chapel Friday evening, by the Get Together club, of Lebanon, in conjunction with the local Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, under whose auspices the play was given. The participants included the following: Students attending Braxton University, Arthur Tuden, Leslie Holdridge, Sam Forbush, Frederick Moss, Randall Graham, Arthur Goodenough, Frank Garner; Archie Holdridge, Harry Neville, Richard Geer, Benson, Arthur's servant, Paul Holdridge; Dr. Ormsbee, Ridgeway, Carl Holdridge; Mrs. Alice Ridgeway, his sister, Miss Carl Holdridge; Madge, their daughter, Miss Marion Geer; Mrs. Sylvester, Miss Louise Clark; Aunt Matilda, Arthur's aunt from Australia, Mrs. Walter Morgan; Lizzie, the Ridgeway maid, Miss Emily Gallup. The above comprises the original cast, with the exception of the two last characters Mrs. Morgan substituting for Earl Geer, and the Gallup substituting for Miss Ethel Goodenough.

The first scene portrays Arthur's home in Braxton Pennsylvania, near the university, second and third scenes show the dining-room at the Ridgeway home at Kingsdale Penn.

In spite of the many obstacles which confront the students while trying to master the acquaintance of Madge, everything eventually adjusts itself and ends about a pleasant ending. The play has been given previously in Lebanon and Mystic.

Scott, was a brother of Mrs. Rawson. Besides other relatives in Norwich Town, Mrs. Barber is survived by a son Harris Scott of Wethersfield. H. L. "I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using it there was an improvement. I purchased more and in one month my baby was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. Vogel, 26 Van Zandt Ave., Newport, R. I., Sept. 26, 1925.

SEARCHED IN MONTVILLE FOR RHODE ISLAND MURDER SUSPECT

It was disclosed Friday night that Nathan Greenwood, 29, who was arrested Thursday at his home in Scituate, R. I., under suspicion of having knowledge of the brutal murder of Harold E. Hillman, the Cranston, R. I., storekeeper, was in Montville last Wednesday, but disappeared the next day. He hired out with a woodchopper and was put up at the woodchopper's boarding house for the night. The next morning he was gone and with him apparently went jewelery and money belonging to other boarders at the place.

Greenewood denies any knowledge of the Hillman murder. Stains which were found on his clothes proved not to be blood under chemical examination. He will be held on charge of theft of an automobile if the authorities are convinced he knows nothing about the murder.

The search for Greenwood led to Montville this week when the state police learned that he had been in Montville on March 7 with an automobile, which it is believed he had stolen. Last Wednesday he returned without the car, which was found abandoned near Providence last Sunday. He admits the theft of the car, according to the police. Greenwood left Montville last December after residing there for eleven months while he was employed in a paper mill.

Despite the arrest of Greenwood the zeal of the Cranston officials and citizens has not diminished and rewards now aggregating $3,450 have been subscribed for the apprehension of the murderer or murderers. Private sleuths, attracted by the large reward, are working in connection with the police. The police dog of Louis Bodo of Putnam has been taken to Cranston and preparations are being made to put him on the trail. Even a dream of a Cranston woman was listened to by the police in the hope of a clue.

NOTED FEAST OF ST. JOSEPH FOSTER-FATHER OF CHRIST

Vestments and altar hanging of white and gold replaced for the day those of penitential violet, in the Catholic churches Friday, March 19th, being the feast day of St. Joseph, foster-father of the Saviour. In St. Patrick's church the regular Lenten daily mass at 8 o'clock was read by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, a congregation of good proportions attending.

In all the services commemorating the life and example of Joseph, stress is laid upon his humility, as a simple carpenter, although he was of the powerful house of David. He is reverenced as the model head of the Christian home, patron of workingmen. On the feast of the patronage of St. Joseph, later in the season the epistle is Genesis, 49.22-26, ending, "The blessings of thy father are strengthened with the blessings of his fathers; until the desire of the everlasting hills shall come; may they be upon the head of Joseph and upon the crown of the Nazarite among his brethren." The gospel is Luke 3.21-23, which concludes, "And Jesus Himself was beginning about the age of 30 years, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph."

The marble altar at St. Patrick's, on the epistle side of the auditory, which is dedicated to St. Joseph was adorned Friday with ascension lilies, carnations and daffodils. Many of those in the congregation received holy communion from Monsignor May.

LENTEN SERVICE INTEREST CONTINUES AT Y. M. C. A.

The interest continues in the series of lenten services at the local Y. M. C. A. Friday for the fifth time the parlors were well occupied by business men who listened with marked attention to the message by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London President James C. Macpherson was the presiding officer of the meeting. The hymn used was "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and this was followed by prayer by Rev. George F. Bailey of the First Congregational church after which Hugh Kinder rendered effectively a vocal solo. President Macpherson called upon Harry Hedley Smith of New Haven, the state Y. M. C. A. secretary, who attended the noon meeting. Mr. Smith spoke words of commendation in regard to the spiritual work being done by the Norwich "Y" and expressed real pleasure at seeing such interesting lenten services; he brought greetings from the state office to the men attending.

The topic of the talk was "The Power Within Us," and Dr. Danforth spoke in part as follows:

We are more than we have. Possession must be based on personality. Power is like fire. Some are burned by it. Others use it. It is a question of moral mechanics whether a man is possessed by his possessions or whether he really possesses them. If the million is bigger than the millionaire, down he goes. If the millionaire is bigger than the million, up he goes. And it does not take a million to do it.

What is this power within us which must master the power around us or be mastered by it? The educator says "Knowledge is power." He is right, but he has not said it all. The advertising of correspondence courses puts bluntly what our colleges say with more refinement. It makes a great difference how much you know. Do you give orders, or do others order you? You know the line.

We also know men whose knowledge is great but whose power is small. They are ineffective. It takes more than facts to make forces. The man with the big neck-band can do some things which the man with the big-hat-band fails to do. Your gun needs powder as well as ball. Red blood is just as necessary as gray matter, the must has will. By will he can do things, and by will he can induce others to do them.

The will of the sovereign is the law of the land. That is true where the people are sovereign too. And the strength of the law depends on how much of the popular will is behind it. So in the will we find another element in the power within us.

As boys we loved to read and hear of Samson. He was the strong man. As men we wonder whether he was really so very strong. We think of Delilah. It may be she was stronger than Samson. No matter how much one knows, and no matter how strong the will may be, there is another element within us that is controlling both. It is our love. And we need a big love and the right kind of a love to have the right power within us and have enough of it. We need to have God's incarnate love incarnate in ourselves; Christ in us the hope of glory.

Dr. Danforth made the closing prayer and benediction. The topic next week Friday will be "The power above us."

NEARLY 15,000 MACHINES TAGGED BY POLICE

Nearly fifteen thousand motor vehicles have been tagged in Connecticut by the state police in the past nine months for defects in equipment, chiefly as to headlights, according to information which the state motor vehicle department has furnished to Secretary of State Aaron H. Grout of Vermont.

This system, the motor vehicle department reports, has worked out satisfactorily. It puts upon the motorist the burden of seeing to it that his headlights are in proper focus and other-wise in conformity with the state requirements. It supersedes a plan tried out for awhile last year under which headlight tests for the general public were made by the state police in their several barracks throughout the state. The state police department found that this activity required the attention of more of its men than it could spare from other police duties, and the tagging method was inaugurated. They began tagging vehicles found on the highways whenever anything wrong was discovered as to their equipment.

In thus tagging a car, the police officer gives the operator a tag, or leaves one in the car, and keeps a stub of the tag in each case showing the registration number of the car and what apparently is the matter with the equipment. This notation corresponds with that written on the tag left for the use of the operator, who is expected to have the improper condition remedied and to notify the state police headquarters at the earliest possible moment that this has been done. When this assurance is not received by the state police within a reasonable time, the department takes it upon itself to check up the car in question. The plan is believed to have eliminated much of the headlight glare menace.

It was in connection with a proposal to formulate a new plan to deal with the headlight situation in Vermont that the secretary of that state made inquiry as to the procedure followed in Connecticut.

Friday morning, about 11:40 a deer was seen by John Lamphere of Yantic, opposite his store, in the open lot. The animal came about five feet from the store. It seemed tame but very poor. CUSTODY OF CHILD IS TAKEN FROM MOTHER

Following a sensational hearing on the application for contempt in the case of Charles V. Alquist of New London against his first wife, Effie M. Alquist, of Norwich in which Alquist was charged with not having complied with the court's order regarding the payment of money for the support of their little daughter, Edna, nine years old, Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court at its short calendar in New London Friday ordered that the little girl be given over by her mother into the custody of William S. Murray, first selectman of Norwich until further procedure as to caring for the child might be made. The previous order of the court which specified that Alquist should pay $10 a week for the support of his wife and child until a deficit of approximately $110 was made up and then $5 thereafter was remanded and he was ordered to pay $5 a week commencing today (Saturday) to First Selectman Murray until further order of the court. Attorney Clayton B. Smith represented Alquist while Mrs. Alquist was not represented by counsel. Mrs Alquist was in court, however, with the child and resisted strenuously when the child was taken from her. Part of the testimony was that the little girl was smoking cigarettes without hindrance from her mother and was allowed to stay out after 9 o'clock at night.

Witnesses testifying in the case were Charles Latham, William M. Chapman John F. Goddard, A. Dubriel, Effie Alquist and her two sisters.

Judge Brown took the papers in the motion to set aside the verdict of $2,500 rendered recently by a jury for the plaintiff in the case of Abraham Simonowitz, of Colchester against Lorenzo D. Fairbrother and others of Stonington and David Felden of Colchester. Felden asked to have the verdict set aside on the grounds that it was contrary to the evidence in the case.

The following cases were postponed:

Piecars against the Town of Colchester; argument of demurrer.

Louis E. Perkins against Edwin W. Perkins, and others; argument of demurrer.

Smith, and others, against Automobile Insurance Co., of Hartford; argument of demurrer.

Louis E. Perkins against Edwin W. Perkins, and others; permission to file motion to make more specific.

U. S. AUTO BILL EXCEEDS $14,000,000,000 PER YEAR

Estimate Includes Costs of Cars, Insurance, Upkeep, Gasoline and Other Items of Expense—Figures Show That It Costs the Average Automobile Owner More Than $700 a Year to Own and Operate a Car—In February 334,527 Passenger Cars and 37,622 Trucks Were Made in the United States.

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—America's automobile bill, including costs of cars, insurance, upkeep, gasoline and numerous other items of expense, totals more than $14,000,000,000 annually. The bureau of industrial technology estimates in a report made public today. Figures obtained by the bureau showed that it costs the average automobile owner more than $700 a year to own and operate his car.

The figures were computed from statistics of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, The Motors & Accessories Manufacturers' association, tire producers' organizations, insurance companies, labor organizations and gasoline and oil distributors. The survey revealed, according to the bureau, that the nation's annual retail investment in automobiles is twice as great as the annual investment in new buildings.

The average retail value of cars, including accessories was found to be $1,660. Of the present output at the rate of 4,000,000 automobiles annually, approximately $250,000,000 worth are exported.

Demonstrating where the "automobile dollar" goes the bureau prepared a table showing that the costs of cars and accessories now stands at approximately $2,750,000,000; annual depreciation was estimated at $2,500,000,000; upkeep, repairs, $2,000,000,000; drivers' wages, $1,600,000,000; gasoline, $1,200,000,000; garages, $900,000,000; taxes $635,000,000; interest on investment $500,000,000; tires $618,000,000; oil $1300,000,000 and insurance $300,000,000.

This represented an increase of 31,724 passenger cars as compared with revised figures for January 1926 manufacture, and a decrease of 8,933 as compared with February 1925. Trucks showed an increase of 8,176 over January 1926 and an increase of 6,395 over February 1925."

18 PERSONS SHAKEN UP IN COLLISION OF BUS AND AUTO

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., March 21—(AP)—Sixteen persons were shaken up, cut and bruised in a double crash between a Rhode Island Coach company bus and a touring car occupied by Dr. Pasquale E. Maiello of Providence and his chauffeur on South Washington street early this afternoon. Both vehicles were Boston-bound and, after the first collision were thrown together a second time by the roughness of the road before they could be stopped. They rebounded and crashed into trees at opposite sides of the road.

In spite of cuts and bruises, Dr. Maiello, who had his medical kit with him, rendered first aid to the injured, 11 of whom were from Providence and others from Haverhill, Fall River, Cambridge and Taunton. The most seriously hurt was Miss Beatrice Thomas of Providence, a passenger in the bus. She was thought at first to have suffered a fracture of the neck, but it was found that she has only a sprain of the cervical vertebrae, apparently not serious.

After an investigation, the police held Carl C. Savastano of Providence, Dr. Maiello's driver. He was released when it was learned Miss Thomas was not in serious condition. He told the police that the sunken car rails, abandoned several years ago but never removed, caused his machine to swerve into the bus.

DEER BROKE TWO LARGE PLATE GLASS WINDOWS IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, March 21.—(AP)—Driven from the woods by hunger, a huge deer entered this city today and after smashing two large plate glass windows of provision stores in Oak and Chapel streets, disappeared leaving a trail of blood along George street. Later Deputy Game Warden Clarence C. Mathewson, of Woodbridge, was summoned to a yard at 427 George street, where the animal had taken refuge, but the deer had disappeared when he arrived.

The deer first jumped through a plate glass window of a grocery store at 302 Oak street and when frightened away by persons attracted to the scene by the crash, made a dash for Chapel street. Here the animal crashed through a large window of Cona's delicatessen store.

The animal, badly cut by its encounter with the windows, then leaped away through back yards.

This is the second visitation by deer within a short time. A few weeks ago three deer entered the city from the direction of Highwood. One was struck and killed by an automobile, another was killed in a jump off a low-roofed building and a third escaped in the direction of Beaver hills.

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPED FROM ERIE COUNTY JAIL

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 21—(AP)—Four prisoners escaped from the Erie county penitentiary early today after beating a guard into unconsciousness. The leader of the delivery was Joseph Townsend, negro.

Gilbert Personius, a guard, heard Townsend moaning in his cell and calling for water. The guard entered the cell tier and as he leaned over Townsend to ask what ailed him, the negro struck him a crashing blow on the head.

Shortly afterward when Personius regained consciousness, an alarm was sounded, but Townsend and three white prisoners whom he had released from adjoining cells had disappeared. A slow moving freight train passed the penitentiary about the time of the delivery and it is believed the fugitives escaped on it.

TO LOCATE INTERFERENCE WITH THE RADIO PUBLIC

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—A counter publicity campaign to exculpate navy radio stations generally from unjustified charges of interference with broadcast entertainment programs has been inaugurated by direction of Captain Ridley McLean, chief of navy radio.

Commandants of all stations operating powerful radio sets have been urged to work out plans for "listening in" on theb roadcast wave bands and locating interferences of which the radio public has complained.

During the recent international broadcasting week a special board appointed by the commandant of the Submarine Base at New London, Conn., devoted nine nights to eavesdropping on the radio broadcast wave bands and succeeded in tracing all but two of the numerous alleged navy sets interferences to other causes.

CLERGYMAN'S VIEW OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

NEW HAVEN, March 21—(AP)—That the eighteenth amendment "was a piece of legislation foisted on the people of the country through the influence of paid lobbyists hired by fanatics," was the opinion expressed by Rev. William J. Mahoney, professor of theology at St. John's seminary of Brooklyn, in an address to 600 members of the Knights of Columbus at the 12th annual communion breakfast here today.

Claiming that the voice of the people should be heard, he declared that every American should exercise his right in the matter "and keep Washington freed of men who are prone to fall for the influences of the paid lobbyists."

Speaking of the divorce question, he said that the weakness of the divorce laws was permitting persons to go to Yucatan or Paris and with little or no difficulty obtaining a divorce, declaring that this was a practice that would lead to more dangerous evils.

DEATH LIST RESULTING FROM EXPLOSION NOW 22

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March —The death list resulting from an unexplained explosion of furnace number two of the Woodward Coal and Iron company's plant here stood at 23 today and, in addition, ... reported to be in a serious condition in hospital. Of the 22 men killed by the explosion Saturday, 11 were white and the remaining 11 negroes.

The cause of the blast, which burst asunder the huge furnace and sent four hundred tons of molten metal swirling across the foundry floor, still was undetermined today, but the belief was expressed in some quarters that it was due to an unexplained internal force.

Work will be resumed at the furnace within a few weeks, it was said, but no definite time was set for the resumption of activities on account of the extensive construction and repair work made necessary by the explosion.

PROMISED TO TURN PLAIN PAPER INTO CURRENCY

NEW BRITAIN, March 21.—(AP)—The police here are holding Joseph Bolman of Hudson, Mass., who was arrested last night after he had attempted, according to the police, to get $100 from Peter Wenskowics upon promise to turn plain sheets of paper into United States currency. The police have communicated with cities in this and other states to learn whether or not Bolman is wanted elsewhere.

According to Wenskowicz, Bolman had two blocks covered with oil cloth and bolted together. It was his claim that white paper placed between these blocks and covered with a certain chemical would become paper bills.

Bolman wanted $1,000 for his work but Wenskowics said he had but $100. Bolman agreed to accept this, but Wenskowicz became suspicious, grabbed Bolman and called the police. The arrest followed.

FAMOUS WOMAN DRY AGENT ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

EL PASO, Texas, March 21—(AP)—Mrs. Daisy Simpson, famous woman prohibition agent of San Francisco and Chicago, is in a critical condition in a hospital here, following an attempt to commit suicide last night in the El Paso county jail where she was being held on a narcotic charge.

Mrs. Simpson gave the name of Mrs. B. B. Moore of Los Angeles when she was arrested. She was identified today, however, by Scott White, United State marshal, as the woman dry agent.

A note written on a telegraph blank and addressed to Bert Simkins at San Francisco indicated she intended to commit suicide because the "shame has broken my heart."

FUNERAL OF COLONEL J. C. COOLIDGE SATURDAY

PLYMOUTH, Vt., March 21—(AP)—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, was laid at rest yesterday. On a bleak hillside covered deep in snow, they buried him among those of his kin who had passed before him in the little town cemetery here. The President and Mrs. Coolidge, their son, John, representatives of nation and state, and a few relatives and lifelong friends stood in the snow at the graveside.

The funeral services were as starkly simple as the lives of these rugged dwellers in the Green Mountain valleys. At the white farmhouse where Colonel Coolidge lived for many years and where Calvin Coolidge passed his boyhood, the brief burial service of the Episcopal church was read by Rev. John White, of Sherburne, pastor of the Union Meeting House in Plymouth, where the colonel worshipped. Six National Guardsmen acted as pallbearers at the house and cemetery. There was no eulogy and no music. It was the desire of the first citizen of Plymouth, long before his death, that his funeral service should be without ostantation, and his wishes were respected.

The service was held in the tiny parlor of the farmhouse, with folding doors opening to a sitting room as tiny. The dark gray casket, banked with flowers stood but a few feet from the spot where Colonel Coolidge stood one early morning to administer to his son the oath of office as president. In the same room six years ago, the funeral services were held for the colonel's wife, stepmother of the president.

A bank of lilies from the president lay on the casket and beside was a spray of pink roses from Mrs Coolidge. Other pieces, tributes from government officials and friends in Washington, from the crew of the presidential yacht Mayflower, from Vermont friends and organizations in which the colonel was active, banked one side of the room. A spray of calla lilies was the gift of Plymouth neighbors and the community custom decreed that all of them should be represented in the tribute.

NEWSPAPER POLLS ON PROHIBITION DISCOUNTED

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP)—Newspaper polls on prohibition were discounted tonight in a statement by the board of temperance prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, which held that the drys are not participating in them. The index of their worth as showing public sentiment is seen, the statement said, in that "the voters recorded represent a very small fraction of the adult population of the territory covered."

Terming congressional elections "for many years" referendums on prohibition, the board said that "the drys have won them with monotonous regularity and by overwhelming majorities."

FALL FROM OUTSIDE STAIRWAY PROVES FATAL

Dr. Waterman Lyons, medical examiner, said death was due to a ractured skull. Akacki is survived by a widow, and a 13-year old daughter.

Satisfaction Felt In L. of N. Circles

Believe That Frank Discussion of American Reservations May Lead to Some Agreement by the Signatories.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 21—(AP)—Satisfaction was voiced in league of nations circles today over despatches from Washington that the state department seems convinced the league does not wish to inject itself into the world court problem, but merely to point out a possible channel of settlement by the members of the court acting in concert.

A frank discussion of the American reservations, it is believed, may lead to some agreement by the signatories without involving the question of modifying the United States senate's reservations. Officials reiterated today that the league organism ceases to act once the conference invitations have been sent out.

It was remarked is the idea of reaching a common agreement beforehand had been followed by the council of the league with regard to Germany's application for membership the recent crisis might have been avoided. In the meantime the friends of the league are convinced that the league has gained new strength in one direction, because recent events have demonstrated the futility of trying to use Geneva's international machinery for the furtherence of political aspirations and the advancement of special national interests.

The steady increase in the secret sessions of the council is being condemned as largely responsible for the recent crisis, since they have fostered the idea of secret covenants as against the fundamental league principle of open commitments openly arrived at.

Indications are that efforts will be made by some to prevent public sessions of the forthcoming meetings of the disarmament commission which United States delegates will attend. The sentiment here, however, appears overwhelmingly in favor of complete publicity, and it is even remarked that President Coolidge can render a service to the cause of disarmament by instructing the American delegation to insist on publicity.

GERMANS CELEBRATE THE EVACUATION OF COLOGNE

COLOGNE, Germany, March 21.—(AP)—The liberation of Cologne did not seem complete until President Von Hindenburg entered the lavishly decorated Rhenish metropolis today to the accompaniment of the chimes of the ancient dom and peals of the reconstructed St. Peter's bell of historic fame, and jubilantly acclaimed by over a hundred thousand people.

After driving to the town hall where he inscribed his name in the "golden book of the city of Cologne," the president proceeded to the vast exhibition hall, where before worty thousand exultant Rhinelanders, the liberation was formally consummated. After the brilliant oration of the lord mayor, Dr. Andenauer, the plain remarks of Von Hindenburg delivered in a deep soldier's voice was most effective by contrast.

"I accept the honor of your cheers, not in behalf of myself, but as an indication of your loyalty towards the reich and an expression of your joy over restored liberty, which today is celebrated with the representatives of other states of the reich," he said. "For, to us all, the Rhine symbolizes the eventful history of Germany. Here the German kings and emporors were chosen and crowned.

"The severe trials to which the German men and women have been subjected in the last few years have furnished proof the German's moral is not yet fulfilled and that it is not doomed to destruction."

The president concluded by calling for "three cheers for Germany, our beloved fatherland."

His speech was broadcast through the country.

WOULD ALLOW 12 DAYS FOR HEARINGS ON PROHIBITION

Report of Senate Sub-Committee Calls For Six Days Each For the Wets and the Drys Beginning April 1—Judiciary Committee is Expected to Decide the Matter Today—Prohibition, Aviation, Farm Relief, Foreign Debts and Election Contests Will Engage the Attention of Congress and Its Committees This Week.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP)—Prohibition, aviation, farm relief, foreign debts and election contests are a few of the subjects which will engage the attention of congress and its committees this week.

Others include appropriation bills, railroad and banking legislation, articles of impeachment against Federal District Judge English, and the senate investigation of the tariff commission.

The most crowded calendar is that before the senate, which also is to take up on Tuesday the question of confirming the recess appointment which President Coolidge gave to Thomas F. Woodlock, of New York, as a member of the interstate commerce commission after the senate failed twice last year to act upon a formal nomination.

The question of hearings on bills for modification of the prohibition laws is expected to be decided tomorrow by the senate judiciary committee. A programme for such hearings has been laid down by a sub-committee, subject to approval of the entire committee. It calls for six days each for the wets and drys, beginning April 1.

In the senate itself the independent offices appropriation bill is the first order of business tomorrow, with the Woodlock nomination to follow Tuesday and the final vote on the Gooding long and short haul bill set down for Wednesday at 3 p. m. After that will come the foreign debts settlement bills, with the measure for the approval of the Italian settlement first on the list.

The house tomorrow will sit in its capacity as the common council of the national capital and then will, give over Tuesday and Wednesday to consideration of the MacFadden bill to permit states to tax the incomes of national banks. A similar measure already has been passed by the senate.

Thursday the house will take up the last of the annual supply bills, that for the legislative department of the government with a view to its approval before the end of the week.

The house judiciary committee is to meet Tuesday to consider the articles of impeachment against Judge English under a plan calling for house action during the week. If the articles are adopted, the fact will be reported immediately to the senate which must sit as the court of impeachment.

Farm relief legislation again will occupy the attention of the house and senate agriculture committees and the house military committee will continue its task of drafting an aviation programme.

The senate tariff commission investigation, aimed directly to the question of whether President Coolidge has sought to influence the acts of that body will be put under way Tuesday. Professor F. W. Taussig, of Harvard, the first chairman of the commission, will be the first witness.

The Steck-Brookhart election contest is to come before the senate elections committee Monday with action expected on the unanimous adverse report of the sub-committee against Senator Brookhart.

The Johnson-Schall and Bursum-Brattan elections contests also slated for consideration durinf the week.

The joint congressional committee charged with receiving bids for the leasing of Muscle Shoals will continue its labors daily. It expects to receive several additional bids tomorrow.

WOULD HAVE EACH STATE DECIDE ALCOHOLIC CONTENT

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—Modification of the Volstead act to allow each state to decide what alcoholic content shall be legal within its boundaries was proposed tonight by Federal Attorney Buckner, speaking at Fordham Manor church.

"Prohibition enforcement can only be accomplished by a partnership between the United States and each state," he said, "and it is perfectly proper to negotiate with the states as to precisely what kind of prohibition they are willing to come in on and help enforce."

"In my judgment, a modification of the Volstead act defining alcoholic content where there is no state law, but permitting the state to define alcoholic content for both where it chooses to pass the state law, would be of great assistance in law enforcement and combating crime and graft and bribery and perjury and blackmail."

"If you say this would lead to different kinds of prohibition in different states," he added, "I reply that we already have different kinds of prohibition in different states. It would be far better to have the prohibition law enforced in New York state against liquors above light wine and beer in alcoholic content than to have our present muddle and carnival of crime where we have no state law of any kind."

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to Washington early today from Plymouth, Vermont.

Their special train arrived shortly after 7 o'clock and Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, worn by the death of Colonel John C. Coolidge, the president's father, remained at the white house during the day, foregoing their usual Sunday morning church service.

The three day trip was perhaps the most severe undertaking by a president in recent years, requiring the use of train, automobile and sleighs, in severe weather but although both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had suffered colds earlier in the winter they returned apparently unimpaired in health.

Mr. Coolidge gave no thought to executive business during his two days at the ancestral homestead in Plymouth but he had left a clear desk upon his departure and is prepared to resume his duties at the executive offices again early tomorrow.

The third set of alleged gamblers to be rounded up in the cleanup program is composed of fourteen men who will face the police court Monday morning.

Saturday night at 10.15, Investigator Jackson and Captain Thomas J Grady of the police department met by appointment at the head of Railroad street and double-timed into the poolroom and smoke shop, conducted at 7 Railroad street on the corner of that street and Main street. Striding through the front part of the store and into two card rooms which are set underneath the sidewalk of the Main street side of the corner, the officers notified the players that they were under arrest.

According to the officers, poker was being played at one table and rummy at the other. Chips were being used, there being no money on the tables. The chips were marked as not being redeemable and one man is said to have protested that they could not be taken as evidence of gambling; but the officers claim the knowledge that each chip had a face value of 25 cents when presented to the cashier of the place.

Max Brettschneider, local business man, and father of Hyman Brettschneider who is on a honeymoon trip in New York, appeared as bondsman for the group.

Kordas questioned the right of the officer to place him under arrest and said he did not realize that he was breaking the law. He paid the assessment however. Officer Hurley and Eddie Aliborek, a jitney driver, both testified that Kordas was traveling at least thirty miles an hour when he came up through the central part of the business section on Main street. The jitney chartered by the officer traveled from 40 to 50 miles an hour before heading off the Kordas machine at the Columbia Bridge. It was further testified that two machines were nearly struck by the speeding car. Kordas admitted going about twenty-five miles an hour.

Walla Juras of the Stone Row was in the police court Saturday morning on a charge of failure to provide for his two minor children and his second wife. After his family difficulties had been thoroughly overhauled by the court, Juras, through Edward Aliborek as interpreter, was told that he must provide for the family. It was said that he had not contributed to their support since January. Juras has three children, all boys, ranging from 16 to 1. The boys live in a separate tenement and are wage earners. His wife, Agnes Juras, has three children whose ages are 7, 9 and 14, and she has been working to support these. Her earnings, however, are only $8.90 and hardly sufficient to support the children, so the town has been assisting Mrs. Juras since January. She told the court that Judas had no love for her or the children born of their union, although he did care for the children of his first wife. She testified that her husband beat her so severely last January that she had to undergo an operation for injury to her eye and that she was not fully recovered yet. The family took separate tenement after this occurrence. Helen Juras, 14, said that her parents never got along and that her mother did not want the father around, although she wanted him to support the two smaller children.

Juras denied beating his wife. He said that he earned $14 a week and got assistance from two of his sons.

The case has been threshed out in court previously and Judge Foss announced that he would now take a definite stand. He found Juras guilty and placed him on probation for six months, in charge of Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham. The officer will investigate the exact amount of wages received by defendant and cause one-half of the amount to be returned over to Mrs. Juras for the support of the family.

PIECES OF GRANITE COPING FALL FROM STATE ARMORY ROOF

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 21—Saturday afternoon at the State armory on Dixon street on the Railroad avenue side of the two story main building, two pieces of four-foot granite coping with a quantity of brick and mortar which had bulged, fell with a crash to the ground. Just back of where the coping landed was the side door to the main building of the armory which has been in almost continuous use during the past week during the Automobile Show, conducted by the American Legion. Practically every day C. B. Langworthy of a sales company of Westerly has had his automobile parked in the exact spot where the heavy stone and brick landed. On Saturday he chose a different parking site. The place was not in use and none happened to be passing in or out of the door at the time. A considerable area in this vicinity has been made into a tarred walk, to rthe two-fold purpose of keeping surface water from entering the basement, also to provide a hard surfaced driveway to the side door.

When the coping stones fell, they crashed through the concrete surface and buried themselves into the ground. For some time there has been but little repair work done to the armory building, which was hastily erected but a few years ago when through the press, attention was called to bulging brick on the parapet of the tower above the main entrance, the upper structure was taken down close to the roof of the third story of the tower and a form was built around the top of the brick where concrete was poured to form a firm and binding top. Just previous to this time the flagpole which was bolted to the side of the tower was removed and the flagpole set in the front lawn of the armory.

The crash, which left a gaping hole ten to twelve feet long in the brickwork under the parapet of the battlements, was attributed by some to the action of frost coming out from the brick and mortar, caused by the heavy rain and wind action of wind. By some it is claimed that much of the mortar had worked out from between the brick and permitted water to get into the wall. The area beneath the fallen brick has been roped off so that no one will stray into the zone where there is danger of more brick, mortar and stone falling.

Word received by Westerly friends recently from Charles Duberry, a Pawcatuck resident last summer, who is on a tour of a vaudeville circuit in Canadian provinces is to the effect that he had placed his automobile in storage in Detroit by reason of deep snow in Canada, making his jumps by steam train.

Mrs. A. W. Doty and daughter, Mrs. Isaac G. Smith, of Westerly were in Providence the past week end, called there by the death of Soph'e A. Smith, widow of Simon F. Smith. The funeral was held from the Free Evangelical Congregational church, Providence, Saturday afternoon.

Hobart Ayers of Pittsburg, has been a visitor the past week end at his Hillandale farm, Haversham, also the guest of his mother, Mrs. Hannah M. Ayers, and sister, H. Louis Ayers, in Westerly.

Earl Robinson and William St. Onge of Westerly and Richard Slaughter of Lower Pawcatuck left by automobile the past week end for North Carolina. Mr. Slaughter will visit relatives in Hampton, Va., where she will be joined this week by his wife and Mr. Robinson will proceed to Beaufort, N. C., to return home with his wife who has been there as the guest of her sister, the wife of Maj. T. M. Thomas.

Harry T. Powers, chairman of the Fourth District council of Connecticut Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Capt. Elvin B. Byers, treasurer, both of Pawcatuck, were visitors in Norwich on Sunday afternoon when in V. F. W. hall they attended the quarterly meeting of the council which was organized in New London a year ago in last April, when the Westerly veterans were elected to office.

Two special trains on the Pennsylvania railroad the last section of thirteen cars with excursionists from Washington, D. C., to Boston, Mass., passed through Westerly about 6 a. m. Sunday, well filled with passengers. The excursion special preceded the New England express of the New Haven road and returning from Boston on Monday morning preceded the Quaker express. The first day of spring proved an excellent day for the excursionists and later in the year it is the custom of the Pa. R. R. to take even more passengers from Baltimore, to the Hub.

The death of Miss Maria Louise Collins, a former Westerly resident, which occurred Friday in Stamford hospital, followed an operation which she had undergone there. She was well known in Westerly when she was a teacher in the primary grades a number of years ago and to Weekapaug Beach visitors in the past few years when she was employed at the Weekapaug Inn. Educated in Westerly high school and Wellesley college, she has spent her life teaching, first in Westerly and then in Stamford, having taught in the in ife she united with Christ church, latter place for over thirty years. Early Westerly.

Charles LaPresto, a resident of Pawcatuck for the past eight years, died Friday at his home, 55 Mechanic street, after a lingering illness. Born in Italy, he married there 36 years ago Miss Mary Risica, who survives him. He came to the United States about 34 years ago, settling in Walzenburg, Col., where he engaged in the wholesale grocery business. He sold out his business about eight years ago because of ill health and came to Westerly to reside. Wilcox of Pawcatuck held a special session of Stonington town court in Borough hall Saturday when Atwood Gardiner, 25 of Pierce street, Westerly, having been arrested by Pawcatuck Patrolman Vernon Burdick was charged with the theft of a bicycle, the property of John Mclenloof Pawcatuck. The wheel was taken on the night of March 11 and Friday evening Gardiner was seen to come into Pawcatuck. He left the machine standing in front of a pool room and entered, and an officer took him into custody. He pleaded guilty and was ordered to pay a fine of $50 and costs of the court, taxed at $21.95, and be confined in jail at New London jail for 30 days. Being without funds he could not pay the fine and costs.

Westerly chimneys are not drawing in the way that they were intended they were when built; for with soft coal generally in use, telephone calls for Westerly firemen have been numerous. On Friday about noon a fire was discovered in the chimney of the Norman house 11 Chestnut street. A telephone call was sent in to the Westerly Fire department and several of the members responded. A can of chemicals extinguished the fire. Again at 1:30 o'clock another telephone call was received for a chimney fire in the house occupied by Louis Deutsch 95 Canal street, and again chemicals were called into action with effective results.

The death of William J. Sullivan, 40, Saturday night in Miami, Fla., following a surgical operation, was learned Sunday in Westerly, where he at one time resided. Mr. Sullivan was the son of the late Mrs. Annie M. Sullivan of Liberty street, and lived in Westerly for a number of years. He had resided in Providence lately, however. Surviving him are his wife and three children.

At his home, 75 Pleasant street, Westerly, occurred the death Friday of Luigi Toscano, 70, after a lingering illness. Mr. Toscano was born in Agri, Italy, coming to this country and to Westerly in 1888. For a number of years he was employed at the New England Granite Works, and later at the Arnold Mill in Stillmanville. Subsequently he went into the shoe shining business and had his stand in front of Nash's Newsstand, when it was located in Dixon square. He retired from active work about ten years ago. He was a member of Westerly lodge, No. 1212, Loyal Order of Moorse, and an honorary member of the Citizens' Calabria society. His wife, Mariuso Toscano, died about two years ago. He is survived by five sons, Frank, Michael, Thomas and Julio Toscano of Westerly, and Joseph Toscano of Worcester Mass., a daughter, Miss Emma Toscano of Worcester; two step-brothers, James and Charles DeMarco; a niece, Miss Margaret Toscano of Westerly, and four grandchildren.

W. A. BURROWS IS NOT A CANDIDATE FOR WARDEN

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 21.—W. A. Burrows is not a candidate for warden at the annual borough caucus to be held Tuesday evening. This is positive and without qualification. Mr. Burrows is very capable of expressing himself, and he made it exceedingly clear Sunday afternoon that he is not interested, that he does not want the nomination and would decline it if he received it. So that's that. It disposes of a generally circulated story that he might except the nomination if it were offered. Mr. Burrows served Danielson as a burgess and as warden for many years and made a splendid record. He is going to stand on that and will not under any circumstances be a candidate for warden at this week's caucus.

As Warden Anderson is equally positive in his statement that he does not want renomination and will not accept such an honor, the eye of the caucus finds Danielson without any announced candidate for the place. Possibly some member of the board of burgesses may be drafted to serve. There are experienced borough administrators aplenty among the burgesses and the borough may turn to that body for its new warden. Then, again, some other citizen may be named for the place.

The borough caucuses are nonpartisan. That simplifies the selection of a candidate in large degree, so the public need not worry that a suitable person will be found to serve and will be named tomorrow night.

DELINQUENT TAX PAYERS? WELL, NOT IN KILLINGLY!

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 21.—Killingly is not one of the Connecticut towns referred to by the state tax commissioner as being responsible for such a large percentage of uncollected personal taxes remaining unpaid. Killingly has seen to it that all of those who can pay a personal tax, whether they wish or not, are made to do so. Records of the town court that include lists of scores of delinquents attest this. It is not an easy thing to avoid payment of personal tax in this town, however easy it may be in some other Connecticut communities. Commissioner Blodgett undoubtedly is right in saying that the responsibility for the collection of personal taxes, as well as the failure to collect them, rests upon the towns. The reference is not to Killingly, however.

FRANK E. HILL IS GIVEN A KU KLUX FUNERAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 21.—Klansmen from various surrounding towns came here to join with other members of the organization Saturday afternoon in attendance upon the funeral of fellow Klansman, Frank E. Hill. The funeral was held from his home on School street at 1 o'clock, with services at the Nazerene church on Academy street. It was the first K'an funeral ever held in Danielson, and as such was of more than passing interest. The service was conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. H. N. Brown, a former pastor. Numbers of friends of Mr. Hill other than members of the Kui Klux Klan attended the service, during which Miss Rose Broughtman sang 'The Pearly White City, and Sometime We'll Understand. The bearers were Ralph Hill, Westerly, son of the deceased, K. A. Darbie, George Miner, George Baker, Percy Hammond and John Dolff.

Burial was in the Parker Hill cemetery in the town of Sterling. The burial service of the Klan was conducted at the grave, members of the organization wearing their robes. A firey cross, a creation of red flowers, was among the floral pieces. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Spring arrived on schedule time at 4:03 a. m. Sunday. Few were up to greet it. Winter took its final slap at humanity Saturday afternoon by turning on what was rain here and snow in adjacent territory. Where it snowed, it was the fifth snow storm of the week, none of them amounting to a great deal. Those who like to watch the wind direction at the time of a season's changing were not encouraged early Sunday morning when they found weather vanes pointing into the northeast. Here was a forecast of more trying weather. With spring at hand, there is evidence on every side that winter is not so dead as it might be. Many bodies of water are covered with ice, remnants of the great snowstorms of February, border the state highways, there is much frost in the ground and the weather is cold. Spring may be here, but the only way to prove it is to point a few new hats the ladies are wearing. They're alleged to be spring styles; the hats, of course.

Excavations for the foundations for the additions to the high school will be started this week. The contracting company that has the work to do has a skeleton organization here this morning ready to start operations and expand them as rapidly as may be possible, that actual construction may be in full swing during April. There are those who have questioned whether the enlarged school will be ready for the opening of another school year in September. Assurances are that there is little doubt about this. The brick walls of the additions will be taking on height before April is old and mid-summer will find the work to be done so far advanced that thoughts will turn to the accepting of the town by the completed work and the throwing open of the building for inspection by the public. It is a pleasant prospect—something for Killingly to anticipate with keen interest.

Fire wardens are sounding warnings that care should be taken against starting forest fires. There will be danger of these from now on, and a carelessly thrown lighted match, cigarettes or pipe ashes may cause one.

Great mounds of gravel are being accumulated at various points along state highways in this territory for use in the upkeep of the highways and for covering oil that will be applied later in the season.

Motor travel jumped tremendously on Sunday, a very pleasant day for outings and one that was taken advantage of by many.

A Lenten retreat for English-speaking members of the parish will be given at St. James church on designated evenings during the current week.

William C. Lessereau of New Bedford spent Sunday with friends in Danielson.

Milder weather and the disappearance of accumulation of snow and ice leaves bare much of the accumulation of waste matter of the winter season and points to the clean-up work that will have to be done a little later.

Dealers in the commidity say there continues to be a very good demand for cord wood for fuel.

The state placed about 75 adult black bass in Alexander's lake the past fall for stocking purposes and good results in propagation are expected this spring if the fish are not disturbed before July.

Rev. Frank Bidelow, rector of Christ church, Pomfret, will be the Lenten preacher at St. Alban's church Thursday evening.

Choirs of various churches in Danielson are engaged with rehearsals of Easter music. In some churches there will be special musical numbers next Sunday, Palm Sunday.

Miss Annette Lefleur of Springfield spent the week end with friends in Danielson.

Official notice has been taken of the complaints of West Brooklyn land owners that game laws have been violated over in that territory during the winter and an investigation of the matter is promised.

Mrs. Nellie Brown remains ill at her home on Furnace street.

There is a constant revival of a story about a new hotel for Danielson, but this appears to be without foundation. There is little prospect of such an undertaking receiving attention this year.

SPRING HILL

The annual meeting of Mansfield Fair association was held at the Spring Hill Baptist church last Tuesday evening. The Ladies' Aid society served supper of baked beans, cold meats, salads and ice cream to the 50 present. A. W. The business of the evening was to elect twelve directors who in turn made choice of officers for the coming year. Judge L. J. Storrs, D. C. Flaherty and A. E. Not a Laxative

"The continued use of laxatives and cathartics only aggravates constipation," says a prominent medical authority.

Nujol is an internal lubricant, not a laxative, so cannot gripe. Take Nujol regularly and you will prevent the absorption into the blood of poisons from the constipated bowel.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Beard, well known in Putnam and brother-in-law of Miss Emma J. Kinney and Elbert Kinney, is the head. The story was greatly exaggerated, according to a letter received from Br. Beard. While there was some little trouble in the school, there was no bomb plot. One of the pupils, it is thought, put a fire cracker in the desk of the superintendent, and following devotions one morning, the fire cracker exploded. What ignited the fuse is not known.

COLUMBIA

BASCOM HALL FLOOR OLD FASHIONED SPRING FLOOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLUMBIA, March 21—Bascom hall, the dance hall in the Old Inn owned by James Utley has had a new floor laid. This hall has what is known as a spring floor, and as far as is known there is only one other like it in Connecticut. The workmen who laid the new floor said that it was a wonderful piece of construction. Bert Green of Willimantic, has engaged the hall for dances, the first of which was held last week Saturday night. This featured the old fashioned square and round dances, and a large number were present.

The selectmen have received notification from Mrs. Mary B. Yoemans that she has recently added $1,000 to the maintenance fund of Yoemans hall, which is a much appreciated help toward the proper care of the building.

Mrs. Lulu McCorkell who has been passing the winter in Hartford, came home Monday suffering from a severe cold, but is somewhat improved.

The schools of Columbia were dismissed early Wednesday afternoon that the teachers might be present at the teachers' meeting held at the Center school.

Mrs. Philip Isham is visiting relatives in Manchester.

Twenty one members were present at the meeting of the grange Wednesday evening. The general title of the lecturer's hour was Connecticut Night and consisted of papers on the Famous Governors of Connecticut, The Great Industries of Connecticut, Important Events in Connecticut History—Interesting Places in Connecticut. An additional committee of seven was chosen to assist the regular refreshment committee for April 21st, when Columbia Grange will entertain East Central Pomona grange.

Mr. and Mrs. August Nordlund who have been spending the winter in Florida have started north, and have reached Virginia. They will proceed at their leisure, and expect to arrive in Columbia in about a week.

SOMETHING FOR NORWICH TO DO

Within less than a month during American Forest and National Garden week beginning April 18, there is to be inaugurated a movement for the planting of more trees, the aim being to bring about a new record planting of new trees on the 50th anniversary of the first steps in forestry in this country. The American Tree association is back of the effort with its initiative and strength and the appeal will be furthered in the schools through the efforts of the commissioner of education.

The cause must be given hearty endorsement. It would be well if every city would enter into the undertaking with enthusiasm, and not only plant a conspicuous number of new trees this spring but make it an annual affair. It is believed that there is too little community thought given to such action.

Norwich, for instance, is cutting down tree for various reasons every little while. How much, if any, effort is made to replace those trees at the points where they were felled, or elsewhere?

How much, that is worth while, is done for the protection of the handsome shade trees before they are killed by pest or disease?

How much consideration is given to the benefits and value of the trees until they have reached a condition which necessitates their removal?

How many of the trees would have been saved, and how much better some of our streets would look if they had been given attention while it was possible to save them?

How much better it would be if Norwich gave proper, scientific application to its trees instead of letting them take care of themselves?

These are matters which ought to get serious consideration. Norwich has reason to enter enthusiastically into the nationwide movement to plant trees and even go further and take steps for the giving of our trees the care and attention they should get. Commissioner Tigert of the U. S. bureau of education says, "There is no more important lesson for the American people to learn than the need of growing and conserving forests and trees."

TAX PAYMENTS

One of the arguments that was advanced in behalf of tax reduction, especially concerning the reduction of the surtaxes, was that the cutting of that tax would result in larger sums, now in tax exempt securities, being placed in industrial activity and therefore in a position to pay taxes to the government.

That was the experience as the result of the tax cutting that was done previous to this year, and it seems not improbable that similar results may be obtained from the tax bill which recently went into effect.

Under the provisions of the present bill there are about 2,000,000 persons who have been relieved of the federal income taxation. That means the making up of a considerable sum in some other way if it is going to be made up, but unless there are unwarranted appropriations made there will be no necessity for trying to make up for such loss. That has already been anticipated.

But attention cannot fail to be attracted by the reports which are coming from certain of the internal revenue districts to the effect that the total initial payments in the federal districts are exceeding the first quarter's payments of last year. In more than one district, and including the Chicago district, this has been found to be the case. This can be attributed to greater prosperity of course, it can represent a bigger and better year for many of the taxpayers and it is entirely possible that more have made their full year's payment March 15 this year whereas in other years they paid it quarterly. As for the last named possibility a checkup of the payments would disclose whether this is so or not.

It seems hardly probable that the government is going to receive a greater revenue than last year under the tax reduction. That certainly has not been planned although the gradual curtailment in the surtax classes must inevitably bring out a large amount of money that has not hitherto been producing taxpaying income.

CONFERENCE DATE UNCHANGED

According to the information which comes from Geneva the preliminary conference on disarmament is to be held in accordance with previous arrangement on the 17th of May. The league settled that following the postponement of the admission of Germany until September. It takes this action apparently for the purpose of having it understood that it doesn't consider that the disarmament question has been in the least affected by the league developments at Geneva. It at least desirous of creating an optimistic attitude until something different develops.

The league is doing its best to minimize the difficulties that have arisen over the admission of Germany. It doesn't prevent others from placing their own interpretations upon the situation. Ambassador Houghton and Minister Gibson, who were called home to advise the president concerning the coming disarmament conference are not as optimistic as the league. They are skeptical about the conference getting anywhere under present conditions. Even if the disclosures recently made at Geneva might be temporarily set to one side there are evidences that the nations of Europe take decidedly different views concerning the question of disarmament and how it should be undertaken.

In view of the steps that have been taken and the action of the league in insisting that the preliminary conference be held according to schedule, it is presumed that this country will have its representatives in attendance in keeping with plans. We have little to offer in the way of disarmament but we can give our moral support. Whether league developments were different or not, it is inevitable that there would be divergent opinions even concerning the program from a real disarmament conference. Most certainly the situation at Geneva has not helped to better that situation. It has served to create a feeling of optimism, an attitude of distrust and an unwillingness to change existing relationships, even though it can be pointed out that the present relationships are not conducive to international peace.

CURBING THE FRAUDS

No sympathy need be wasted upon the swindlers when they are forced out of business. Therefore there will be no shedding of tears over the order which has been issued by the post office department in denying the use of the mails to what represents itself as a music publishing corporation in New York. The game of this concern was to appeal to those who have been greatly impressed by the results obtained by others in the writing of songs. Believing that they can do as well, and are therefore in a way to secure a fortune, they respond to the advertisements and circular of this concern which urge the forwarding of manuscripts for examination.

Needless to say there are few of the compositions that are acceptable and yet fees of from $25 to $50 are obtained for making the examinations. When it is realized that there have been 50,000, according to the postal estimate, who have entrusted their manuscripts to firms engaged in such fraudulent business it can be understood with what large sums they have parted in the belief that they were about to come into possession of a gold mine.

It is unfortunate that such concerns are able to continue in business long enough to get so many entangled in their schemes, and yet there are plenty of others who are getting like results from the use of different methods. In spite of all the fraud that has been displayed in various ways there is a seeming inability on the part of many people to resist the chance. The lure gets the better of the judgment and before they realize it they have fell into the trap set for them. If the public was itself a bit more careful in regard to its own funds there would not only be less losses but fewer in the swindling business. The existence of so much gullibility is the best kind of bait for the fakirs.

A DESERVED DEFENSE

While we have no reason to believe that they will be forgotten, it is well that there should be a defense of such valuable men as General Wood as was given in the house of representatives in a few days ago by Congressman Gibson of Vermont.

In the course of the movement which has been made by the Filipinos in behalf of independence there has been a disposition to give an entirely wrong impression of the service which General Wood has rendered and is rendering in behalf of his country. Well might he direct attention to the high grade work that General Wood has done in behalf of sanitation, in public office and in war. He has always applied himself assiduously to his duties and gotten results that were beneficial. He is a soldier of high rank and magnificent record, which would have been greatly enlarged had he been given the opportunity he deserved.

Since he has assumed the duties of governor general of the Philippines he has given that office the conscientious attention that it demanded. He has corrected ills which had prevailed and stood in the way of a resumption of conditions which ought never to have been tolerated in the past. He has been instrumental in getting the Philippines back onto their feet, and while he has balked the Philippine legislature in certain of its plans it was in the line of duty and for the good of the islands. A vast amount of credit is due General Wood for the manner in which he has administered the islands. It was a thankless job from the first but he has not allowed himself to be swerved from duty by the constant and persistent pressure that has been brought to bear upon him. His defense was fully served.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Welcome to spring!

The man on the corner says: It is time to change from your snow to mud shoes.

There will not be a very large amount of grass grown in March to be killed in May this year.

No one would doubt it but for the fact that the Los Angeles is due to start from Lakehurst on April first.

The elimination of Bishop's crossing should mean the end of deaths at that point but it will not eliminate the reckless drivers.

Besides all the other things being said about him, Mussolini is getting the credit for having caused Brazil to insist on a seat in the league council to the consternation of other nations.

Massachusetts' state prison is filled to capacity, and yet it was not so long ago that there was much talk about selling jails and demolishing prisons because there'd be no use for them.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Powdered bath brick will remove stains from steel knives.

Add noodles to the gravy of pot roast and serve as a separate dish.

Serve creamed shrimps in timbale cases with diminutive hot biscuits.

Serve ad orange sauce, thickened with cornstarch, with hot orange puffs.

Iced bouilion served in cups makes a dainty first course for the autumn luncheon.

The white of an egg is excellent for removing chewing gum from cloth or hair.

Add a teaspoonful of whipped cream to each cupful of clam broth just before serving.

Tomato juice will remove ink stains from fingers.

Sandpaper the soles of baby's new shoes before they are worn, and save the child a nasty fall.

A small piece of sulphate of potash added to the boiling syrups of jams will prevent fermenting.

Nickel trimmings on the gas stove look much brighter if washed with warm water in which two tablespoons of Kerosene have been stirred.

Cream cheese and anchovy paste used in equal portions make a delightful sandwich filling.

Some people complain of indigestion after eating an apple. In that case the fruit should be scraped and eaten in pulp form rather than in pieces.

Rust stains caused by leaking faucets may be removed by rubbing with a piece of lemon, if they are not of too long standing.

If pie crust is rubbed with a little lard just before it is baked, the surface will be rich and smooth. Rubbing with water gives a glazed appearance.

Use paper sacks to line the garbage can, so that they can be removed, leaving a clean surface in the can. Scald can with sal soda twice a week.

A kitchen diary with pages for order lists and a pencil attached should be hung on the wall where one can reach easily. It will save many steps and insure the housekeeper against forgetfulness.

THE CHILD'S LUNCH BOX

Never put any food objectionable to the lunch box. See that the lunch box contains just as well-balanced food as the child would receive were he to eat at home. A small covered jar may be tucked in one corner of the box to contain a surprise of some sort—a little pudding, a few pieces of candy—anything pleasing that will make the jar more or less of a mystery.

FOR LOOSE RECIPES

Paste a large envelope in the back of your favorite cook book and in this place recipes clipped from newspapers and magazines until you have time to copy them. Then you won't lose that recipe you wanted to try.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Brittle fingernails must be manicured with care or else they will split. Usually, too, the cuticle around this type of nail is dry and easily becomes ragged.

In case of a skin eruption a strict diet should be maintained so that no further poisons can collect in a system already overstocked with them. But the very best thing for all ordinary cases of skin eruption is the drinking of plenty of water every day.

For dry hair and tight dandruff, get crude oil from the druggist or a paint and oil store, heat as hot as you can stand it, and rub this in. For oily hair, which means dandruff is coming soon, heat olive oil and use this instead. It sounds odd to treat oil with oil, but you must.

When a house at 70 degrees above seems cold, it's the lack of humidity that causes the sensation, asserts a medical writer. He declares that the average house in winter is dryer than Death Valley, the Sahara or even old King Tut's tomb, by actual humidity measurement. Put humidity in your home at all costs if you would be healthy in winter, he advises.

BRACKET SHELVES HIDE TELEPHONE

Among the new arrangements for concealing the telephone is the telephone cabinet. This bracket hangs on the wall and the telephone is encased in the lower section and concealed by a small door. The upper half of the cabinet is divided into two shelves on which can be placed books and knick-knacks.

TWO TREATMENTS FOR COLONIAL WALL

For Colonial walls there are two treatments—one wallpaper, the other a flat surface paint. When paint is used it is preferable to have it either an ivory or white finish. The walls are oftentimes paneled in pine and especially along the fireplace side.

SENDING MONEY

Stamps are usually accepted for the fraction of a dollar. Never send personal checks to strangers. Money orders are far safter, but be careful to save the receipt until you are certain the remittance has been received.

SMOOTHER CHOCOLATE

If the chocolate is inclined to flake in a pudding, beat it vigorously with an egg beater while it is still in the double boiler.

WILL DO THE TRICK

If the metal caps on your tube of toothpaste becomes obstinate and will not budge, light a match and hold the screw cap over it. After a short time the cap will turn.

GREASE THE BAKING DISH

When using a baking dish or casserole, first butter the inside as you would a cake pan. It will add a bit to the flavor of the contents and cause them to be removed easily from the dish when serving.

DICTATES OF FASHION

It looks as though navy blue would enjoy a tremendous vogue this spring.

A very attractive blue taffeta coat is lined with yellow kasha cloth and collared and cuffed in beige fur.

The bolero jacket with the finely pleated skirt is one of the favorite combinations of Paris now.

Pleatings that form interesting designs are a new method of adding to the chic of even the simplest frock.

The tailored suit for spring is usually double-breasted in effect and is either navy blue or black, or fashioned of one of the new checked woolens.

The higher flare which really leaves the lower edge of the skirt straight is sometimes seen in the coats as well as in the new dress designs.

If women accept navy blue as generally as the shops have, there is every reason to believe that it is going to enjoy a tremendous vogue this spring.

The hip flare is evidenced in a flat crepe two-piece design recently seen. This silhouette is often attained in the smartest new tailored suits.

Two crystal hairpins are frequently seen adorning hats of velvet, felt or ribbon. A draped black felt hat with two crystal pins thrust downward was seen.

The new hats, usually French and imported, that are being shown in the shops, very often employ fit pasted feather trimmings. Birds and flowers are frequently the motifs.

The belting ribbon hat has come nearer being a substitute for that of felt than any hat has dared to be for some time past. It can be made to fit the head as well as felt and its means of development are seemingly inexhaustible.

TWO TONES BETTER THAN ONE

Two tones are decidedly smarter than one in the realm of chic, the most favored combination being that of beige and one of the darker wood shades. Two shades of gray are frequently employed, while bright and navy blue is also a smart alliance.—Dry Goods Economist.

VALANCE USED ON HIGH WINDOWS

A valance can be used with curtains when the windows are high and the ceiling is high. A valance should never be used where the windows and ceiling are low, draperies being the only advisable decoration.

STRESS INDIVIDUALITY

Individuality is the touch sought for in modern dress. Anything that looks so like what others wear as to become a sort of uniform is taboo. Consequently ensembles consisting of coat and dress seldom show the same shade for each. For example with a gray skirt, a crepe de chine blouse of lighter gray surrounded by a wine colored sweater, forms a smart sport costume. Under a gray squirrel cape a red crepe de chine dress is worn with black hat and gloves adding to the contrasting effect.

SEWING HINTS

It is a good plan when making French seams in infants' clothing or any other handwork to do the first sewing by machine. When the seam is turned and completed by hand the machine sewing does not show, but the work is much stronger.

Never "help" an article through the sewing machine. Let the feeder do its own work. If pulled through the stitches will be irregular and it usually means broken or bent needles.

Patch pockets on the small daughter's frock are very attractive but they are always being caught on things, and many a little dress is spoiled in consequence. Try putting the pocket, so essential for the young lady's handkerchief on the bloomers, just above the knee on the right leg. A plain square pocket will do and in this protected place it will never be torn off.

Worn-out stockings may be put to good use. Cut them open along the seams and then sew two or three stockings together. Thus combined they make excellent cloths for dusting or any other purpose.

REMOVING ADHESIVE PLASTER

Those obstinate straps and ugly marks from them can be removed easily by dampening with gasoline or carbona by means of a piece of absorbent cotton. Be careful, however, that the cotton is not too wet and some of the cleansing fluid run into the wound. You will find strains and marks can be wiped right off.

JUICE OF VEGETABLES

The juice from canned vegetables is nutritious and should not be wasted. When a recipe requires draining of canned vegetables the liquor should be saved and used in soups and sauces. Heat canned vegetables in their own liquor instead of draining and adding water.

TO RENOVATE BLANKET

Blankets, when they have been washed and thoroughly dried should be well beaten. This has the effect of making the wool light and soft and giving the blankets a new and fresh appearance.

PRETTY FLOWER POTS

Cover unsightly flower pots with heavy black cartridge paper and paste colored jonquils (made of green and yellow paper) or tulips at intervals around the pot. These covers are most attractive and give the effect of a jardiniere.

FARNISHED CANDLES

If the more inexpensive candles are dipped in white varnish they will burn as evenly as the more expensive, handmade ones.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Seventy-five percent of the savings in America are in the names of women.

Women recently participated in a debate in the Russian parliament for the first time.

More than 13,000 married women in the District of Columbia are working in industrial capacities.

Mrs. S. S. Glass of Cleveland broke up a game of mah jong when she held a perfect hand with 14 honors.

The first Wisconsin cities to employ policewomen were Racine and Superior, both making appointments in 1914.

The Ohio Council of Churches recently adopted a resolution admitting women to membership on the same basis with men.

In Finland women help to sweep the streets with brooms made of birch twigs. They also help unload bricks from freight cars.

The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the largest woman's patriotic organization in the world, is 35 years old.

FOR LIVING ROOM

Two chairs of the wing type will add much to the charm of a room when upholstered in glazed chintz.

HOT LIQUIDS

Put a silver spoon into a glass jar before pouring in a hot liquid and your jar will never crack or break.

RECIPES

Cheese Souffle: Melt 2 tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, add three tablespoons of flour and stir until well blended; gradually pour on one-half cup of hot milk and stir until a smooth paste is formed. Season with one-half teaspoon or salt, a few grains of cayenne and one-third cup of grated mild American cheese. Remove from the range; add the yolks of three eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Cool the mixture and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Pour into a buttered baking dish measuring seven and one-half inches in diameter at the top and five and one-half inches at the top and five and one-half inches 20 minutes. Serve immediately. Serve as the main dish at luncheon, accompanied with buttered asparagus, a cool, crisp, green salad, a frozen dessert and cold or hot beverage.

Timbales: The term timbale was formerly applied to any smooth preparation of cooked meat or fish, poached in drum-shaped molds—i. e., sides straight, with the diameter of the top and bottoms the same. But at the present time this sort of a preparation may be poached in molds of any shape. Timbales (unlike souffles) are unmolded before serving. They are made of all kinds of delicate meats, shellfish and vegetables. Vegetables are always cooked before being made into timbales; meats, fish and shellfish may either be cooked or uncooked; those of uncooked materials (often force meat) are the choicest. Timbales are usually served as an entree at dinner; they may serve as the main dish at luncheon, and during the hot weather there would be no objection to serving them as the main dish at dinner.

From Small Beginnings

George W. Cable, the Clerk, the Great Novelist

Hungry and tired but riding manfully with the Fourth Mississippi Cavalry in the Civil war was a 19-year-old boy named Cable. His patriotic father had named him after the Father of the Country, and so his full name was George Washington Cable. He was a short and slender boy to bear so great a name, but he bore it becomingly and he never dishonored it.

George W. Cable was born in the old French city of New Orleans. There he spent his boyhood up to the time of the Civil war and became familiar with the quaint old buildings, the crumbling memories of proud days under French rule, the queer foreign streets, the patois of the creoles, and all the soft Southern romance that clings about the old city. Hard necessity gripped him and made it necessary for him to leave school and his happy rambles and go to work.

At 14 years of age young Cable found a place in a store and began the struggle of life on his own account. There he worked for five years, until the Civil war drew him from the dreamy city into the rough life of the cavalry campaigns. He remained a fighter until the very close of the war, when he came back once more to his native city and again went to work for a merchant.

But the war opened the young man's eyes to the greatness of the world and he cast about him for something better than the life of a clerk. He took the time to study civil engineering. All this time he maintained his interest in the quaint and curious about him, and so he began to write, and at last became one of the regular staff of a New Orleans paper.

Having passed what may be called his apprenticeship in writing he took courage to send some of his stories of creole life to Scribner's Magazine. At once people in the north, as well as in the south, saw that a new writer had come into view. Because he had written honestly and sympathetically his stories were delicate and quaint as some of the old lace worn by the creole ladies about whom he wrote. From that time he has devoted himself wholly to literature. He has written many novels and many short stories, but all of them give the fragrance and charm of the south. He rose to his position as a widely recognized novelist because he had a deep interest in the life about him and a sympathy with old scenes, long-gone days and odd types of character.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, who believes that the surest way to wipe out the present heavy deficit in the United States postal service would be to reduce the postal rates to their former level and thereby induce the public to make more extensive use of the mails, is now serving his second term as one of the representatives of Tennessee in the upper house of congress. Senator McKellar is a lawyer by profession, a native of Alabama and a graduate of the state university at Tuscaloosa. Early in his career he removed to Memphis, where he has since engaged in the practice of his profession. His public career began in 1911, when he was elected to congress to fill the unexpired term of that distinguished confederate general, George B. Gordon. Mr. McKellar remained in the house through succeeding elections until 1916, when he defeated opponent for the United States senate.

Stories That Recall Others

Couldn't Fool Him

George has returned from a visit in the west and there he encountered a story of a man who was making his first visit in that part of the country. Distances fooled that chap. The mountain which he thought was at the edge of the town was miles away. The valley which appeared only a few rods deep, was scores of rods.

One day a friend met this man on the edge of an irrigation ditch. He was removing his clothes.

"What are you doing?" the friend asked.

"Why I am going to swim this river."

"That isn't a river. That's only a ditch."

"You can't fool me. I've been fooled too often on distance in this western country. This is a river."

He Knew Apples

Little Freddie had difficulty in understanding fractions. His teacher explained at great length that the fractional parts of a whole totalled that whole. When she thought she had driven home the explanation, she asked Freddie whether he would rather have a whole apple or two halves, expecting him to answer that the two halves were the same.

He replied: "Two halves."

"Why would you prefer two halves?" she asked.

"Because then I could see if the apple was bad inside."

The Mean Trick of Reddy Fox

There are some folk we all have seen
Who think it clever to be mean.
—PETER RABBIT.

People of that kind are the ones who always are trying to play mean tricks on others, and who, when they succeed, appear to think these tricks very smart. It never is smart to be mean. No, sir, it never is smart to be mean. Just take the case of Reddy Fox and the trick he played on the stranger in the Green Forest.

Reddy Fox, of course, had heard of the stranger in the Green Forest, and that this stranger was a cousin of his. News like that would be sure to reach Reddy very quickly. In fact, several of his neighbors had asked Reddy if it was true that this stranger was a cousin of his. Reddy was quite sure that he had no cousins excepting in the Far North. But not having seen the stranger, he didn't dare say so. Reddy long since learned that it is never safe to be too positive.

Of course, he promptly began spending most of his time in the Green Forest hunting for the stranger. He didn't find him, but he did find his footprints in some soft earth, and he found the scent of the stranger. The footprints were very like the footprints of a Fox, and the scent the stranger had left in those footprints certainly was the scent of a Fox. Reddy became more curious than ever. At the same time he didn't at all like the idea of having another Fox living so near. He went off by himself to think things over. He wanted to think of some way of driving that stranger out of the Green Forest. At first he thought in vain. How could he drive a stranger out without even seeing the stranger? In the second place, he couldn't think of any one big enough to drive the stranger out who would be willing to do it just because he Reddy, asked him. So, as he lay curled up on a big rock, taking a sun bath, he kept thinking and thinking and thinking.

He had almost given up hope of thinking of a plan to drive the stranger out, when way off in the distance he heard a sound which caused him to prick up his ears. It was the distant barking of Bowser, the Hound. A grin crept over Reddy's sharp, crafty face. He got to his feet and stood listening. Then he jumped down from the rock on which he had been taking his sun bath and headed straight toward Farmer Brown's dooryard. He knew that it was up there that he had heard Bowser barking.

Now, Reddy is not in the habit of entering Farmer Brown's dooryard in broad daylight. But this was a very special occasion. He first made sure from a safe distance that there was no danger. Then he deliberately trotted across that dooryard in plain sight of Bowser the Hound.

For a moment Bowser just stood there, staring at Reddy Fox. He looked for all the world as if he doubted what his eyes saw. But it was only for a moment. Then with a roar of his great voice, he started after Reddy.

For a moment Bowser just stood there, staring at Reddy Fox

Again Reddy grinned. He whirled about and headed back to the Green Forest. He kept just far enough ahead of Bowser to leave a good fresh scent without being worried by having Bowser too close. Straight through the Green Forest to the place where he had found the tracks of the stranger ran Reddy. He was leading Bowser the Hound over there in the hope that he would follow the scent of this stranger, and so drive him out of the Green Forest. It was a mean trick. Yes, sir, it was a mean trick that Reddy proposed to play.

AGGIE BASEBALL PROSPECTS ARE FAR FROM BRIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., March 21—Yesterday, at the end of the first week of indoor baseball practice for the Connecticut Aggies, the outlook for the Storrs nine is anything but promising.

Greatly weakened by graduation, and the withdrawal from college of two regulars from the 1925 nine, the Aggie baseball machine is sorely in need of experienced material, all of which means Coach Sumner A. Dole is going to have a real task on his hands in building up a ball club.

Connecticut's greatest weakness will be on the mound, as the graduation of Wells last year took the only experienced and reliable twirler on the Aggie squad. Pitchers reporting this week include Makofski, Sceers, Eddy and Brooks. With the exception of Makofski, none of this quartet have pitched varsity ball, and their ability is still more or less of an unknown quantity. Eddy was the best twirler on the freshman team a year ago, and his work will be watched with interest this season.

Wardie regular backstop in 1925 left college at midyear, as he had made enough credits to graduate. Tiernan, regular center fielder transferred to Boston university. Both of these men were dependable players and heavy hitters, and their loss will be keenly felt once the season gets under way.

Captain Seymour, whose play at left field last year was a big factor in the team's success, is at present in a Hartford hospital where he recently underwent an operation. It is not known definitely at this time if he will be able to play this season, although reports received thus far have been encouraging.

The few veterans available for this year's nine, in addition to the pitching staff already mentioned, include third baseman Ahern, who captained the team last year; Schofield, second base and Gilbert, who will be shifted from right field to catch, a position he played regularly two years ago. Substitutes from last year's nine are Ajello and Horn in the outfield, and Yardsley in the infield.

Sophomores available. The more promising of the sophomore candidates are Williams at first base; Brooks, pitcher; Watson and Kennedy fielders.

Practice will continue indoors until Easter recess begins the last of this month. With the reopening of the college a week later the squad will start on Gardner Dow field, preparing for the opening game with Brown at Providence, April 21.

The schedule: April 21, Brown at Providence; April 23, Tufts at Storrs; April 28, Trinity at Storrs; May 5, Clark at Storrs; May 8, Springfield at Springfield; May 13, Rhode Island at Kingston; May 15, Trinity at Hartford; May 18, Springfield at Storrs; May 22, Colby at Waterville; May 29, Maine at Orono; May 31, New Hampshire at Durham; June 3, Rhode Island at Storrs; June 5, Amherst at Amherst; June 11, Mass. Aggies at Storrs; June 12, New London Sub Base at Storrs.

WILL HUTCHISON, ONCE FAMOUS PITCHER, DIED FRIDAY AT KANSAS CITY

NEW HAVEN, March 21.—(AP)—Word was received here today of the death in Kansas City Friday, of William Forest Hutchison, 67, a member of the class of 1880 at Yale. The funeral will be held in Norwich, Conn. The Rt. Rev. Sidney C. Partridge, Episcopal bishop of Kansas City, a classmate of the deceased, is accompanying the body to Norwich.

Mr. Hutchison was the son of William and Forrestia Germana (Shepard) Hutchison, the father serving for many years as principal of Norwich Free Academy. The father was a graduate of Yale, 1854, was tutor at Yale from 1857 to 1863, and a missionary to Constantinople before his Norwich service.

The son, known as "Hutchey" to Yale men, gained college fame as a member of the Yale baseball team. He was born in New Haven, December 17, 1859. His early education was secured at Heness German school here, and at Norwich Free Academy, graduating there in 1875.

Following his graduation from Yale he entered Sheffield Scientific school, for a year and then went to Biddeford, Me., to learn cotton manufacturing. A year later, however, the climate proving unfavorable to his health, he went to Kansas City and took up engineering. Two years later he was in Cedar Rapids with the Burlington railroad.

Mr. Hutchison never ceased to take an interest in baseball. In his earlier years he played in college and amateur games and later took up professional baseball, playing with Captain Anson's Chicago team from 1890 to 1897. He then returned to Kansas City, entering the service of the "Frisco" railroad. He remained with that road until his death. He was unmarried.

Hutchison led the National league in effectiveness in 1891, participating in 63 games and was the leading hitter of the league in 1894 with an average of .323. When he was 50 years old, he was pitching in a semi-pro baseball league at Kansas City.

Irving Chase and Col. Osborne of the Journal-Courier, his classmates, arrived from Jamaica March 35. Sidney Partridge, Episcopal bishop of Kansas City, will arrive with the body 7 o'clock Tuesday evening at Norwich, via Palmer. Dr. Frank H. Wheeler of New Haven is a classmate of Mr. Hutchison.

WILLIAM F. HUTCHISON
An Appreciation

"Comrades ever since we were boys."

Mr. Hutchison was an old (term of endearment) Norwich boy, and was known and beloved by everyone, but especially by his schoolmates and intimate friends. His father, Professor William Hutchison, was for years the principal of the Norwich Free Academy, and was famous as a teacher; was a well-known author, and a loyal friend and citizen. There is a charming tribute to him by Poultney Bigelow in his book of "Seventy Summers", as well as a fairly good description of Norwich, and some of its famous men. "Billy Hutch", as we all knew him, was a graduate of the Academy, and of Yale, class '80. He was famous as a Yale baseball shortstop and pitcher. He was a member of Scroll and Key, and a most popular fellow, and was familiarly known as "Hutch".

The writer has crossed the Yale campus many a time with him, and as we passed the buildings, we would hear the familiar salutation, called from many a window, "Hello, Hutch"! It was not "Hello, Hutch!" because he was a member of the ball team, but because of his winning and generous personality.

His nature was as open and refreshing as a sparkling running brook. From Yale he went into the railroad business at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. There he played ball in his holiday time. His prowess as pitcher soon became known far and wide, and being unable to resist tempting offers he at last joined the Chicago team—"Pop Anson's" famous nine, and "Hutch" made it still more famous. In the latter part of his life and for many years, he was with the Kansas City Southern railway, being in its employ when he died.

Even in Kansas City, one of his recreations was playing ball, and there he was known by the fans as "the old man".

His favorite sport was fishing, and his vacations were spent in the wilds of Minnesota, there angling for trout and lake bass. In his love of fishing, he was a true disciple of Izaak Walton. On his annual trips to the lakes, he would always spend a few days, going and coming, with his friend from boyhood, T. R. Converse of Stillwater, Minn., another Norwich boy, settled in that attractive state, which is almost full to its brim, with its many running streams and broadly smiling lakes. He was a sportsman through and through, generous to a fault, loyal to the core and a comrade with whom all his comrades were in harmony, because they loved him.

His courageous heart has ceased to beat, but he still lives in the hearts of his life-long friends, and until their spirits shall have passed, his name will be softly spoken and his memory sweetly sung.

THE BERT BENNETT HOUSE BURNED AT WESTMINSTER

Another of Westminster's old time substantial houses was destroyed by fire Sunday morning, the home of Bert Bennett and his sisters, Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Davis. News of the blaze was received at Westminster Hill at about 11 o'clock Sunday morning, worship was about to begin but the services were omitted because of the fire.

About 10 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Davis started a fire in the stove in her bed room, putting only one stick of wood on top of the kindling and closing the draft in the pipe before going downstairs. About 10 minutes later she returned and found the room all ablaze. The Tarrants, neighbors with a telephone, were notified and sent out the alarm. The response came quickly from all quarters, but too late to save the house.

Some furniture was moved from the lower floor, but the destruction was rapid and thorough. Fortunately the wind was not from the south, or all the barns and outbuildings would have been burned. As it was it took hard and long continued fighting to save several small buildings quite near the house. Fifteen cords of stove wood in the shed were destroyed in the fire. Mr. Bennett and his sisters are of the fine old stock of Westminster, are connected with the Methodist Protestant church at the Plains and are universally respected. No longer young, the blow is more keenly felt by them.

The house was a large two and a half story building, had ten rooms and an immense old-time chimney. The family will probably find a temporary home in a neighbors' house, known as the Gilbert Palmer place. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

BRING SECOND ACTION ON SUB BASE BUILDING

Action against Ray H. Arnold of New Haven, builder of a storehouse at the New London submarine base in 1918, will again be brought by Gustave A. R. Hamre, an intervening creditor, in the U. S. district court at New Haven today (Monday).

The main action was brought by the United States government for the use and benefit of the Wennemer Construction company, Inc., of New York against Arnold and the Globe Indemnity company, to recover a bond of $25,830. The action arose when changes were made in the specifications while the work was in progress, which affected the sub-contract of the Wennemer company.

After the building was accepted by the government, the Wennemer company filed a claim for extra labor and materials involved in making the changes. The papers of Arnold stated the manner in which the sub-contractors should be paid and the government filed suit for the full amount of the surety bond for the use and benefit of the Wennemer company.

MADE ARREST FOR PENNSYLVANIA AUTHORITIES

Acting upon a request from the police authorities of Reading, Penn., the Norwich police late Saturday afternoon placed under arrest Linus S. Sterritt of No. 6 Nelson place. Bonds were given for him to await the arrival of officers from Pennsylvania.

The charge against Mr. Sterritt, it is understood, is issuing several checks without the necessary funds in the bank to meet them. The arrest here was made by Sergeant Myron O. Morgan and Officer Charles T. Smith.

Settled Before Trial.

The suit of Manual Gomas against Lawrence Delgado, both of this city, which came up for trial in the common pleas court here on Saturday was settled out of court. The suit was brought in a claim for $300 for building a wall and digging a trench at a place on Fox hill. Delgado made a counter-claim for $500, alleging that the work was so poorly done that the wall cracked and fell apart and couldn't be used for the work for which it was intended.

John S. Gray, president and treasurer of John S. Gray, Inc., shoe manufacturers, died yesterday at his home in Syracuse, N. Y., after an illness of several months.

SANG NEGRO SPIRITUALS AT CENTRAL BAPTIST

Negro spirituals sung by Mrs. Genevieve Ray-Bethel of New London were heard with deep appreciation by a large congregation Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. In the group of spirituals she sang four numbers by Burleigh beginning with My Way's Cloudy and following this with Sinner, Please Doan Let Dis Harvest pass, Weepin' Mary, and Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Chile. She also rendered the Dudley Buck anthem My Redeemer and My Lord.

The sermon by the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, was upon "The Master's Temptations and Ours." The preacher referred to the three special temptations which came to Jesus as he was about to begin his ministry and said they were such as come to a young man in reference to his life's work. Jesus met the first by realizing that his power was not to be used then or afterwards for himself but for others. What a wonderful community we could have if every man and woman in it could go forth with that spirit. The second temptation was a very real temptation for it concerned his influence upon the Jewish people. Why not cast yourself down from the pinnacle of the temple and prove to them that you are indeed the Son of God whom they are looking for? And the last temptation was such as comes to every man of ambition, the opportunity of gaining the victory by something of a compromise, by some questionable manner. Jesus realized the seriousness of this temptation and drove it from him. Refusing to compromise with the tempter, he held fast to God and gained the victory that founded a kingdom that is world-wide.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Walter G. Hitchon

After a long illness, the ideal life of Sarah Jane Tiplady, beloved wife of Walter G. Hitchon, came to a peaceful close at her late home, No. 327 Washington street with her devoted children and husband at her bedside, Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Mrs. Hitchon was born in Harpier, Ontario, Canada, December 31, 1871, the daughter of Elisabeth Crosby Tiplady and the late Thomas Tiplady. Her early education was received in Darby, Penn. Moving at an early age to Utica, N. Y., she was united in marriage in that city with Walter George Manley Hitchon. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Coleman of St. George church of which she was a communicant and a member of St. Agnes Guild.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchon came to Norwich in 1895 and have since made their home here. Mrs. Hitchon was a member of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, and ever took an active interest in church activities. She was a prominent member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church and of the guild and a member of Sachem chapter, No. 57, O. E. S.

Surviving Mrs. Hitchon are her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Tiplady and six children, Herbert M. Hitchon of Norwich, Mrs. Harry Wright of West Medford, Mass., Mrs. William Costello of Houston, Texas, Mrs. Maurice Gay of Uncasville, Walter Hitchon, Jr., and Howard Hitchon of Brown university. There are also six grand children, Betty, Carl and Sally Hitchon, Janet and Donald Wright and Jane Elizabeth Costello, two brothers, Herbert Tiplady of Philadelphia and Thomas Tiplady of Providence and one sister, Mrs. William Murray of Bristol.

Mrs. Hitchon was a loving and devoted wife and mother and was beloved by a wide circle of warm friends. She was the possessor of a very pleasing personality and a woman of fine character. Her removal from a useful life is sincerely regretted and deeply mourned by all.

C. August Albers

The life of C. August Albert came to a peaceful close Saturday morning in this city after an illness of several months. When still a young man he came to this country from Germany where he was born on January 2, 1867 and resided in Brooklyn, N. Y. In 1917 he came to Norwich with his wife and has lived here since. At the time of his death he resided at 28 Division street.

Mr. Albers was employed by the Atlantic Carton corporation of this city in the capacity of electrical and mechanical engineer. Besides the many employes to mourn this loss, the corporation feels deeply the going from them of this earnest, efficient and industrious worker. He proved himself of sterling character and had a loving and kind disposition.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Emma J. Albers, his sons, August and William, daughters, Mrs. H. Andermann, Mrs. George Wells, Mrs. William Steadley and a sister, Mrs. G. Meincke, all of New York city, and a host of mourning friends who highly respected and loved him. He was a very devoted husband and a loving father.

The body will be sent to New York by C. A. Gager for burial in a Brooklyn cemetery.

Frederick B. Jones

A message received in New Hartford last Tuesday morning brought the sad and surprising news of the death Monday at St. Petersburg, Fla., of Frederick B. Jones, a lifelong resident of New Hartford. With Mrs. Jones he went to the southern section several weeks ago, the health of Mrs. Jones having caused some apprehension for a short time prior to their departure. Mr. Jones, however, was in fine physical condition when he went south and word of his death came as a great shock to all who knew him. Both he and his wife had many Norwich acquaintances, having frequently visited Mrs. Jones' sister, Mrs. James L. Case of Warren street.

Mr. Jones was born in New Hartford and was 68 years of age. He was particularly well known throughout the entire section around New Hartford. Starting some years ago in modest circumstances, he built up a very successful manufacturing business, being engaged in the making of brushes on a large scale. He had represented his district in the state legislature and was highly thought of in legislative as well as business circles.

He was deeply interested in the banking and business life of New Hartford and was a director of the New Hartford Trust company, with which he had long been associated. He was a life long member of the North Congregational church of New Hartford and had served the church in an official capacity for many years. Since 1888 he had been clerk of the church, and since 1890 served as deacon. That his services were appreciated by the church members is shown in his repeated election to these important offices. He was always courteous, always ready to see the viewpoint of others. His spirit was ever a benediction and his judgment was unfailingly sought. Among his associates on the church board he was considered a man of soundest sense, every ready to give of his time and labor. His death will be widely and deeply mourned.

In his family he found his principal joy and was greatly devoted as a husband and father.

Mr. Jones is survived by his widow, Anna Stone Jones, three daughters Mrs. Dorothy Jones Heath of Hampton, Va., Miss Helen Jones of New York city, Miss Lucy Jones of Hampton, and a brother, Clarence E. Jones of New Hartford.

The body has been brought north for the funeral which is to be held at the North Congregational church, New Hartford.

Charles Frederick Sears.

Charles Frederick Sears, 58, died early Sunday morning at his home, No. 129 Prospect street, after an illness of a week with pneumonia. He was born in the Greeneville section, Oct. 12, 1867, son of Charles Frederick and Isabella Adams Sears, and had made his home in that part of the city all his life. He was married to Miss Fannie E. Perkins, Oct. 11, 1892, by his brother-in-law, Rev. H. B. Rankin. For many years he was employed by the C. D. Browning Co., and was postmaster at Greeneville for four years during President McKinley's administration. Following his term as postmaster he entered the employ of the United States Finishing company where he has been employed in the office for over 20 years. He was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church.

He is survived by his wife and four sons, William A., of Woonsocket, R. I., Thomas F., of Taftville, Charles F., of Swansea, Mass., and Nathan M., of this city, also one sister, Mrs. H. B. Rankin of Ludlow, Vt., and two brothers, William B. of Norwich and Nathan A. of New York city.

John M. Lee.

The death of John M. Lee, 67, a native of Jewett City, occurred Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at his home in Lisbon. "CONN. NIGHT" CELEBRATED BY AGGIE ATHLETES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., March 21—"Connecticut Night," the first of its kind ever given for Connecticut Aggie athletics, was held in the college dining hall last night. The main purpose of the affair was to award certificates to athletes who have made letters in football and basketball during the present college year, although talks by faculty members and alumni, and music, helped decidedly in making the evening more interesting. Twenty-five certificates were awarded in football and basketball, and practically all of Connecticut's student body was on hand to cheer the athletes as they received their awards.

President Charles Lewis Beach of the college acted as toastmaster, introducing George Hollister of Hartford, and president of the C. A. C. Alumni association, as the first speaker. He spoke highly of the Aggie teams, and of the 1926 basketball five he stated it deserved to be ranked as the champion combination of New England.

"The Intelligent Athlete" was the subject of an address by Dr. Henry K. Denlinger, professor of history at C. A. C. He pointed out that the intelligent athlete is also the intelligent student, and that our athletic games of today require intelligence if a man is to be successful in them. Education of the body is just as important as education of the mind, he said; the great danger being a lack of proper balance between the two.

Music for the affair was furnished by the college orchestra, and the C. A. C. Male Quartet.

TWO JOCKEYS CONFESS THEIR PART IN CROOKED RACE TRACK DEALS

CINCINNATI, March 21.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Enquirer tomorrow will print affidavits of jockeys James Wallace and Grover Noel, relating in detail parts they played in irregularities at Kentucky and Coney Island race tracks, which led to the ruling off yesterday of four jockeys and three owners and trainers. These affidavits among others, were obtained by investigators for presentation before the Kentucky state racing commission, meeting in Lexington.

Following its meeting yesterday, the commission announced that Jockeys Bert Harvey, Grover Noel, James Wallace, and Harry Stutts were ruled off the turf for life. Owners R. D. Williams, P. J. Williams and Tom Devereaux also were ruled off for life and denied all privileges.

Jockey J. A. Mooney was ruled off several months ago following the confession of Jockey D. Mergler that Mooney had paid him $1,000 to "pull" the horse Bumpkin in a race at Latonia. Mergler also was expelled for life.

The affidavit made by Jockey James Wallace, in part, follows:

"I arrived at Cincinnati, the later part of the race meeting at Coney Island track during the summer of 1925 and rode in quite a few races. I remember having ridden in the sixth race on September 1. In that race I had the mount on Bradley's Toney and bet on Bigheart, and Bigheart won. On September 4, I had the mount on Reputation and bet on Bigheart, and Bigheart won. I bet on both of these races through J. A. Mooney. . . .

"On September 8 I rode Reputation and won on him. I asked if they were going on with him and they said yes. So, believing that they had some help, I bet on him. Mooney and I bet $1500 on him and were to pay $1,000 if he lost, and Mr. Williams was to stand for the difference.

"J. A. Mooney and I are brothers-in-law. I would take orders from J. A. Mooney in races in which I rode. I had the privilege of either accepting so much money or taking the betting end of it. . . .

"After the Latonia meeting started, the first race we bet on was the fifth race, on September 21. We bet on Menifee straight and place. Menifee won and Energy finished second. Mack Garner had the mount on Energy. I was riding King Colin.

"On September 25 I had the mount on Cyclops in the fifth race. When Mooney told me this race was set for Energy I told him I would take mine like the rest. I had just lost two bets. After the race I went to Benny Beach's house for dinner. Then I told him I was going around to tell Joe goodbye, because I was going to St. Louis that night. I went to Joe's house and asked him for the money. Joe told me he did not have the money.

"We got into Joe's car and drove around to E. D. Williams' house. We both went in. We were taken into the parlor and Nick Williams and Joe went to the dining room. In a few minutes they both returned, and Mr. Williams handed me a check and asked "How is that?"

"I read it over and told him it was all right. It was a check for $1,000 made payable to me, and written on the face of it was 'for winning a reputation'" . . . .

The affidavit made by Jockey Grover Noel follows, in part:

"At Latonia race track on September 23, 1925, I had the mount on Ballot Brush in the fifth race. The morning of the said race day, I met J. A. Mooney on the street and he told me to come to Jockey H. Stutt's room, which I did. Upon my arrival at the room, I found J. A. Mooney, and he told me he would give me $1,000 if I would keep Ballot Brush out of the money that afternoon. That I agreed to do and I did as I had agreed, and that night J. A. Mooney paid me $1,000 by handing me ten $100 bills. . . .

"On October 6, J. A. Mooney gave me $750 to 'take' Lawless in the fourth race.

"On October 10, J. A. Mooney gave me $500 to 'take' Lord Meise. . . .

"At Lexington on November 19, 1925, I had the mount on T. S. Jordan in the fourth race. I agreed to pull him for $1,000, which I was offered me by J. A. Mooney. Two days later I was going down to the secretary's office and I met Tom Devereaux and he handed me two $500 bills. Mooney had previously told me Devereaux would give it to me."

MCKECHNIE SAYS HIS CLUB WILL REPEAT

PASO ROBLES, Calif., March 21—(AP)—Bill McKechnie, veteran pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates, can "see no reason" why his club should not repeat this season its triumphal march of 1925 through the National league and again capture the world's championship.

"Our chances for winning another championship are extremely bright," McKecnnie said today to the Associated Press. "In addition to the same players who defeated Washington in the last world's series, the club has been strengthened greatly by the addition of Paul Waner and Hal Rhyne from San Francisco.

"Waner is a wonderful hitter and will be in left field on opening day, replacing Clyde Barnhard. Rhyne has shown exceptional ability at second, third and short. Even if he should not crowd out Eddie Moore at second base, he will make a valuable utility infielder.

"In the pitching department, Sheehan has shown enough to warrant saying he will be of great service this season. Of the newcomers, Crowder and Songer give every indication of being major league timber.

"I feel we have the hardest hitting and best base-running club on the National league. Backing this up with such infielders as Wright, Traynor, Arey and Cuyler and better than average pitchers, I can see no reason why we should not repeat in the National league and successfully defend our laurels against the American league champions next fall."

RICKARD IN CHICAGO ON BUSINESS TRIP

CHICAGO, March 21.—(AP) — Tex Rickard, New York boxing promoter, was here today on a business mission but beyond admitting that fact was non-committal. He conceded some definite plans were on foot but said he could not divulge them before a week or ten days.

The promoter denied that he came to Chicago for a conference with Jack Dempsey but announced that he had received a wire from the heavyweight champion in California tentatively agreeing to a match with Gene Tunney in New York during August. No contracts have been signed, Richard said.

Of the reports that Dempsey and Harry Wills will battle for the heavyweight title here on Labor day, Tex expressed a hope that the match "will be held as far away from Chicago as possible."

Rickard declared he had no intention of entering the middle west fight promotion field.

AGGIE FOOTBALL SQUAD HOLDING SPRING PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., March 21—With the memory of a disastrous 1925 football season to spur them on, candidates for this year's Connecticut Aggie eleven this week got down to real work in their first preparation for the season that will get under way in earnest next September.

Forty-eight men, the largest group Coach Dole has ever had to work with at Storrs, answered first call that was sounded this week. Despite the large group of candidates, however, Sumner Dole is faced with a difficult task as he plans his 1926 campaign. With only six lettermen from last season's squad as a nucleus, and three of four possibilities from the sophomore class, Dole's material is a group of green and inexperienced youngsters. They are all hard workers and willing, but the fact remains that few of this year's gridiron aspirants have experienced any appreciable amount of intercollegiate competition. Of particular satisfaction to Dole, however, is the fact the competition for varsity berths will be keener than ever this year. Up to this time, because of the small number of candidates, this condition has been lacking.

NEW LONDON TAKES HONORS IN E. C. VOLLEYBALL

Some interesting volleyball games resulted in the state sectional volleyball tournament games held in the Y. M. C. A. gym Saturday afternoon, when the New Londonites easily captured the privilege of participating in the finals to be held at Hartford next Saturday afternoon. Norwich split on the number of games won and lost, which entitled them to second, while the Thread City sextette dropped all their opportunities of winning.

The lineup of teams was as follows:

Norwich—H. E. Robbins, J. Evans, E. G. Dunbar, J. Oaten, F. Harwood, E. A. Harris, Cornwall Jackson.

New London—Barnes, Allen, Bates, Gadbois, Cady, Bessemer.

Willimantic—Cummings, Lathrop, Fraser, Mustard, Hillhouse, Ridgeway

Score of games: New London 15-15, Norwich 6-7, Norwich 15-15, Willimantic 11-8; Willimantic 4-3, New London 15-15.

Officials, A. Bliven, referee; E. Davis, umpire, W. Wyman, scorer; Mustard, Fraser, Robbins, Dunbar, Badbois, Cady, linesmen.

What About the Checker Tourney?

Sporting Editor:—Perhaps these few lines may not mean much to some of the readers of the sports section of the Bulletin and again perhaps some may think that I am trying to pry my way into other peoples' business but I am willing to take my chances in asking, "What has become of the proposed Duwell checker championship tournament which I believe was to have started on Tuesday, March 9th? For almost two weeks the local papers as well as a few outside papers contained articles announcing this tourney and judging from what talk I had heard succeeded in carring up considerable interest. It happen to know that quite a few checker players representing New London, Putnam, Willimantic, Lebanon, Franklin and Norwich had entered and everything was practically all set for this much talked of tournament to start until two days before March 9, the day set for the beginning of this so-called championship contest when it was announced that owing to unforseen circumstances it was found necessary to postpone the tournament for two weeks. I will admit that it is no business of mine what these unforseen circumstances may be but the two weeks have passed and nothing more has been said or heard of this tournament and I am going to take this opportunity to ask whether this tourney is going to be held and if so, when? In writing these few lines I do not mean to cast any reflections upon the Duwell club as I have always considered myself one of their most ardent supporters and will say that they have done considerable towards promoting sports in Norwich and I hope that they will carry through this proposed championship tourney as I am sure that it will create considerable interest throughout eastern Connecticut. Although checkers is not as lively a sport as football or baseball, I believe that there are many who would be real interested in such a tournament.

Hoping that this letter will start things rolling, I remain,

CHECKERS.

RULES COMMITTEE PUTS CHECK ON FORWARD PASS

The indiscriminate use of the forward pass, football's most modern and spectacular instrument of scoring, was checked Saturday when the delegates to the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Football Rules committee at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, changed the rule covering incompleted passes by imposing a penalty of five yards for each grounded toss after the first one between first downs.

Under the new rule, which has yet to be put into its proper phraseology by a codification committee, a team seeking to make a first down by a forward pass may make one unsuccessful attempt through the air without penalty. If a second or a third pass is tried and fails the ball will go back five yards in each instance. After the first down is made the next pass, if incompleted, goes without penalty except the regular loss of a down.

One other change of significance and two changes of minor import were made in the rules before Chairman E. K. Hall adjourned the second and final day's session of the meeting. The rule regarding the safety has been amended so as to put an end to the practice of teams holding a lead of three or more points resorting to the safety in the closing stages rather than give their opponents possession of the ball and a chance to win the game.

Holder of Ball Must Kick

Under the changed rule the ball, after a safety, will be put into play by the team making it on its own 20-yard line, instead of the 30-yard line as heretofore. In addition, the team in possession of the ball must kick on the first play, the opponents being restrained by a line 10 yards in advance, or at the 30-yard mark. Heretofore the team in the lead was able to keep the ball in its possession until the game ended by allowing itself to be carried back if it was unable to advance, and take the loss of the two points. In the case where a team held a lead of six points it could afford to lose four points on safeties and still win, although its opponent might be much the stronger at the end.

In the game between Michigan and Northwestern last fall, Northwestern, holding a 3 to 0 lead, resorted to the safety when it found itself being outplayed in the closing stages, and Michigan had no chance to carry the ball. While admiring the strategy of the Northwestern quarterback in calling for a deliberate safety, Mr. Hall stated that it wasn't the purpose of the safety rule to enable a team to profit in this way by it, as it did not give the opponents a fighting chance to get possession of the ball.

Under the changed rule, the only way in which a team can keep possession of the ball following a safety is to use the onside kick.

Ground Rules Change

The two minor changes have to do with the ground rules and players going out of bounds on a kick-off or free kick. The ground rules were changed to apply at the side and end lines instead of outside the playing enclosure as heretofore. The purpose of the change is to prevent the scramble for the ball which frequently occurs between the players' benches and near the stands, sometimes resulting in injury. The change simply fixes new limitations to the playing area and confines the play to the playing field and inside the lines.

On kick-offs or free kicks no player who goes out of bounds shall be entitled to recover the ball is the purport of the fourth change. This change has covered passes and the rule is now applicable to kicks as well. It has been the practice in some cases for an end going down under a kick to step outside the side line to avoid interference with his passage. Under the changed rule he is disqualified from recovering the ball.

The change in the forward pass rule is one of the most important that has been made in several years by the rule makers. It is aimed directly at the practice of teams far behind in the closing stages throwing passes with abandon, gambling on the chance completion of a pass for a score when they have nothing to lose.

The rules committee believed that this indiscriminate use of the pass is undesirable and that it does not add anything to the skill of the game. The penalty to be inflicted should have the effect of making a team more careful in employing the air attack and also should lead to coaches giving more attention to drilling their teams in the pass.

Better Passing Expected

Forward passing should become more finished in its conception and execution and only a well-schooled team now can afford to employ it generously in its attack. The change is made simply for its moral effect and means nothing to a smart passing team, such as was the Dartmouth eleven of last year. It means that there will be more teams like Dartmouth, or at least that coaches will give the same careful attention to the pass that Jesse Hawley gives if they choose to make it an important instrument of their attack.

As usual the committee considered proposals for changes in the rule regarding the point after touchdown but decided to stand by it. Several years ago a change was made whereby the point is tried for from scrimmage, giving the team scored on more of a chance to prevent the point being made, and the committee decided that to go beyond this was unnecessary, although there are some who favor doing away with the point entirely.

The anticipated discussion over the appointment of an extra official to devote himself to watching for interference with the receiver of a pass did not materialize and after a number of minor clarifications had been made in the rules the delegates adjourned early in the afternoon, satisfied that they had done nothing to detract in any way from the game's interest, skill or sporting character and had effected two changes that should add to all three.

CHARLEY HOFF CARRIES OFF INDOOR ATHLETIC HONORS FOR THE SEASON

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—For the second year in succession the crown of indoor athletic supremacy in America rests upon the head of an invader from that new cradle of track and field super-men, Scandinavia. The laurels which last season went to the phantom of Finland, Paavo Nurmi, go without dispute this year to the vaulting Viking of Norway, Charley Hoff.

Capturing the imagination of fandom as much by his winning personality as by his astonishing feats in the pole vault and his all-round prowess, this smiling, dark haired youth of 23 was the redeeming star of an indoor season otherwise colorless and disappointing, particularly by comparison with the blazing pace of 1925.

Rising to super-heights where other invading stars such as Hubert Houben, Gordon Goodwin and Adrian Paulen fell by the wayside, Hoff figured in 11 of the 45 world's record performances which punctuated the campaign. This total was far short of the unprecedented record crop of 1925, when 128 performances equalled or bettered world marks, but Hoff's ratio compared favorably with that of Nurmi, who accounted for 24 of last season's record figures.

The lithe Norwegian capped the climax of his indoor achievements during the past week, the last of the season, by shattering both the world's broad jump and pole vault records in taking the world's all-round championship battle from Emerson Norton and Harold Osborn. He added the final touch of artistry last night with another record vault, though also watching his newly won broad jump honors go to DeHart Hubbard, negro holder of the world's outdoor record.

All told Hoff raised the pole vault record 10 times in a period of six weeks, soaring without interruption from 13 feet one inch to 13 feet 3 1-2 inches, a mark which is not far from the outdoor record of 13 feet 11 13-16 inches, which the Viking also holds.

The season's record breaking was accompanied by a general shake-up in the array of champions, although injuries and other mishaps robbed the campaign of much of its competitive flavor. The major share of sprint honors, for instance, went to Chet Bowman, Newark A. C. flash, after Loren Murchison of the Illinois A. C., premier speed merchant for several years was forced out by strained ligaments. Murchison was undefeated in the early stages of the season, however, and lifted the scalp of his German rival, Houben, before retiring.

A weak ankle not only kept Osborn from high jumping in anywhere near his usual form but forced him to quit the all-around battle with Hoff and Norton.

Although he flashed several brilliant performances, two in world's record time, Alan Helffrich yielded the better share of middle distance laurels to Ray Robertson of the Boston A. A. who closed the season with two sensational victories over the New York A. C. star.

Distance running was in almost total eclipse, despite the gallant efforts of Willie Ritola, sturdy Finnish-American, who was without a real rival for the first time in several years as a result of Nurmi's absence and Joie Ray's decision to turn "pro" after a long and colorful career as an amateur.

Shot-put giants stood out in middle western activity, John Kuch of Kansas State Teachers college setting a new indoor mark of 50 feet 6 3-4 inches which Herb Schwartz of Wisconsin eclipsed by tossing the 16 pound iron ball 50 feet 7 5-8 inches. Of the "big three" of America's 1924 Olympic team, Hills, Hartranft and Houser, retain their form, this country will boast at least five men capable of bettering 50 feet in the next international games with the further prospect that some one of them may soon shatter Ralph Rose's 17-year-old world's record of 51 feet.

Others on the honor roll of 1926 record performers include Chick Werner of Illinois, John Murphy of Boston college, Herb Meyer of the Newark A. C., George Guthrie of Ohio State, and S. M. Taylor of the Illinois A. C. in the hurdles; Bowman, Murchison, DeHart Hubbard, and Frank Hussey of Boston college in the sprints; Holy Cross and Georgetown in the relays.

Team honors in the National A. A. U. championships were retained by the Illinois Athletic club; Harvard winning its first team crown since 1909, dislodged Georgetown as the intercollegiate A. A. A. champion while the University of Iowa won the western conference title.

C. F. C. QUINTET PROVES TOO STRONG FOR BALTIC

Saturday evening on the "Y" floor the local C. F. C. quintet routed the Baltic Independents by 61-19. The first three minutes were exceedingly tense with the score two all but just then Lambert, Leffingwell and Brown ran wild and showed the visitors how the ball should be dropped through the basket; Leffingwell, after being in hard luck for the past few games, found his eye again and caged twelve shots from the floor, Brown played his old game of taking the ball down the floor and then letting it fall through the hoop, Ludlow and Armstrong together with the others made a formation that was almost impregnable to the visitors. The Baltic boys played fine individually but had not the slightest idea of teamwork which made them unable to cope with local team's fine passwork.

NISS WILLS AND PARTNER WIN MIXED DOUBLES FINALS

CANNES, France, March 21.—(AP)—Miss Helen Wills, the American tennis champion, and her French partner, Henri Cochet, won the finals in the mixed doubles of the Cannes tennis tournament today, defeating Miss Jean Radcliffe and Captain Bernard Meyer, 7-5, 6-1.

Miss Wills for the first time in her Riviera tour abandoned her "poker face" attitude, and smiled and laughed throughout the play, as she numbered many friends among the onlookers. Her partner, Cochet, however, put up a grim and savage fight for every point.

Miss Wills will meet Miss Joan Ridley, of England, in the singles finals tomorrow.

TO MEASURE HORSEPOWER EXPENDED BY ATHLETE

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—The first successful scientific measurement in horsepower of the energy expended by an athlete in action is announced in an article by A. H. Hill, professor in physiology at University college, London, in the current issue of The Scientific American. He also suggests a method of timing athletic events more accurately by electricity.

Professor Hill, who is a nobel prize winner in medicine, found the athlete expends 80,000 foot pounds of energy in running 100 yards in eleven seconds,—"enough, if employed with a mechanical efficiency of 25 per cent., to raise the subject's body (about 140 pounds) 146 feet into the air." During a prolonged athletic effort, the athlete's heart pumps blood at the rate of 14 to 18 gallons the minute, the article declares.

For the more accurate timing of athletic events, Professor Hill suggests the runner wear a magnetized wire sewn in his clothing. As he crosses the finish line, a magnet acting on a coil at the side of the track, connected to a galvanometer, would give a scientifically accurate time record that could be read to two one-thousandths of a second.

DRESSE TO REMAIN AT ORLANDO TO HAME ARM TREATED

CINCINNATI, O., March 21—(AP)—Charles Dresse, infielder, of whom much was expected this season, was left at Orlando to have his arm treated by a specialist, when the Cincinnati Reds broke training camp and started on the homeward bound campaign. Soreness in his throwing arm kept Dressen out of the game the greater part of last season. Many so-called cures were tried without avail.

The Reds rested today, at St. Petersburg. On Monday they play the Washing Senators at Tampa.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF NOTED FRENCH SPORTSMAN

PARIS, March 21—(AP)—Parisian sportsmen are considerably alarmed over the safety of Alain J. Gerbault, noted French tennis player and daring yachtsman, who sailed alone around the world in a small yawl, is long overdue at Tahiti, the largest of the society island group in the Pacific. He left the island of Galapagos more than two months ago, and should have reached the Society island within forty days.

Gerbault first attracted yachting attention in 1923 when he sailed alone across the Atlantic in a small, poorly-equipped sloop.

BENNETT HILL SMASHES RECORD IN 250-MILE AUTO RACE AT CULVER CITY

CULVER CITY, Calif., Mar. 21—(AP)—Bennett Hill, known on the board tracks as the hard luck driver, shook off his jinx and won the 250 mile automobile race at the Culver City speedway here today.

Driving a non-stop rate, he established a new record for 250 miles, covering the distance in 1-51-53 4-5, an average speed of 130.69 miles an hour. The former record, 129.2, was made by Peter De Paolo at Miami, Fla., February 22.

De Paolo, 1925 speedway champion finished second, about lap behind Hill. Eddie Hearne, driving the car of Tommy Milton, who recently retired, finished third; Ralph Hepburn, fourth; Harry Hartz, fifth; Frank Elliott, sixth, and Dave Evans, seventh.

The classic was attended by about 40,000 persons, a small crowd as compared with previous races.

Hill received $10,000 as the winner's prize, and $5,000 additional in lap prizes. He led through most of the race. He went into first place on the second lap, but held the position for only a short time. On the 39th lap he took the lead away from Dave Lewis, and held it for the remainder of the 250 miles.

CARLARIS REPEATS LAST WEEK'S VICTORY AT TIJUANA

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—W. T. Anderson's Carlaris, winner of last week's Tijuana handicap, repeated today in the Coffroth preliminary at a mile and a furlong, breaking the track record in 1:49 3-5. Kentucky Cardinal was second and Cherry Tree third. Princess Doreen, Sunspero, Elector and Spic and Span finished in that order.

Carlaris was the victim of interference at the start and got away sixth with Princess Doreen, on the rail, out ahead and Kentucky Cardinal in pursuit. Munden rode Carlaris hard and rounded the leaders before the quarter had been passed. Princess Doreen failed in the stretch.

Alister, of the Dudley farm, won the Pasadena handicap of 5 1-2 furlongs from Serenader and Capistrano in 1:04 4-5, equaling the track record.

It is not unusual for good foxhounds to be sold for $2000 to $3500 in England.

DANIELSON HI-Y WINS E. C. BASKETBALL TITLE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 21.—The Danielson Hi-Y basketball team gained further recognition here Saturday night when it defeated the Mystic All-Stars for the Hi-Y championship of Eastern Connecticut by an 18 to 12 score. The Danielson club, having won the county championship and the right to represent the county as such in an elimination tournament at the Danielson town hall last Thursday, met Mystic, the hand-picked team of all the stars of the teams of New London county. Danielson was successful in subduing them after a hard-fought battle.

The score fails to indicate the closeness of the game and it was because of the almost impenetrable guarding on the part of both teams that it was kept so low. So close was the game that at the end of the first quarter Mystic led 4 to 3 and at half time Danielson was leading 8 to 5, only three baskets having been made in the entire half. The score stood 11 to 7 in Danielson's favor at the end of the third period and with the score at 13 to 11 in the final quarter, Danielson having but one point lead, Conklin of Danielson opened an attack with one of his famous long shots which resulted in an avalanche of points and victory. Fulton, Danielson's right guard was high scorer of the evening with seven points and Sklarew of Mystic was second with a total of six.

A peculiar incident was the fact that the Mystic team was composed of three pairs of brothers and Sklarew. By virtue of this win the Danielson team enters the semi-finals, the date of which it will be held and the team to be played at present is uncertain. The summary:

NEW LONDON BOOTLEGGER AND WIFE PAY $1,000 IN CITY COURT FINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 21—Bessie Sheinman and her husband made a mistake when they bought the house at the corner of Washington and Brewer streets and engaged in the business of selling liquor. The house was conducted as a rooming place. It is opposite the home of the Elks and so situated that it is convenient and in the center of a much travelled section. That was what led to the detection of the owners in carrying on a business that is prohibited by law. Saturday Mrs. Scheinman was fined $400 for selling. Previously her husband was fined $600 for the same offense. That made the cost of their experience more than $1,000, which probably tops their profits by a considerable sum. They had their chance after the first conviction, but they did not take advantage of it and went into the business again. It is claimed that they were so bold and defiant that they resumed selling immediately after the first conviction. They were allowed to continue unmolested until they were nabbed Friday. They were caught red-handed, so to speak. Lonnie Brewer went in there and bought his booze, paying $3 a pint for the "hard" stuff and fifteen cents a bottle for beer. Even at that rice it is not apparent that a thousand in profits was in sight. Lonnie was interrogated by the police when he was nabbed, and gave all the information he had. Then a search warrant revealed the business of the Scheinmans. They were prosecuted and convicted. Mrs. Scheinman did not go to jail, but that was because there were others to be considered—a son who is in the high school and other children. But she was warned and consideration for the rest of the family is not apt to enter into the sentence that would come for another conviction.

The Scheinmans came here from Willimantic four years ago. They were in the grocery business in the Thread City and it is claimed their place was burned. Then it developed that the books of the business were so loosely kept that information sought was not obtained. With the judgment passed upon the woman Saturday is a provision that the police shall have unhindered access to the Scheinman house at any time for the purpose of making an investigation. The couple promised to refrain from future selling. The police reported the place to be a bad one, and had the proof that what they allege is absolutely true. It is claimed that the Scheinmans are convinced that they are in a business they cannot afford to conduct and that they will not be caught again.

Bessie Lubchansky, residing in North Bank street, was fined $200. She was found selling both beer and booze. Lonnie Brewer was a customer at her place, too. He bought and then disclosed what he had done with the result that Bessie paid some $225 into the court treasury. The session of the court Saturday was a fairly profitable one.

Sam Sylvester has had a charge of breach of the peace hanging over him for the past three months, but the probation officer reported Saturday that Sylvester and his wife were living in peace now, so the charge against the husband was nolled.

The police court when it convenes Monday morning will have its usual number of drunks to claim the attention of Judge S. Victor Prince for a half dozen inebriates were gathered Saturday night. All were residents of New London, excepting one, James Hazier of Groton. He provided a surety on his bond of $2 for his court appearance.

"PONZI" SANTANGELO BACK FROM PITTSFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 21—James Santangelo, of Griswold court, familiarly known as "Pousi," will be in the police court Monday morning charged with assault and battery. He was taken into custody for the New London police Saturday afternoon at Pittsfield, Mass. This evening, Sergeant John Cavanaugh returned to New London with the prisoner, who waived extradition as he expressed a willingness to return to New London and take his chances with a court trial.

Santangelo three weeks ago, with Peter Falvey, John Brutsman and John Beebe, engaged in an unprovoked fight with coast guard sailors on Bank street, near Golden street. The battle was ended by the police, but the four youths during further combat with the sailors, jumped into a public service automobile and went to Hamilton street, where they awaited the arrival of the sailors, who were walking across Shaw's cove bridge to go to the coast guard reservation. When the sailors arrived at Hamilton street, the youths again attacked them. On the arrival of the sailors at the reservation the fight was made known there and the police were notified. Officers were dispatched to the scene of the combat and Falvey, Brutsman and Beebe were arrested, but Santangelo made his escape. In the police court the following day the three were disciplined, but Falvey and Brutzman besides receiving a fine, were sentenced to 10 days in jail. Santangelo made himself scarce and left the city. Saturday the Pittsfield police, who became possessed of knowledge that Santangelo was wanted in New London, placed the young man under arrest and then communicated with the New London authorities. A warrant for Santangelo's was issued by an acting prosecuting attorney and this forenoon Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to Pittsfield and took charge of the prisoner, returning with Santangelo tonight.

OFFICER MICHAEL B. O'NEILL PATROLMAN ABOUT 35 YEARS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 21—Another member of the New London police department is to be retired within the next few days. This time the member who will receive a pension from the city is Patrolman Michael B. O'Neill, the oldest patrolman in years of seniority in the department. Patrolman O'Neill has made it known to Captain Charles A. Pinney that he desires to be pensioned and the former has been advised to take up the matter with City Manager William A. Holt. Officer O'Neill has been in continuous service as a patrolman about 35 years and until recently his health was robust. About three months ago the officer gave indications of unsound health and about two weeks ago when his wife died the officer displayed signs of a general breaking down. In fact, it is understood, that Officer O'Neill suffered a slight shock a few days ago, which has affected slightly his left side, making him unfit to further perform the arduous duties of patrolman. It is known that members of the city council are favorable toward granting the retirement request of the officer and it would not be surprising if such action was taken at the regular meeting of the city council Monday evening.

Mrs. Henry Tedford, of 67 Blackhall street, Mrs. Oscar Russell and infant daughter, 1 Morse avenue, Groton; James Kirby, 16 Jay street, and Mrs. John Jensen and infant son, 14 Crocker street, were patients discharged at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital Saturday.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has ordered the operator's license of Gustav Brubaga, 95 Smith street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

The Mariners Savings bank has sold the former Daniel Crowley residence, Howard street, to Eugenie Tramantaro.

A Buick sedan, bearing Connecticut registration, Y-4841, was stolen from the streets of New Haven Saturday night and today the police of this city were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen car.

An automobile owned and operated by Christopher Chrisos, Grove avenue, Groton, and a machine owned and driven by Louis Swan, of this city, were in collision Saturday night on Main street. Both machines were damaged, slightly.

Frederick Bushey, 72 Jefferson avenue, reported to the police Saturday evening that a deep depression existed in the highway in front of his residence and created a condition of danger to autoists. The matter was reported to City Manager William A. Holt, who caused danger signs to be placed at the spot and Monday repairs will be made.

The Providence police communicated with the New London authorities Saturday night stating that a sister of Frank Capwell, an employe of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad was in a dying condition at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Clinton Smith, 27 Morton street, Providence and requested that Capwell be notified. Inquiry revealed that Capwell was employed as a crossing tender at Guilford and the railroad officials here communicated the information to Capwell, that he might go to the bedside of his sister.

The New London police this evening recovered a stolen automobile and the first that the police were aware that the car had been stolen was when they located the machine apparently abandoned on Williams street, corner of Mohegan avenue. Just before Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy went off duty this evening he was informed that a car had been beside the highway on Williams street the entire day. Later Patrolman Augustus Kay inspected the machine, a Willys-Knight roadster which had been damaged. A search of the car resulted in the finding of the registration of the owner, William W. Miller, 41 Washington street, Middletown. The police of that city were communicated with and it was then revealed that the car had been stolen from a street of Middletown Saturday night. The car was removed to a garage and the owner will come here Monday to take charge of it.

Next Friday evening an examination will take place in the Jennings school of 35 applicants, who desire to become members of the police department. The examinations to be held are for the purpose of determining the mental efficiency of the applicants, for within a comparatively short time the applicants submitted to a physical examination by City Physician George P. Cheney and were found fit. The city charter provides that a supernumerary list of officers of 12 members shall be maintained at all times, but at the present time and for nearly six months the department has had but one supernumerary officer and this officer, Henry Sylvia has been on duty almost continuously, performing regular patrol duty.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney will have motorcycle officers to be assigned to duty April 1st, but before the officers can assume this duty it will be necessary for the city to purchase two motorcycles. The cycles used heretofore have outworn their usefulness at least this is the case in one of the cycles, which is absolutely useless. The other can be put in a condition of repair and will be so that it can be used in the event of an emergency. The officers who will be assigned to this duty April 1 will be Patrolmen Augustus Ray and George McCaskey, the same officers who performed motorcycle duty last year, with Patrolman Clarence Martin being used as a substitute driver.

Patrolmen Walter Hehn and William Manice, who have been ill for several days have returned to duty, the former resuming his patrol this evening and the latter having resumed duty Friday night.

Patrolman Clarence Wells is confined to his home, Tilley street, by illness and it is among the possibilities that the officer will shortly undergo a minor operation.

WESTMINSTER

A spirit of friendly rivalry seemed to prevail among the nine schools of Canterbury to provision the library supper bountifully, and to be present for that and for the exercises at its conclusion. All the teachers of the town were present with one exception. And lots and lots of children with more than as many more uncles, aunts, cousins, relatives and friends of themselves and of the library! The fates were propitious, including the weather man and everybody had a delightful evening. Miss Baldwin, president of the Library association, was the quiet and able maneger of the affair, seconded by her efficient aides the library officials, and others appointed. The teachers and a number of young ladies and girls waited on the tables, which had to be reset a number of times. Supervisor Edwin B. Floyd had charge of the short program. Members of Frost school sang; a wee little girl stood in a chair and gave a very long poem with remarkable ability, both as to memory and expression. Another recitation was followed by a short statement concerning the library and its finances, by Supt Floyd, who then presented Mrs. Belle Holcomb Johnson, state inspector of libraries, heartily welcomed.

Mrs. Johnson complimented the town and its people for their achievement of a town library, regretted their losing $100 through the town's not taking over the library; and hoped they would do so at the next meeting and by appropriating $100 for it, receive a state grant of the same amount. She congratulated Canterbury on the number of books with which the library opens 500; few new libraries beginning existence with so large a number. Mrs. Johnson then read a fairy tale and two poems to the great enjoyment of both the real children present and those of larger growth. In closing Mrs Johnson said she and the librarian, Mrs. Fred Kinne would gladly give out books to those who could stop to be registered. Many stopped. Supervisor Floyd reported $68 received, 27 from three schools; and expressed the belief that Canterbury indicated by its presence in such large numbers that she appreciated and would fully sustain her library.

Elwood Hubbard, who came home early last fall to recuperate from a serious case of appendicitis and was for some time employed in Willimantic returned to New York Monday.

Mrs. Agnes Wood had a severe cold and remained at home last week, resuming her daily trips to Willimantic Thread mills this week.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Soul Mates, Jack Conway's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and tomorrow, is based on The Reason Why, Elinor Glyn's most popular novel since Three Weeks. The story is laid in England and deals with love between an English lord and the daughter of an English financier in Mme. Glyn's inimitable fashion. The story is an ardent romance, and in it the heroine, played by Aileen Pringle, is confronted with the question—Should she let the man she loves marry her for her money? Edmund Lowe plays the male lead.

The Pathe news and a roaring two part educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theater

Laur. LaPlante in "the beautiful cheat" in the Universal-Jewel of that name which is now showing at the Broadway theater.

There is no denying that the petite blonde star is one of the screen's most attractive personalities, while as for her being a cheat—well, no one would claim that she had cheats when it comes to purveying rollicking entertainment, for she is adorable in her role of the little shop girl who rises to cinema fame disguised, or rather, proclaimed as a Russian actress of great renown.

Harry Myers makes a dashing leading man in the role of a press agent while Alexander Carr is a sympathetic movie producer. Bertram Grassby is the foreign nobleman who loses his heart to the actress and then loses the girl. One can't help feeling sorry for him.

When Nina Wilcox Putnam wrote her Saturday Evening Post movie stories she must have considered their screen possibilities, for the story is a well-knit unit. A. P. Younger wrote the continuity.

Edward Sloman, director of many dramatic productions, demonstrates his adaptability at making light comedy and up to the minute Kinograms serves great credit for his sympathetic handling of the charming commedienne star.

Other features include a new comedy and aup to the minute Kinograms with news of the world.

POETRY

Under the Olives

"Awake thou that sleepest."—Eph. 5: 14.

Beneath dark olive trees He knelt,
Whose leaves, bedewed, seemed thus to weep,
In sympathy His sorrows felt,
While friends He loved fell fast asleep.

Centuries have faded—through all lands
His cross, uplifed, is displayed,
Cathedral risen, sublime and grand,
Yet still lay-millions He's betrayed.

Their souls, for whom was given His life
For whom, in prayer, His heart did break,
Take but their ease and dream, asleep,
Watch not an hour, nor pitying wake.

O Master, grant we wake with Thee
Though world minds sleep nor drop a tear;
We'd kneel 'neath shadowy olvie tree
With Thee, whose "love casts out all fear."

We'd kneel with heart repentance deep
That spirit ruled by flesh should be,
End thus our worldly, wanton sleep
And lack of sympathy with Thee.

The olives went—soon pierced the spear;
Yet from death's garden — watched by foes—
Christ's triumph Psalm of Life, we hear,
Wake, sleeping souls—thy Saviour rose!
—By Rev. George Q. Phippa.

At the Telescope

I saw the moons of Jupiter!
The cloth for tea was just laid on,
And toasting of the cheese begun.
When out of doors I sensed a stir
And one child calling "Wait for her!
O mother, come and see this star,
Brought down as globe as lanterns are!
But think! to see a rounded star!
And rounded stars look much more far!"
Apron and all I ran to share
My boy's great moment. What a night!
Frost, a new moon, sweet biting air,
And through the telescope, I swear,
A fragile berry filled with light!
I saw it with these very eyes . . . .
I saw the drop of light that swung
Its four faint sailing moons among!
(The moons looked only half the size
Of scales of minnows.) "And that star
Has me transported twice as far
As Jupiter from Earth," I said
For in my veins and in my head
Great joy and wonder blazed and shone
To think what I had gazed upon—
Moons of a planet in the skies
Seen with the kitchen-gazing eyes!
—Sarah N. Cleghorn, in Harper's

KALEIDOSCOPE

A skull found in the Garden of the Gods, in Colorado is believed to be that of an Indian woman—one of the oldest inhabitants in North America.

The huge size of the California condor is attributed to the fact that it feeds on the brain of its prey, which contains the pituitary gland, the center for growth.

The citadel of Beth-Shan, where King Saul's body was shown to the people after his death, is being excavated by archaeologists from the University of Pennsylvania.

Rutland, Vt., averaged one fire a day for the month of January. When firemen were called about 8:30 p. m., January 29, by an alarm, sounded from Box 29, to put out a chimney fire, it was the twenty-ninth call of the month.

Herbert Kumer, 14, of Pittsburgh while playing along the shore of the Allegheny river, made a wish. "See, I wish I had a dime. I'd get a chocolate soda." Just then a cake of ice with something green sticking from its side hove in sight. The ice was retrieved, melted, and in the slush was a $10 bill.

A glass has been invented by an Austrian chemist which is transparent as ordinary window glass, noninflamable, and remains clear under all atmospheric conditions. It is hard enough to be safe from accidental scratching, but it can be broken by the bare hand without risk of cuts. It is only half the weight of ordinary glass.

A kitten at the Emery home at Industry, Me., disappeared and in the family search that followed Andrew Emery reached into the back of an organ that he had bought for a trifle from Arthur Millard, a summer resident of Farmington. He didn't find the kitten but laid hold of a bundle of papers. Withdrawing the package he found it contained bank books showing deposits of more than $4,000 and about $1,000 in marketable stocks.

Because the fire department of Cercedo, W. Va., was misplaced, the business district of that town was threatened with destruction when a blaze originating in a poolroom spread to adjoining buildings. The village fire apparatus had been destroyed by fire previously. A truck and 500 feet of hose were bought and stored in a private garage, but the firemen did not know where. After an hour's search the apparatus was found. Meanwhile the Kenova department had extinguished the blaze.

Winchester (N. H.) residents stopped at the iron bridge in the town to watch the frantic efforts of a pigeon to free itself. The bird was hanging from a tree branch high in the air by a string which was fastened to one leg and had become entangled in the tree, leaving the bird about three feet below the branch. The onlookers surveyed every possible way of freeing the bird, but Tom Barden settled it by firing a shot and cutting the string. The bird flew away dangling about it was enticed into a pigeon loft where it was sliced into a pigeon loft where the string was removed.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Pronounced reactionary tendencies developed in nearly all the principal security and commodity markets this week. Stock prices broke sharply, the average of 50 leading industrial issues sagging to within a small fraction of the lower level established the sensational collapse earlier in the month. Wheat futures sold down corn and raw sugar options touched new low levels for the season, cotton recorded moderate declines and French francs sank to the lowest level since 1934.

The severe reaction in stocks naturally had a depressing influence on the business sentiment. In quarters where the stock market is accepted as a barometer of business conditions, it revived fears that a slump in trade was in prospect, but with bank clearings, savings bank deposits and freight car loadings being maintained at record high levels, no serious depression is looked for in responsible quarters.

The credit situation continues relatively easy. Time money rates were reduced during the week to 4 1-2 per cent, the lowest general level prevailing since last October. Call money held steady at 4 1-4 per cent all week, but loans in the "outside market" were available below that figure.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Voice of Spring

I come, I come! ye have called long;
I come o'er the mountains, with light and song!
Ye may trace my step o'er the waking earth
By the winds which tell of the violets birth.
By the primrose-stars in the shadowy grass.
By the green leaves opening as I pass.

I have sent through the woodpathe a slowing sigh.
And called out each voice of the deep blue sky;
From the night-bird's lay through the starry time.
In the groves of the soft Hesperian clime.
To the swan's wild note, by the Iceland lakes.
When the dark fir-branch into verdure breaks.

From the streams and founts I have loosed the chain:
They are swe

TAFTVILLE

Miss Mary Bicknell of South B street has resigned her position with the spinning department of the Ponemah mills.

At the morning service Sunday at the Taftville Congregational church, the sermon of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, was a lenten topic, Prayer. In the anthem after the offertory, the soprano solo parts were sung by Miss Mildred C. Kloss. A memorial service for Fanny Crosby, the blind hymn writer was held at the meeting of the Young Peoples' society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry in the evening, the leader being Miss Gladys Kinder. A number of the Fanny Crosby hymns were used during the service.

Miss Helen C. Aberg has returned to Willimantic after spending the past few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Benoit and family of South C street have moved out of town.

The lenten devotions at the Sacred Heart church Friday evening included stations of the cross and benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Richard Cotton of Kingston, R. I., has been spending a few days at his home on North Third avenue.

Friday being the Feast of St. Joseph in the church calendar, a mass in honor of that saint was read at Sacred Heart church at 7:30. There was a large attendance.

A meeting will be held tonight at the bowling alley of Chip Dugas to make plans for the organization of a Rod and Gun club in Taftville. The fishermen and hunters of the village are expected to attend this meeting in large numbers. It is proposed to lease several promising trout brooks and stock them this season if possible. The organization of a sportman's club has long been considered as something that will materially help the devotees of the field sports.

SESQUI-CENTENNIAL THIS YEAR

When the Centennial Exhibition was held in Philadelphia in 1876, Lydia E. Pinkham, a woman in Lynn, Mass., was just beginning to market her root and herb medicine. Her first large order was for eighteen dollars worth.

Philadelphia is now celebrating the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. In Lynn the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company occupy six buildings in the manufacture of their root and herb medicine.

Nearly 5,000,000 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound were sold last year.

ABOUT $7,000 RAISED IN FIRST UNITED JEWISH RELIEF APPEAL

Following adjournment of a meeting of the Jewish residents of the city which lasted until midnight Sunday at the Community house on Church street, Max Hanover, executive chairman of the local committee for the United Jewish Relief campaign, announced for publication that to date about $7,000 has been raised locally. This is nearly one third of the quota for Norwich, $25,000. The fund is being raised on a cash or a three year payment plan. The quota for the entire country is $15,000,000.

Several speakers of prominence were heard at the meeting Sunday night. The meeting, which opened about 9 o'clock, was called to order by Abner Schwartz, general chairman of the local committee, and then turned over to Max Hanover, the executive chairman. Mr. Hanover after outlining the campaign plans introduced as the first speaker, Samuel J. Wall of New Haven, relief chairman for the state of Connecticut. He was followed by Rabbi Tedesche of New Haven, Isaac Paul of Hartford and the final speaker was Rabbi Aaron Teitelbaum of New York, secretary of the United Charities of New York, and a member of the executive committee of the Zionists of America. He gave a splendid talk on the need of relief in Europe and gave a synopsis of the work of the joint distribution board in handling relief work.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to signing up contributors. The pledges, some accompanied by cash, ran from five dollars to $1,000.

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL, K. OF C. RECEIVES EASTER COMMUNION

About 200 members of White Cross council, K. of C. assembled at the K. of C. home on Broadway, at 7:15 Sunday morning, marching to St. Patrick's church to receive Easter holy communion. The Knights, led by Grand Knight Thomas Francis Shea and associate officers, occupied reserved pews on the epistle side of the nave.

On the gospel side, pews were reserved for the Rosary society, Miss Annie G. Stanton, president.

The rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Henry May, read the 7:30 low mass as usual. In compliment to the two organizations he had donned the magnificent red robes of his rank as a member of the papal household, which vestments were recently received from Rome.

Another special feature of the service was music by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, who usually plays at 9, 10:30 and 3:30 vespers. The processional was Marche Romaine, by Gounod. Mr. LaFontaine led in congregational singing of "Come, Holy Ghost", the hymn to the Blessed Virgin, "Mother, Dear, O, Pray for Me" and at the conclusion of the mass "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name", Grand Knight Shea giving the signal for this last hymn.

Monsignor May, having read the day's gospel—it was Passion Sunday, the period marking the beginning of the passion, or suffering, of Our Lord, John VIII, 46-59—congratulated the two organizations on the practical manifestation of their faith, as a protest against the paganism of the age. Especially did he commend the aims, work and aid of the Knights of Columbus, referring to their ideals as knights, as loyal in obedience to their church, as citizens who show in their lives the Catholicity which they profess, who, as he has witnessed amid the seven hills of Rome are aiding and encouraging with princely generosity their spiritual father, Pope Pius, to extend and conserve the true faith, against poisonous propaganda. Monsignor May gave point to his brief sermon by an anecdote of a Belgian soldier, wearied and discouraged in the trench, who looked up to see his valiant sovereign, King Albert, hearing the promise, "Your king is with you!" Cleansed by the sacrament of penance, the knights before him, the preacher said, were to receive the bread of eternal life—would have with them for encouragement and guidance and protection against temptation their heavenly King.

Monsignor May then administered the Eucharist to both societies and the majority of the members of the great congregation, being assisted by Rev. John J. Reilly. The confessions on Saturday preceding these communions were almost as numerous as during the time of a mission.

At the offertory Sunday, Nicholas Spellman sang "O, Salutaris Hostia" in a very pleasing manner.

MOOSEHEART LEGION GAVE CLEVER MINSTREL SHOW

Women of Mooseheart legion, gave a very successful minstrel show and basket party last week at the Moose home. The program was as follows: Interlocutor, Mrs. Rose Carter; Tambo, Mrs. Teresa Watters; Bones, Mrs. Ethel Hoelck; Jazzbo, Mrs. Irene Burns; Sambo, Mrs. Mary LaValle; Tazzbo, Mrs. Mary Hunter; Rastus, Mrs. Margaret Rogers; Jake, Mrs. Marie Retkovske; Mose, Mrs. Hilda Jensen.

The musical numbers were as follows: Opening chorus, "Hello Everyone", by the entire company; Wearing the Green, by entire company; When Irish Eyes Are Smiling, by Rastus; Show Me the Way to Go Home, by the entire company; recitation and song, Too Many Parties and Too Many Pals, by Rastus; Then I'll Be Happy, entire company; Irish Washerwoman, danced by Tambo; That Certain Party, entire company; closing chorus, Now Goodbye Everyone, by entire company.

Mrs. Rose Carter made a very efficient interlocutor and the jokes between her and the four end men, kept the audience in peals of laughter during the show. Mrs. Maude Whitmarsh, a talented pianist, very kindly rendered her services at the piano. Mrs. Martha Wunderlick and Miss Marie Tomanio, manipulated the curtains. After the minstrel, baskets were sold and coffee was served by Mrs. Georgia Tomanio, chairman of the refreshment committee.

For amateur performers, it was voted a decided success and a good sum was realized from the sale of baskets. Another play is to be given before the public. Costumes worn by the interlocutor and the four end men were the style of military suits made of green and white satin with green hats. The hall was nicely decorated in green and white.

GOD'S ABOUNDING MERCY LENTEN SERMON THEME

The abounding mercy of God was the subject of the thoughtful sermon Sunday evening in the lenten series at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Matthew Brady of St. Thomas seminary, Hartford, who used the parable of the unforgiving servant as the basis for his address. Jesus, he said, used the similitude and the parable as the most effective way of reaching the minds of his hearers and the unforgiving servant represents the type of man's mercy, while the master, who forgave the debt of 10,000 talents, is the picture of the mercy of God. Man's doctrine of mercy, with justice, seems to be an eye for an eye, but God goes out in search of the sinner and seeks to save the sheep that is lost. The voice of God calls and the mercy of God follows until the wandering soul is recalled. He forgives where the world condemns and he says to us, as he said to the women: "Go and sin no more."

Since the creation of the world, the merciful works of God have been seen in deed and word. It was divine mercy that promised and sent the redeemer and that Son preached mercy throughout His life. He never reproached the repenting sinner, but His anger was against those who interfered with His works of mercy. The apostles and the church have repeated and continued that message. The life of the Son of God can be summed up in that one word "mercy". In his great mercy God welcomes the return of the sinner and no time is too short for man to take advantage of the mercy of God, nor can man's sins be too many for the infinite mercy and patience He extends towards the repentant sinner.

The music for the service contributed helpfully to the devotional spirit of the large congregation. Before the service began, Organist Henry J. La Fontaine played a modern suite for organ by Tremblay. The O Salutaris was given in excellent voice by Arthur Roy of Willimantic and the Tantum Ergo was rendered by Miss Loretta Bellefleur, contralto, and chorus with devotional spirit. The Veni Creator was given by a male trio, Walter La Fontaine, Roderick F. Sullivan and Henry J. La Fontaine, whose voices blended most harmoniously. The service closed with benediction.

LESSONS FROM PICTURE AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

Notwithstanding the beautiful weather which had a tendency to influence people to stay out of doors, the large gymnasium was practically filled Sunday afternoon at the weekly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. After the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers, the scripture was read and prayer offered and Hugh Kinder rendered a vocal solo. The feature picture, "The Ruling Passion," by George Arliss, was shown in seven reels, and the entire audience was pleased and favorably impressed with the picture story which demonstrated in a marked way the ruling passion of Mr. Alden, whose part George Arliss so perfectly acted.

Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk, taking for the text, "whatsoever thy hands find to do, do with thy might." The speaker spoke in part as follows: Some men have had a ruling passion for the right things and some for the wrong things. The emperor of Germany evidently had a passion for ruling and controlling, and he lost his control, and is now in exile. Gerald Chapman evidently had somewhat of a passion for doing the wrong thing and he sits today in the shadow of the gallows. On the other hand Livingston had a passion to serve the people of Darkest Africa, and much against the wishes of his friends he remained in that service and finally died on his knees while praying. Father Daimen, the Catholic priest followed God's call to the leper colony; he had a passion to serve those helpless people. He ministered unto them, contracted the dreadful disease and died with them. These are instances of men whose ruling passion was beautiful. Of course the most wonderful example of one who had a ruling passion is Jesus Christ, whose whole life was given over to service for others, and who finally died for His enemies, that He might save them. We, too, should have a dominant or ruling passion, and it should be to be a blessing to those around us. Let us imitate the Christ and let our ruling passion be like unto His.

THE 75th SEMI-ANNUAL CLOUD DIGGER'S PREDICTION

In criticism of The Cloud Digger's last prediction it may be as well to call attention to the fact that the ten days of January was one continual storm at sea, and these words appeared in The Boston Post January 31.

"It is one hell of a storm," says the haggard captain of the biggest ship afloat as he docked her two days late.

He wasn't "cussing", he was describing. He said the past week's storm on the Atlantic was the worst he had met with in 32 years at sea.

There were fierce snow squalls. The wind reached a speed of 90 miles. Waves became leaping hills of water, surging up 40, 50 or 60 feet in the air. Forty-odd ships piying between European ports and Boston and New York were appallingly pitched and rolled. Yet, we had no storms in this immediate neighborhood.

The Cloud Digger's predictions are made from rules followed 80 years by one family of mariners that never lost a ship, and had The Cloud Digger's predictions for January been followed, those 12 ships that were in trouble a week outside of New York city would not have been at sea, and 69 lives that were lost would not have been lost.

Now before I go any farther I want to say that in January and February, the weather bureau made 27 mistakes and only 24 hours ahead at that.

Next, I wish to say that every astronomer, every college professor, every scientist that has told you of "no summer year" in 1926, has told you wrong, we are going to have a cracker jack good summer in more ways than one, but there will be sudden fierce electrical storms.

It will be a late spring, but when spring is fairly with us, it will be safe to go ahead and plant. Pay no attention whatever to the so-called "sun spot" cold weather foretold by scientific men. "Sun spots" never yet caused a cold summer, this has been proven true for centuries.

The month of May this year will be more like June of last year, some chilly days, several times very near frost, but go ahead and plant, as the growing conditions in May will be ideal.

Some of the hottest June days ever remembered will be with us this year. The hottest June in the past 50 years was June 1876, and this year will equal it. I look for a very dry spell late in June, broken only by heavy showers with much electricity and in some instances possibly hail.

July will start in exactly like June, hot and dry, then a cool wave will appear early in the month probably accompanied by a rain storm, the last big storm for some weeks. Late in July or early in August an earth disturbance very far reaching will be here, quickly followed by a short, sharp earth tremor and a tidal wave along southern shores.

August will be hot and dry, the few showers of very fierce kind. Early in September a cold wave two or three days will be followed by a long fierce storm doing great damage in some sections of the land, but frosts will be late in coming this year. Everything points to a bountiful harvest and plenty of time to gather all crops.

The insect trouble this year will be a little worse than usual, especially on ground crops and vines. The land will be especially free from illness of any nature, but in more southern climes there will be more contagion owing to the exceedingly hot and dry weather. Be sure to be with them all through June, July, August and well into September.

This will be a bird year. Take note of the many beautiful birds, many of them not frequent visitors that will be brought here by the very, very hot weather south.

One peculiar feature of the storms or as they are more correctly called "showers" this coming season will be, their sudden appearance and short, sharp fierceness while they last.

Hail may be expected at several times as it is an astronomical fact that sudden showers in very hot weather are often accompanied by hail.

Readers of my predictions must bear in mind one fact. I do not predict by guess, I do not predict for any local section. I follow a set of rules followed by seamen for 80 years with great success and in the 37 years I have been following those rules, I have named exact weather conditions in more than a thousand instances, predicted in advance such great disasters as San Francisco earthquake Kingston earthquake, Mount Peele volcanic eruption, named the exact date of Galveston storm, came within four hours of the terrible Japanese earthquake and also named the exact date of the earthquake that swept through New England two years ago, in fact went to bed with a lamp burning by my telephone, pad and pencil ready for friends I had notified to call me at the first sign of disturbance. One minute after the first shock Daniel A. McCarthy, station agent at Oneco, was on the line telling me his experience and from then on for an hour I had 16 calls from different people I had requested to call me when the quake came.

Ten minutes after the first shock, my phone was sending the news to papers with which I am connected that cover the world.

In closing I wish once more to state boldly that all of the astronomers, scientists, college professors, and big men in the world that have for some months been telling you that there would be no summer in 1926 are all wrong, they are simply apostles of gloom without any reason whatever for their gloomy predictions, as the beautiful summer that is surely coming will prove, and The Cloud Digger will once more prove that certain conditions prevailing, certain positions of the planets at the equinoxial period are sure forewarnings of what is to come for the next six months.

At an evening service which was held at 7.30 in the lecture room, the pastor gave the first talk in the series upon the Coming of the Soul, the title of the opening talk in this series being The Evolutionists' Conception of Nature. The series will be continued as follows:

March 28, The Coming of Organic Life; April 4, The Emergence of New Forms of Life; April 11, Factors in That Evolution; April 18, The Coming of Personality; April 25, The Spiritual Element in Personality.

The 1925-26 championship was won by the class of 1926. The clogging meet, as well as the formal gym exhibition was won by the seniors of '26, too. The junior class won the indoor track meet for the year and the sophomores came in second in the track competition. The freshmen had the greatest percentage of persons on the team from the number taking that sport in clogging.

Miss Lois Latimer of Norwich, a freshman, and the only Norwich girl in the meet, did well in indoor track competition, winning two awards out of the three events in which she participated. She won first place in the swing over the rings from the horse and was tied for third place in the face vault over the boom with Minnie Watchinsky of New London She was one of the three people of her class taking indoor track who succeeded in passing off the various preliminary try-outs for a place on the squad.

MARCH INCOME TAX RETURNS $20,000,000 ABOVE ESTIMATE

Secretary Mellon Expects the Receipts Will Amount to $420,000,000, or About $21,000,000 Less Than Collected Last Year, When the Tax Rates Were Higher—In the House Republican Leader Tilson Urged That the Brakes Be Applied to Appropriations For the Fiscal Year 1927.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The treasury announced today that the income tax returns for March, the first to be collected under the new revenue law, probably would exceed by $20,000,000 the original estimate of Secretary Mellon.

Coincident with this announcement, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republicans floor leader, warned the house of a treasury deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1 because of too many appropriation bills.

The tax collections for March, which included only those for the first quarter of the tax year, from individuals and corporations, totalled $380,000,000 at the close of business Saturday, but officials expect them to reach $420,000,000, or about $21,000,000 less then was collected for the same quarter a year ago when the tax rates were higher.

Secretary Mellon interpreted the increase over the estimate as due to stimulation of business in anticipation of tax reduction. With the reduction in eight several months ago, he said, business generally had made investments in a direction which would prove helpful in revenue collections.

On the face of the March returns, the treasury estimates the total income tax collections for the fiscal year ending June 30, will amount to $1,780,000,000 as against $1,760,000,000 a year ago and $1,580,000,000 which it had been estimated would have been collected this year under the old rates. These figures do not include collections of miscellaneous taxes, many of which were repealed by the new law.

Mr. Tilson, in urging that the brakes be applied to appropriations for the fiscal year 1927, declared congress is in the unhappy position of a man who has a fat check without any money in the bank. The new revenue law and appropriations already made, he said, now give an estimated deficit of nearly $30,000,000, or about $21,000,000 less then was collected for the same quarter a year ago when the tax rates were higher.

Secretary Mellon interpreted the increase over the estimate as due to stimulation of business in anticipation of tax reduction. With the reduction in eight several months ago, he said, business generally had made investments in a direction which would prove helpful in revenue collections.

SEVEN INDICTED FOR FIRST DEGREE ROBBERY

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—Officials of two states tonight were jockeying for the privilege of trying Richard Reese Whittemore, indicted in New York for first degree robbery, and wanted in Baltimore, Md., for murder.

Five men and a woman were indicted with Whittemore, as was his wife, Margaret. They were charged with seven specific crimes in which loot totaling between $750,000 and $1,000,000 was obtained. Their possible connection with other recent crimes still was under investigation.

Extradition papers for Whittemore's return to Baltimore to stand trial for the murder of a prison guard last year were before Governor Smith for signature, but executive action was deferred at the request of District Attorney Banton. The district attorney said that he might need Whittemore in building up his case against the others.

Assistant States Attorney Edgett, of Baltimore, came here to question Whittemore and to urge his immediate extradition. Mr. Edgett said the prisoner confessed that he killed the penitentiary guard while making his escape from prison.

Evidence given to the grand jury, upon which the indictments were based, dealt with crimes ranging from Baltimore to Buffalo, N. Y., but centered chiefly in New York. Much of the evidence comprised confessions said by police to have been made by members of the gang, of which Whittemore was the alleged leader.

The indictments charged Whittemore, his wife, Anthony Paladino, "Shuffles" Goldberg, Leon and Jake Kramer, with the robbery of Albert V. Goudvis, jr. of Fifth avenue, last Jan. 2. The indictment revealed that the loot, previously fixed at $100,000 was $170,000, all in uncut or unmounted diamonds.

Whittemore, Paladino and Goldberg confessed to their share in the robbery, the police said.

Paladino alone was indicted for the robbery of Lawrence Ross, jeweler, May 8.

The Kramer Brothers were indicted for the robbery of Folmer and Prip, jewelers, in Nassau street, Dec. 23, when $61,000 worth of jewels were taken.

Assistant District Attorneys Murphy and Hastings asserted that the gangsters admitted eight other robberies, that at least 13 other indictments would be found against them. They said the grand jury would be busy all week on the evidence before it concerning the gang.

Paladino and Goldberg confessed and implicated Jake Kramer, to the robbery of David Bick, jeweler, at 360 Third avenue, last Dec. 13 and a similar robbery of Robert Ernst, 506 Columbus avenue, also in December.

Whittemore, Goldberg and Paladino, again accusing the Kramers of participation, confessed to the robbery of Miss Mary Lenniher, 193 Sixth avenue, last Oct. 5.

Although accused by the police none of the men have admitted part in the Buffalo bank robbery of October 26, when an armored car driver was killed, two guards wounded and $93,000 in cash stolen.

The Baltimore district attorney charged Whittemore and Goldberg with an $11,000 bank robbery in Baltimore just three weeks after Whittemore escaped from the penitentiary there.

Two others held in connection with the gang's activities, but not implicated in the confessions, are Pasquale Chicarelli and Bernard Mortillaro.

MAN INDICTED IN RUM RING ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

CLEVELAND, March 22.—(AP)—A few minutes after he ordered his 17 year old son, Cedric, from the garage where he was working, Ernest P. Flynn, former New York Central police captain indicted recently with 111 others in the alleged alcohol conspiracy shot and probably fatally wounded himself today, police reported.

In the short time that he lay conscious in a hospital Flynn, police said, attributed his act to worry over the indictment.

He had been repairing his automobile in a garage and his son had gone to help him. When the youth answered police said Flynn ordered him to "get out of here." The boy left and a few minutes later heard the shot.

The bullet lodged in the abdomen and an operation was performed.

Flynn was indicted with defendants in 12 cities as a result of the federal investigation into the operations of the super alcohol company here. He was accused of giving protection to the alleged conspirators by failing to report shipments of alcohol "for beverage purposes" by the Cleveland concern.

GOV. PINCHOT STARTS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR SENATOR

PHILADELPHIA, March 22—(AP)—Governor Pinchot declared tonight his withdrawal from the race for the republican nomination for the United States senate would be "nothing short of betrayal of the people."

He made the statement in commenting on resolutions adopted today by the Philadelphia Association of the Methodist Episcopal Preachers, which called upon either him or Senator Pepper to withdraw so that the "dry" vote could be concentrated against Representative Vare, the other candidate in the triangular contest. Congressman Vare seeks the nomination on a platform of light wines and beer.

"The ministers recognize Vare is a menace," said the governor's statement. "They feel all decent citizens should join to keep him out of the United States senate. That is my own view. That is the reason I picket keep on fighting. Pepper cannot beat Vare. He is virtually out of the battle now. If I were to quit, the gang would steamroller him. Knowing this, it would be nothing short of betrayal of the people for me to quit now, when I have every reason to feel sure of victory over Vare and the gang."

WOULD PUT FEDERAL EMPLOYES ON OATH

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—Charges of abuse in the handling of federal patronage in southern states culminated in the house today with the introduction of a bill to put federal appointees on oath that they had not used improper methods to gain office.

Representative Wilson, democrat, Mississippi, first charged that federal jobs in his state were "sold in the open market to the highest bidder" and then Representative Wurzbach, republican, Texas, one of the leaders in the patronage fight, introduced the bill which he said would correct the southern patronage system.

"In my state today," Mr. Wilson said, "control of federal patronage is almost entirely in the hands of negroes.

"My people will not submit to negro domination."

Asserting the battle cry of the republican party in 1920 was "back to normalcy," he added that "they did as they went back to stealing."

SHOT AND KILLED BETRAYER OF HIS WIFE

SANDUSKY, Mich., March 22.—(AP)—Pearl Dorland shot and killed Roy Lee, 19 years old, during a party near here, March sixth, the man stated in a signed confession taken by Sheriff John A. Johnson today. He also said he used Lee's revolver which his wife had taken from Lee earlier in the evening.

Mrs. Dorland committed suicide by drinking poison during Lee's funeral.

Dorland said he shot Lee when his wife confessed to him she had been betrayed by the youth. Dorland will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of first degree murder.

The shooting took place in a farm yard the night of March 6 after Lee, his brother, William, Dorland and his wife and four other women and a man had gone to the farm for a drinking party.

About one-quarter of the total number of voters took part in the election.

COUNSEL GROEHL TO VISIT GERALD CHAPMAN TODAY

HARTFORD, March 22—(AP)—A plan to go before the supreme court of the United States again, this time on the single issue as to whether Gerald Chapman had a fair trial in Hartford a year ago, will be submitted by Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, Mass., to a conference of Chapman's lawyers in New York, Wednesday, as one of the means to save the bandit from the gallows on April 6, two weeks away.

Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, senior counsel for Chapman, said that he was working on another legal remedy to the conference. He said that thus far there had been no agreement as to what course will be chosen by himself and his associates Joseph M. Freeman, of Hartford, and Charles W. Murphy, of Danbury, to test out what rights remain to Chapman.

In outlining his plan, Mr. WHey said he is preparing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus which, if passed by the conference, may be submitted to a justice of the supreme court of the United States within a few days.

Coincident with this move, Mr. Groehl plans to make a hurried visit to Chapman at the state prison tomorrow, the purpose of which he declined to reveal. In the past Mr. Groehl has rarely made a move on behalf of Chapman without first talking it over with him, to get his client's reaction to it.

FIVE STRIKERS WERE ARRESTED IN PASSAIC

PASSAIC, N. J., March 22.—(AP)—Five striking textile workers, including Nancy andowsky, 19-year-old girl leader, were arrested today when 600 workers picketed the plant of the National Silk Dyeing company in East Paterson.

The arrest followed the defiance by the strikers of orders given under Sheriff Donaldson that there must be no singing or shouting in the ranks of the pickets as they marched.

The workers came to East Paterson from mass meetings at Garfield and Lodi where they were addressed by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, former I. W. W. agitator. At Market street and the river road they were stopped by armed deputies and permitted to pass in double columns. But they were obliged to circle the mill and were not allowed to parade up and down in front of it.

FRENCH FINANCE MINISTER SUSTAINED BY CABINET

PARIS, March 22.—(AP)—The new government's measures to balance the budget which were presented today to the finance committee of the chamber, by M. Peret, minister of finance, stick to the principle that indirect taxation shall furnish the bulk of the required sums amounting to about three billion francs, in addition to the taxes voted just before the fall of M. Poumer. M. Peret estimated the deficit at five billion francs, of which two billion are covered.

Of the balance the minister proposes to raise 500,000,000 francs by a poll tax ranging from 40 to 2,000 francs levied on the same principle as the income tax, and 2,500,000,000 by a tax on production of an increase in the tax on business turnover from 1 3-10 per cent. to 2 per cent.

The cabinet today approved M. Peret's projects.

ENGINEER KILLED ON NICKEL PLATE ROAD

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 23.—(AP)—The engineer of train No. 8 on the Nickel Plate road, Chicago to Buffalo, was killed today when the train was derailed at Athol Springs, near here. Split rails were believed by railroad officials to have caused the wreck.

The engineer, William Pierce, a resident of Conneaut, Ohio, was trapped beneath his engine. His body was recovered after several hours work by a wrecking crew.

Seven passenger cars left the rails but no one was injured, although a number of persons were shaken up.

Five horses of a carload were killed and a number were injured and will have to be destroyed.

Traffic was held up for several hours.

HANOVER, N. H., March 22.—(AP)—Great Bear cabin a vital link in the Dartmouth outing club's chain from Hanover to the White Mountains was destroyed by fire Sunday, it was learned over the telephone today. Johnson of Philadelphia and was built in 1914 by men of the club. Completely equipped for eight men, it was in use the year round.

C. of C. Appoints an Aviation Committee

Object of the Committee Will Be to Aid Development of Commercial Aviation in Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, March 22—(AP)—Plans for the development and further growth of the airplane as a commercial transportation unit of urgent necessity and entire practicability were outlined to 70 commercial and industrial leaders of the state of Connecticut, at a meeting in the Quinnipiac club here tonight by the directors of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc.

Officers of the company announced that operation of the line was expected to commence May 1, with two planes, delivery on which is expected within two weeks. This date is dependent upon obtaining suitable teirminal points in Boston and New York, that connection with the present government operated overnight service to Chicago and the west may be had.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the greatest value of air mail transportation between Boston and the Connecticut cities, Hartford, New Haven and Waterbury, lay not in the service to New York, but in connection of that service with the west.

Governor John H. Trumbull, who was to have been a speaker, was unable to attend, because of illness. Major Talbot O. Freeman, of Hartford, a director of the company, acted as toastmaster. He stated that the aim of the company was to put the air service on the basis of a public utility, stressed the fact that Connecticut and the rest of New England urgently needed the most rapid transportation and communication available and that this need could be filled by commercial airplanes.

The appointment of the following aviation committee was announced at the dinner:

Chairman E. G. Buckland, vice president, New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company; Edward N. Allen, vice president, Sage-Allen and company, Hartford; Joseph W. Alsop, public utilities commissioner; William BroSmith, vice president, Travelers Insurance company; C. L. Campbell, treasurer, Connecticut Light and Power company, Waterbury; Porter B. Chase, president, Bankers Trust company, Hartford; Robert Fisher, assistant treasurer, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, Hartford; George L. Forman, of Beach-Forman & Co., Hartford; Major Talbot O. Freeman, chief aviation inspector for Connecticut, Hartford; Philip B. Male, president, Hartford Machine Screw company, Hartford; J. Henry Roraback, vice president, Connecticut Light and Power company, Hartford; Major H. H. Skorrett, manager, Packard Motor Car company, Hartford; James B. Slimmon, secretary, Aetna Life Insurance company, Hartford; Ernest C. Wilcox, president, Connecticut Telephone and Electric company, Meriden.

Practically all members of the foregoing commitee have had considerable experience in aviation or allied matters. The purpose of the state chamber's new aviation committee will be to aid the development of commercial aviation in Connecticut.

STRESEMANN ON FOREIGN POLICY OF GERMANY

BERLIN, March 22—(AP)—In the same temperate attitude as he carried on at Geneva in the turmoil of the league dissensions Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister, appeared before the reichstag today and sketched the drift of Germany's foreign policies from Locarno to the breakup of the Geneva conference.

He alluded to the grave crisis caused by the failure of the negotiations for Germany's election to the league, criticised the obstructionists tactics of certain powers and explained the reason for Germany remaining to the end—so that she would not lose prestige in the eyes of the world, and in this, he declared, Germany was justified, for when the delegation left Geneva it was agreed that she was in no way to blame for the unsatisfactory outcome of the conference.

Dr. Stresemann's defense of the German delegates procedure at Geneva, was sufficiently impressive to disarm even the nationalists criticism and the mild manner in which Count Westarp, leader of the nationalists sought to discredit the delegation indicated that the governments present opposition in the chamber is of a wholly negative quality.

W. E. D. STOKES, Jr., FORCED TO ABANDON HIS YACHT

KEY WEST, Fla., March 22—(AP)—A message received here today by Miss Florence Crittenton said W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., son of the New York hotel owner, and a crew of three men had reached Cape Carnave Ral, Fla., in a small boat after drifting hopelessly at sea since March 15.

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., and the three members of his crew who reached Florida in an open boat today, were forced to abandon the Stokes yacht Calliope, when it was blown on the Chester Shoals off Virginia March 15.

The yacht, already damaged by a storm which disabled two auxiliary schooners, was being towed to Norfolk, Va., when it went aground. Cox Stevens, New York marine architect, received a telegram on March 17 saying that the Calliope was breaking up rapidly.

Mr. Stokes, engagement to Miss Florence Crittenton, who received the news of his escape, was announced late last month, after he had arrived in Key West aboard the yacht.

HARTFORD, March 22—(AP)—Advisory flood warnings for this section of New England were issued tonight by Harry E. Adams, in charge of the U. S. weather bureau here.

Desire of Wets Is To Disclose Facts

Wet Leaders in Congress Have No Hope That Committee Will Report Any of Their Bills Favorably.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP)—The prohibition issue, which has agitated both houses of congress at this session as has no other question, is to be given a public airing before a senate committee during the two weeks beginning April 5.

This was determined upon today by the senate judiciary committee, which approved with but a single dissenting vote the programme recommended by its sub-committee of five for hearings on the pending measures for modification of the dry laws.

Senator Means, republican, Colorado, will have charge of the hearings and he will attempt to hold both the wets and drys strictly to the subject of the bills at issue. Each side will have six days for the presentation of its case with the wets taking the stand first.

Besides approving the programme for the hearings, the committee endorsed the action of the sub-committee in indefinitely postponing consideration of a bill by Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, for repeal of the Volstead act. This measure was pigeonholed, it was explained, because its passage would leave the government without authority to enforce the dry constiutional amendment.

The first measure that will be considered will be that by Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, proposing to change the eighteenth amendment so that those states and communities which were wet when the dry law went into effect would be wet, but would have to depend upon the federal government for their limited supplies of intoxicants.

Then the beer bills and the Edge measure to remove the restrictions on prescription whiskey will have their innings. There are three beer bills proposing ½ per cent., 2.75 per cent., and beer "non-intoxicating in fact." Senator Edwards, New Jersey, is author of the first, and Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, sponsors the other two.

Wet leaders have no hope that the committee will report any of the bills favorably. They asked for the hearings, they explain, so congress can elicit officially the opinions of enforcement officers, educators, ministers and others as to how the dry laws should be amended so as to make their enforcement less difficult.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, who voted against the hearing based his opposition on the ground that they were requested merely for the purpose of spreading wet propaganda.

Prohibition was touched upon briefly today in the senate, Senator Bruce interrupting a debate on the European situation to say he wanted to bring the senate back to a consideration of a "serious domestic situation." He then read a newspaper poll showing 2,727,579 votes against prohibition to 520,497 in favor of it.

HUGE ICE JAM IS CAUSING FLOOD AT OIL CITY, PENN.

Business District is Inundated and Conditions Are Becoming More Menacing—Jam Caused Oil Creek to Rise Six Feet Within Ten Minutes—Policemen and Firemen Carried Girls From Business Buildings—Extra Policemen and National Guardsmen Are Patrolling the Streets.

OIL CITY, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—The flood that threatens Oil City, Franklin and other towns in the upper Allegheny river valley approached a crisis tonight. The great ice gorge that has menaced the district for weeks, continued to hold fast as flood waters, backing up behind the pack crept beyond the low lands and into districts heretofore untouched. Late today the very heart of Oil City's business district was invaded, flood waters riding at an unprecedented rate rushed into Center street, forcing scores of workers to flee. Many girls were carried from business buildings by firemen, policemen and others, who went to their aid when they were trapped.

Many sections of the city were under from three to five feet of water. Business was at a standstill. Boats formed the only means of transportation on the two man thoroughfares, Seneca and Center streets. All power lines were prostrated and the railroads were threatened.

The warm sunshine of the day caused much of the local ice to move out. During the afternoon a floe passed Oil City and jammed against the main gorges near Franklin. The ice piled up and within ten minutes caused Oil Creek, running through the city to rise six feet. It was this unprecedented rise that flooded Center street.

Immediately this section of the business district was inundated. Office workers, intent upon upon their daily tasks rather than the flood, soon found the water lapping at their feet. Within a few minutes it was knee deep. Police and firemen went to the rescue of women employes. Many men workers carried girls to safety. A careful check disclosed that all had escaped uninjured.

To add to the seriousness of the situation tonight, the city faced the prospect of being without light and power indefinitely. The first flood weeks ago caused officials to hoop up with the Clarion River power lines. These lines were carried away this afternoon, and officials said it would be impossible to restore them at once. The city power plant was put out of commission last night.

Extra policemen, sworn in for the emergency, were patrolling the streets together with national guardsmen and members of the American Legion. They centered their activities in the flooded area.

While virtually all business houses were closed, the telephone exchange remained in operation. The telephone girls were carried to their work in boats. The city was without a newspaper. The building of the Oil City Derrick was in the flood district, and the publisher announced it would be several days before the plant could turn out an edition.

The threat of a more disastrous flood came in the form of the weather bureau prediction of "rain tonight and tomorrow." A heavy rain at the head waters might bring down the gorges near Warren and it was feared that this huge mass of ice would jam against the Brandon barrier. In such an event, it was impossible to say how high the flood waters would reach. The populance hoped that the expected rain would wash out the local gorges and remove the menace of a greater flod.

ON TRIAL FOR ALLEGED MURDER OF HIS FIANCEE

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—The trial of Harry W. Cowan for the alleged murder of his fiancee, Edith M. Burton, was adjourned suddenly today by County Judge Taylor until tomorrow when he will rule on the admissibility of evidence by former State Senator A. B. Lewis of Utah.

Cowan is alleged to have shot and killed Miss Burton in her mother's apartment. He said she killed herself in a suicide pact and he is blind as the result of a suicide attempt.

SPARK IGNITED CARGO OF SULPHUR ON BARGE

BRIDGEPORT, March 22—(AP)—A friction spark caused by a heavy steam scoop-shovel striking a piece of metal railing on the boat, ignited a huge 500 ton pile of sulphur on board the barge Nellie Murray, owned by the Murray Transportation company, as it was unloading its cargo at the Naugatuck Terminal company on North Washington avenue today. Firemen were summoned on a still alarm and the blaze was extinguished with chemicals before any damage had been done.

Captain John Finn, Nassau, N. Y., with his wife and four children were forced to flee from the barge as the smouldering acrid fumes, filled their quarters. Except for a few minutes discomfort, the captain and his family suffered no damage, for within a short time they were back again on board the "Nell."

EUROPEAN SITUATION DEBATED IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The senate got itself into an inquisitive frame of mind today on the European situation.

Ambassador Houghton's reported observations to newspaper correspondents, painting a rather gloomy picture of conditions overseas, formed the basis of more than a hour's debate with Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, as the central figures.

Half a dozen other senators participated and there was both plainly spoken criticism and vigorous defense of the American ambassador to the court of St. James.

At one point Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, lightened the weighty discussion by demanding that there be "no secret agreements" among senators. He referred to a brief whispered conference between Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire and Senator Borah during a colloquy between the Idaho and Virginia senators.

Senator Borah had made a point of "secret agreements" among the European powers at the time of the Locarno public agreement and declared that these were responsible in large measure for present conditions in Europ.

The chairman of the foreign relations committee gave it as his opinion that when Brazil "defied" the others nations and blocked Germany's entry into the council of the league of nations she had silent support from the great powers.

Senator Glass said Mr. Borah was getting into "the field of conjecture," and the latter retorted that it was "not the field of conjecture, but the field of common sense."

Interrupting the discussion, Senator Johnson, republican, California, declared the American people had a right to know the facts about what is transpiring in Europe and Senator Borah agreed with him.

"On what theory are we entitled to know the facts?" then demanded Senator Glass. "What right has Ambassador Houghton to be offering suggestions to other governments?"

Senator Borah replied that the United States was asked to join in a world disarmament conference and that it had a right to get the facts, for they must have a large bearing on the possibilities of disarmament.

Senator Harris opened up the whole subject by charging Ambassador Houghton with starting "a subtle propaganda" here at home to "tear down the work other men are trying to do." He said he referred to the action of the ambassador in calling newspaper correspondents into the state department and making a frank statement to them about the European situation.

In a local hospital, where she is fighting for life following an operation to remove a bullet from her abdomen, it was said she was slightly improved tonight.

Facing the humiliation of a term in jail, when her family and friends in California had been unable to raise $2,500 bond for her, Daisy smuggled a revolver into her cell and attempted suicide.

Authorities have been unable to find any trace of a man known in San Francisco as Bert Simkins, to whom Daisy sent telegrams begging for aid.

In connection with this case, Hormisdas Boudreau, also of Ives street, was charged with intoxication. He likewise pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, totalling $14.15. Chief of Police McArthur stated that he and Traffic Officer Arthur Harley were in the vicinity of lower Main street Sunday afternoon when a Jordan touring car operated by Turcotte stopped near Capen's lake. Three men were in the rear seat. One of them, Boudreau was seen to throw a bottle out of the back of the machine. Boudreau was the only one of the quartet who appeared drunk.

He pleaded guilty to both charges, later being given an opportunity to change his plea on the first count to not guilty. He was then fined $10 and costs, amounting to $19.15 for driving without a license. Officer Roderick Lariviere said that a man named Chalifoux called his attention to an automobile which was traveling in a zigzag fashion on lower Main street. He gave chase and headed off the car at the west end of the city. There appeared to be some personal matters underlying the case. Chalifoux made statements to the effect that he believed Racicot was trying to run him out of business. Racicot said that he had sent for his driver's license Friday, but had not received it as yet. He said that the car was a new one and that glaring headlights made it difficult for him to handle it.

Michael Nelson, who said that he came here to look for a job but was arrested before he had a chance to look, was charged with intoxication. He was arrested Sunday by Officer A. Hurley. Nelson was making his fifth appearance in court on a similar charge. The court fined him $15 and costs, amounting to $24.15 and as Nelson was without funds he went to jail.

Charles Proffitt, charged with intoxication, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $14.15. It was his first appearance in court since 1913. Proffitt lacked the cash, so he was taken to Brooklyn jail with Nelson.

Quaker Oats "stands by" you through the morning

That's why millions start their days in this way

TO feel right through the morning, you must have well-balanced, complete food at breakfast. At most other meals—that is, at luncheon and at dinner—you usually get that kind of food.

But at breakfast the great dietary mistake is most often made—a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Food that should start every breakfast in your home.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

Here's the Way to Lighten Cloudy Teeth

—to give them gleaming whiteness

Your gums like coral to contrast them—just remove that dingy film, see what happens.

* * *

Dingy teeth and toneless gums are a needless handicap today. Off-color teeth can be restored to gleaming whiteness. Tender gums are firmed and given healthy coral color.

Famous $100,000 stars of the movies use this new method as a "make-up" before going on a scene. That is why movie smiles are so gleamingly white. Leading dentists widely advise it because it protects the teeth and gums.

It is called Pepsodent—a new-type tooth paste that works by removing the dingy film coat from teeth that old-time dentifrices did not clear off successfully. That's why brushing has failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel that film. A slippery coating that absorbs discolorations, breeds bacteria and invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea.

Remove it and you will be amazed at what you see. Discard old ways now. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Or send for 10-day tube—no charge.

DANIELSON

BOROUGH DEBT REDUCED OVER $6,423 DURING YEAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 23.—Forthcoming reports of the warden and court of burgesses covering the year that will end with the present month should be highly pleasing to all citizens, especially the taxpayers. During the fiscal year the borough debt has been reduced $6,423, a splendid showing in itself, but over and above that the officials have cleared up all unpaid bills and have even paid the salaries of the members of the fire department ahead of time, pay for last year's services and the present year's services being included in this year's list of expenditures. Usually the fire department members do not get their pay for the preceding year until April or May—after a new fiscal year has opened. So in addition to reducing the debt by $6,423, the officials have been able to pay the firemen a total of $1,104.45, an item that could have been allowed to wait, and also have paid the borough tax collector's salary of $200. This is about the best showing made by a borough administration in many years, and earns from all citizens appreciative of worthy public service the highest laudation for the borough's administrative officials. Noteworthy indeed is the fact that the borough has the services of such officials without pay, for neither the warden nor any member of the court of burgesses receives any money from the borough for the work they do for it. The service rendered comes about as near to being truly public spirited as one could think of in an hour's time. The forthcoming reports will show the borough debt at approximately $31,000, not a heavy burden for the community the size of Danielson to carry. Nevertheless, Danielson has a good fire department, a well lighted, possesses a good library, an extensive sewer system, very attractive park and otherwise keeps abreast of the needs of an up-to-date community. Danielson is sitting pretty insofar as its finances are concerned.

CARPENTERS FOUND ROOF ABLAZE AT PERKINS HOME

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 22.—Firemen battled for about an hour Monday afternoon with a blaze that was eating the roof off the James Perkins homestead, Maple street, occupied by the Misses Perkins. Before the fire was extinguished the roof had been badly damaged and the interior of the house deluged with water. Carpenters putting new fireproof shingles on the roof of the dwelling were amazed to find the structure ablaze and gave the alarm.

An alarm from Box 16 at the corner of Main and Maple streets called out the department a minute or two before 3 o'clock and the recall was not sounded until 4:08.

As many as three streams, under pumper pressure, was being directed at the blazing house at one time when the firemen got into action. A smart wind, aided by a keen wind, was licking up the roof and under good headway before the firemen arrived, so considerable work was required to bring the fire under control. Much of the roof was destroyed and there also was material damage to the house from smoke and water. The Perkins home is the second on Maple street to be similarly damaged by fire in but over a week. The loss was variously estimated to be from $2,000 to $5,000, understood to be covered by insurance.

Chief A. F. Woodward of the fire department said that the cause of the blaze had not been ascertained. The carpenters who were at work on the structure were the first to notice the fire, finding the roof on which they were working ablaze under them.

GOING TO MYSTIC BIRTHDAY OF WOMAN WHO WILL BE 97

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 22.—Mr. and Mrs. George A. Witter of Brooklyn will leave for Mystic the latter part of this week to visit Mrs. Witter's mother, Mrs. Pamelia Watson, who is to observe her 97th birthday April 13. Mrs. Watson enjoys average good health, though her sight has failed somewhat of late. She was born in Rhode Island and lived for many years in Voluntown and Plainfield up to the death of her husband, Benjamin Watson, a Civil war veteran, about a dozen years ago. After her husband's death Mrs. Watson lived with Mr. and Mrs. Witter in Brooklyn, but for some time has been making her home with Mrs. John K. Bucklyn in Mystic.

Elzear Bousquet, 48, died Sunday afternoon at his home in Pineville after an illness of about three weeks. Mr. Bousquet was a native of Goodyear. He leaves his wife and two children, Lucien and Blanche Bousquet.

Fire police appointed some time since have demonstrated their value in keeping motor traffic in fire zones under control and preventing too much interference from this cause with firemen engaged at their work.

Pussy willows are so plentiful hereabouts that little is thought of gathering an armful and finding a ready market in nearby cities, where they are being sold by hawkers.

Monday did spring credit by producing a maximum temperature of 58 degrees in the early afternoon.

Next Sunday in various churches programs for holy week services will be announced to the congregations.

There is, it is said, a prospect of about 2,000 more trout of lengths of from 6 1-2 to 7 1-2 inches being released in the state-leased Snake Meadow brook prior to the opening of fishing there April 15. This will make a total of 6,000 such fish released by the state in that stream this season.

The Danielson Town basketball team took a real beating, in Webster, Sunday afternoon when they lost out, 47 to 15. Playing in a basement hall, with about 13 feet clearance between floor and ceiling, the going was not too good for Danielson, unfamiliar with the place. Then too, there was rough work in the later part of the game, and Danielson practically stood by and let Webster shoot with practically no opposition. As a game, the whole affair was not so good, and the Danielson players felt well rid of their engagement when the contest was over.

Early spring adventurers after sport have not been slow to take up the spearing of suckers, which are now moving up rivers and large brooks, as is their custom at this time of year. Much of the spearing is done at night, when these fish are found in shallow places and just loiling about. Torches are an aid to the spearers in seeking their quarry.

John Moody, who has been ill with pneumonia in a Boston hospital, has recovered in such degree that it is probable that he will be able to come here the last of this week to remain with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed for a time.

Harry C. Jackson, state commander of the American legion, will come here from New Britain Wednesday evening to attend a joint meeting of Leo J. L'Homme post and the Woman's auxiliary thereof, American legion.

Tonight (Tuesday) citizens of the borough will make their nominations for borough officials for another year.

Reports from outlying sections Monday were to the effect that certain country highways were virtually impassable for motor vehicles. Mud in some places was nearly a foot in depth.

In such heavy motor traffic as prevailed Sunday with long strings of cars held to a slow pace by a moper ahead, it is going to be a problem for coach companies to maintain their schedule the coming summer. This already is evident to officials.

There is satisfaction here over the fact that Danielson's Hi-Y team has, by winning over Mystic, advanced its position to a point where it will start in the semi-finals for the state championship. The Danielson Hi-Y team is of about the same personnel as the past season's Killingly high school team.

C. A. Hamilton, who recently underwent a surgical operation at a hospital in Worcester, is making steady progress toward recovery, but several weeks will elapse before he returns to his home here.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Judson were at Marlboro, Mass., Monday visiting with Miss Anna Richmond at a school she is attending in that city.

By the end of this week work on the decorations of the interior of St. Joseph's church at Danielson will be far advanced. It is hoped to have them completed for Easter Sunday.

The end of the coming week will bring the Easter vacation period for pupils in the schools of the town of Killingly.

Members of the Danielson fire department made what must have been close to a record-breaking response to an alarm at 4:40 Monday afternoon when their big pumper was nosing its way out of the central station on Academy street 22 seconds after the first stroke of a call from Box 32, corner of Main and Reynolds streets. It happened that the pumper had returned only a short time before from another fire and members of the volunteer department were in the station. Their second trip of the afternoon had to do with putting out blazing brakes on a motor truck of the Smiley Construction company, which, the past week, was awarded the contract for building the additions to Killingly high school. Chemicals sufficed to save the truck from threatened destruction and the firemen were back at quarters again within 15 minutes.

MURRAY-WHISTLER WEDDING DATE ANNOUNCED FOR 17TH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 22.—Dr. and Mrs. T. Morris Murray of 21 Marlboro street, Boston and of Pomfret, Conn., have announced that the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Vinton Murray and Ross Whistler has been set for Saturday, April 17th. The ceremony to take place in Emmanuel church on Newbury street, Boston, at noon. Miss Murray is very accomplished, has studied at Oxford university, England, and is a member of the Junior League and of the Vincent clubs, in Boston. Mr. Whistler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Winams Whistler of "Hidden House," Lenox, formerly of Baltimore. He is a graduate of Harvard in the class of '16, and his clubs are D. K. E., Fly, Hasty Pudding, the Institute of 1770 and several others.

Funeral services for Henry Breault, 63, were held Monday morning at St. Mary's church. Mr. Breault was born at Farnham, Canada. His children are Rome Breault and Gilberta Breault, of Putnam, Miss Janette Breault and Mrs. Blanche Macdonald of Southbridge, Mass.

Edward Chandler Chamberlain, one of the oldest residents of Woodstock, died there from a shock. Funeral services were held at the home of his son, Edyard L. Chamberlain, with whom he lived. Rev. H. L. Baker of East Woodstock officiated. Burial was at Woodstock. Mr. Chamberlain was born in West Woodstock June 14, 1838, the son of John Chandler and Hannah Leonard Chamberlain and is the last of a family of ten children. In 1859 he married Maria Jane Kinney, of Union, who survives him. She is 91. To them were born six sons, four of whom are living, Myron Kinney Chamberlain of Three Rivers, Mass., Edward Leonard Chamberlain of Woodstock, George Ellsworth Chamberlain of Scotland and Charles Bernice Chamberlain of Geneseo, Ills. There is also a granddaughter and three grandsons. In his younger days Mr. Chamberlain carried on a large and varied business; in addition to operating a 500-acre farm which had been his father's, he dealt in planed lumber and shingles besides contracting for the removal of buildings and building new ones. At one time he was the largest taxpayer in West Woodstock.

The basketball season of Tourtelotte Memorial High school has closed with 13 victories to its credit out of 17 games played. The outlook at the beginning of the season was none too bright as four of last year's team had to be replaced, but the last nine games were victories. The success of the team has been due to the good spirit and team work of the players rather than the outstanding work of any one. Sherry, Vito, Reardon and St. Marie have given good account of themselves, while Johnson has been the mainstay of the defense and any of their opponents will testify to the good work done by Chubbuck and Captain Louis Smith. With only Johnson and Captain Smith lost by graduation, and a good supply of substitutes to draw from, next season of basketball should be one of the most successful in the history of the school.

The following is the record of this season:

Rev. Mr. Graham chose for his text the last three verses of the eleventh chapter of Matthew, Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and earn of Me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls; for My yoke is easy, and My burden is light.

At the down town church, Rev. Mr. Aldrich spoke from II Corinthians 5:7. For we walk by faith, not by sight.

WESTERLY

NEW HAVEN R. R. PROPERTY GETS SPRING REPAINTING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 22.—A painting force of workmen of the New Haven railroad, with special cars for quarters and supplies, sidetracked near the west bound train shelter at the Westerly station, has been employed for the last two weeks in making renovations about the waiting station. The lavotory walls and ceilings have been repainted. In the baggagemaster's office a lighter tint has been used in the painting and the lighter shade carried down the wooden partition to match the sidewalks while the wainscotting has been washed and revarnished. Work of repainting the ceiling and side walls hase ben finished in the baggage room, the work having been hastened by the use of a portable compressed air brush which sprayed the walls for two coats, while canvass covers were placed over the woodwork. The woodwork in the baggage room has also been cleaned and revarnished. Attention will be given next to the main waiting room which will have the walls repainted and woodwork revarnished.

Under the supervision of the Westerly police department during the past week crossing lines for a safety zone, with non-parking along the curb line, were painted on the Canal street highway surface near Westerly's United theater. The greater part of the highway surface is granite pavers on which the wide white lines have almost worn off after having been down but a few days and it has seemed to be impossible to find any paint tar would stick to the hard surface. In the center between the car track rails the lines appear to be fairly permanent, resisting the wear of traffic and the elements.

Auction bridge has been very generally played in Westerly during the winter months and now that spring is here there seems to be no let-up in its popularity. An engagement on Monday evening at Watch Hill which promised to rival in interest that which took place many years ago between the Manisses Indians of Block Island, the Montauks of Long Island, the Niantics of Watch Hill and the Pequots of Stonington, was recalled by the bridge match between teams captained by Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow, of the Watch Hill coast guard station and Henry AR. Stahle, of Pawcatuck. Possibly benefiting by the fate which befell the Manisses at their inter-tribal feat with the Montauks (as tradition relates), the latter "took deep offence that eels had not been furnished according to ancient custom, and falling upon their hosts, inflicted a fearful slaughter." Capt. Broadmeadow had prepared for his guests an honest-to-goodness Rhode Island clam chowder." With their minds fixed on this, the coastguardens had visions of leaving their opponents "far to 'nuward'".

Wednesday evening the tournament will be continued between the Westerly Masonic club and the Mistuxet club of Stonington and will come to a close with a game to be played at the Masonic Club rooms. In anticipation of the closed season for the shipment of trees which comes with the advent of warm weather, Louis Leone, a Westerly contractor, who for the past two years has been shipping thousands of cedar trees and shrubs out of Westerly to various parts of the United States for decorative purposes, is to start making shipments by the carload. One of the first shipments will be to Cincinnati, O., comprising five carloads of trees and native shrubs. From 25 to 40 trees, depending in the length and size of roots, are shipped on a car. The trees range from 10 to 25 feet in height.

The trees are brought from a section in North Stonington to the Westerly station on large auto trucks and then hoisted on the flatcars by a derrick located in the freightyard.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

The Yearly Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is our highest building.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in one year could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Mass., to Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have lots of work to do and I am not very strong, but I was getting worse all the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to lose my appetite completely at certain times, but I feel very well since I began taking this medicine. I think so much of it that I would go before a notary and swear to its merits. You could step into my home any time and you will find a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. Frank M. Casey, 220 South 11th Ave., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

CONGRESS AND COAL

For several weeks, since the tax reduction bill was adopted, not a little has been said concerning the probabilities for the adjournment of congress. There have been intimations of what can be done when the business can be disposed of and when the end of the session may be reached. But that doesn't mean that the measures that are before congress, or that congress ought to consider, would be cleared up one way or the other.

In connection it is interesting to note that Congressman Treadway of Massachusetts has declared that he is opposed to the postponement of congress until action has been taken on the coal commission's report.

Not much has been heard concerning the coal situation since the strike was settled. There was a strong demand being made at one time that congress should do something, but that demand subsided, and yet there remains the fact that the federal coal commission has made a report containing conditions in the anthracite field and urged the adoption of its recommendations. The president has twice called upon congress to deal with these recommendations, but nothing has been undertaken.

It was argued at the time of the settlement that when action is taken it should be done when it could get the benefit of sound deliberation and not in the streets of the strike conditions. With the settlement reached which has existed covering a period of five months it is time for definite action. United States have developed [illegible] and there's no reason why there will be another.

There is a matter which is of particular interest to this part of the country and it is gratifying that a Rhode Island congressman is taking the lead that he has. It is time for the state legislature to meet its responsibility in this respect. The soonest step of this kind is taken which will give authority to the president to act in case of an emergency the sooner will come the relief which the coal consumers are entitled to but little to prod congress into action sometimes, but a good deal at times.

PROTECTION DUE PUBLIC

The Boston police had to make more than one arrest before they captured the man who had been stabbing women. There is no surprise is occasioned by the fact that the one finally proves to have been the victim of an insane delusion. It is indicated as much by the way he was caught because of his unfortunate tendency to [illegible] In many instances [illegible] where those who have escaped from such hospitals voluntarily to what was [illegible] The Boston man [illegible] institutions. Following [illegible] from the first, he was [illegible] a second and after his [illegible] is found to be a [illegible] That would seem to [illegible] evidence that he ought [illegible] be turned loose again for it [illegible] evidenced that he would have [illegible] his terrorism even as [illegible] after being discharged the [illegible]

[illegible] is far preferable that such inmates should be kept under restraint than to give them a chance to commit such rash acts. The Boston man has demonstrated too many times that he is not a fit person to be allowed his liberty. He has it in mind to be a public menace and he resorts to the inclinations whenever he gets a chance. Having been allowed a third chance to show what might be expected from him the fellow in Boston left no question as to his mental state. He is not a safe man to be allowed his liberty and the public deserves the protection that goes with his restraint.

FLYING OVER THE POLE

"A bad beginning it is said makes a good ending. Perhaps that will prove to be true in connection with the flight which Captain George H. Wilkins is planning over the north pole. There is much discouragement to encounter in his early efforts at Fairbanks, Alaska. The series of accidents culminating with the wrecking of his [illegible] engine plane on which much dependence had been placed for the flight from Point Barrows in Alaska to the polar territory and from thence to Spitzbergen.

Indications are that repairs can be made in time and it is presumed that resort will be made to such efforts, but from the fact that the accident happened when the machine was shooting along rough ground it seems to confirm the statements made by others who have tried the polar flights that the rough conditions to be expected in that region are a serious menace.

It will be remembered that Raold Amundsen made an attempt to reach the pole by airplane and announced after his lucky escape that he would make no more such attempts. Also on the recent Macmillan expedition the airplanes failed to accomplish what was expected of them.

Getting a landing place is of much importance in the use of airplanes. If good ones were available and they could be picked there would be little question but bad ones rather than good ones can be expected, and it does take much under such conditions to wreck the best flying machine today. Those who have penetrated the far north can appreciate the skepticism of explorers concerning flights to the pole in present day machines. It is invariably the case that they will have nothing more to do with such attempts.

Captain Wilkins isn't discouraged by his experiences thus far. He is made of different material but those experiences nevertheless indicate the predicament an aviator would be in in case they should be repeated somewhere near the pole, or even much nearer civilization but with no help at hand.

NEEDED UNIFORMITY

When the national conference on street and highway safety draws up a set of motor vehicle laws which is recommended to the various states for adoption, it is noted with interest that uniformity is the aim. Any conference is of course aware of the difficulties standing in the way of getting uniform legislation in 48 states regardless of what the subject may be, but the merit of such action as is urged cannot fail to be recognized if proper study is given to the situation as the result of the existing highway conditions that prevail today.

Those who go from one state to another know that uniformity is needed. The impossibility of trying to comply with a radically different set of motor vehicle laws in every state entered can be appreciated by every motorist.

When it comes to traffic conditions in the various cities it is to be expected that they will vary. They must. There are conditions which require it. For no two cities are laid out alike or face the same problems. But when it is a question of rules of the road, lenses, headlights, registrations, tail lights, signalling system and matters of general importance it is right and proper that there should be some uniformity.

It is in the interest of greater safety that such advocacy is made. It may take some time to bring all the states to the point where they can appreciate the advantage of such action but it will come. A number of states have already taken such a position and the force of such a good example will in time make its impression upon the others. Advocacy through both federal and state channels will have its good effect.

AT THE UNKNOWN'S GRAVE

There is so much disrespect and so much vandalism that it is pleasing to learn that all reports concerning such do not hold water under the light of investigation.

It was quite proper that much indignation should be expressed over the reports that the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington cemetery was not being shown proper respect by the visitors, that it was being used as a table to eat lunches on and that a woman had danced on it, besides the commission of other acts of disrespect. But it is gratifying to learn that such reports are not true.

An investigation, as made by Assistant Secretary MacNider of the war department, and a former head of the American Legion, shows that there has been no chipping of the stone and that there have been no irreverent acts committed there. There is a civilian guard on duty at the tomb while the cemetery is open and when an extra crowd is anticipated the guard is increased.

The effort to have a military guard placed at the tomb day and night was based upon the claims which have not been borne out by investigation. It is a matter however which lies within the authority of the president to deal with in case conditions warrant. Thus legislation by congress which has been asked in one resolution is not required.

Getting stirred up over unwarranted reports is frequently the case, and in this instance little surprise can be displayed, but the establishment of the facts in the case throws a different light upon the situation, and it is good to know that there is no neglect and no disposition to permit any at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, March 23.—New England can take just pride in the manner in which its political leaders in the house have handled legislation. It has been done in a thoroughly workmanlike manner and the speed with which congress has worked is largely due to New England efficiency, in which Congressman Tilson of Connecticut, republican floor leader, has contributed a very notable share. Tilson loses no time by useless debates; and makes no enemies by insisting that presidential policies regarding waste of money in appropriations.

He has proved that good leadership consists of saving both time and money. He works in perfect harmony with Speaker Longworth and has instituted the custom of consulting with chairmen of great committees, so a program of efficiency can be carried on without friction or jealousy. He has provided for hearings that will not conflict with one another, and has provided in advance, that every great measure shall have its day in court without undue delay. As a result, there is not likely to be a last minute jam of bills when the time of adjournment approaches. Tilson remarked a few days ago that the house would be in a position to pass all necessary measures and be ready to adjourn any time, on a ten days' notice. The house has already passed more than 130 bills which is an astonishing record for the first four months of any session. And what is better still, they have been passed with a minimum of friction and bad blood between factions or parties. All members of the New England delegation have taken a strong hand in this get-together movement of the republicans in the house and every man in the New England delegation deserves his share of the credit.

There has been practically no congressional legislation this week of local or state interest, but two unusual things occurred in the house in which Connecticut was interested through the floor leadership of Tilson. One was the observance of St. Patrick's day by congress for the first time in the history of the nation, and the other eulogizing the late William Jennings Bryan on the anniversary of his birth. Tilson was asked by O'Connell of Rhode Island, democrat, to endorse the observance of St. Patrick's day and permit a half hour to be devoted to a speech of what the Irish people had accomplished in the United States. Tilson was greatly interested and immediately secured unanimous consent to carrying out O'Connell's plans. When Democratic Floor Leader Garrett asked Tilson to help get through an hour for a Bryan eulogy and also that Tilson would take part in it, Tilson again consented to the suggestion of the democrats, and made a five minute eulogy of the "Commoner" along the lines that although he had most heartily disagreed with Bryan on every political line, he admired him for his clean personal character and the zeal he showed in every cause as he saw it from his own viewpoint of right. "He was a crusader in politics and in religion," said Tilson, "but a Christian and staunch in love of his country. His hatred of what he believed wrong was as keen and fervent as his devotion to what he believed to be right." Tilson made no reference to his political career or views.

Former Senator France was noted as the "pedestrian" speaker of the senate, because he walked back and forth unceasingly whenever he addressed the senate. But his mantel has fallen on Senator Caraway of Arkansas, who would make a pedometer tired. Caraway paces the floor, not only when speaking, but he wanders from democratic to republican side of the chamber in whispered consultation with "men on the other side". Observers say he spends as much time in the aisle as in his seat, and while seemingly indifferent to what is being said, he will suddenly stop in his wanderings, and, with a sarcastic smile on his face, and a sneer in his voice, chip in to the debate, with cutting and pointed emphasis. Caraway is a thorn in the flesh to many a senator, for his tongue is sharp and he doesn't hesitate to use it.

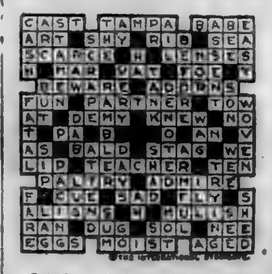
Former Senator LaFollette was another senator who invariably walked while delivering a speech. He occupied a seat in the front row on the republican side of the chamber, but when roused in debate would rush across the middle aisle, pound the desk of some democratic senator, while that gentleman "ducked" his waving arms. Then he would stride further down the democratic line, often ending the whole width of the room from where he started. "Young Bob" who succeeded him has not yet acquired the wandering habit. He has spoken but few times and then stands close to his seat in the back row. The elder "Bob" had a wonderful voice, deep and finely modulated; the younger "Bob" has a light voice and makes no effort for oratorical display. Except in announcement that he follows the policies of his father, there is but little resemblance between the two.

Just after the Richmond Blues and the Governor's foot guard of Connecticut have secured all necessary approval from the state and war departments for a trip abroad this spring, it developed that it was wise, and perhaps necessary to have the approval of congress before going, as a military organization, to visit foreign countries and the battlefields of the World war. To that end Congressman Tilson has introduced in the house a bill authorizing those organizations to visit foreign countries, and to conform to such conditions as may be imposed upon them by the governments of the countries they visit. Tilson also provides that the United States shall assume no expense for their trip.

This is undoubtedly a wise move for there will be several hundred men in the party, all representing in some way, a part of the military forces of the United States, and there might easily be some misunderstanding as to their purpose, without the precautionary measures introduced by Tilson as to their acceptance of conditions imposed on them by foreign countries. They go to France, Belgium and England and will be away about two months, sailing from New York April 4th. Judge Gilson of New Haven, civilian aid, was here this week in consultation with the Connecticut delegation regarding the congressional legislation.

It isn't often that a little bull terrier carries the leading headlines of big dailies, but that is what happened in Washington when "Stubby", mascot of the 26th division died here a few days ago. Stubby was decorated by Gen. Pershing, who pinned with his own hand a gold medal on Stubby, after the dog had been wounded by a shell at Seicheprey, as the result of rescue work on the battlefield. Stubby, as all the men of the 26th division already know, was picked up on the Yale field at New Haven way back in 1917 by members of the 102nd infantry and taken over seas. "Stubby was a gentleman," said one of the Y. D. officers this week. He died at the home of Robert Conroy, secretary to Congressman Fenn of Connecticut, and Washington newspapers carried long obituaries that rang with his praise.

People from all over the country are writing Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and advising him as to the name for his youngest daughter, who is now about one week old. It has been the custom of the Davis family to select names beginning with "J" for all their children, which now number five, four girls and one boy. Each child, except the latest arrival, bears a name beginning with "J" to match up with the initials of "Father", whose name is James John, and "Mother", who is named Jean. So family tradition cannot be changed for the little 11 pound girl that the stork deposited with the Davis family last week.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

OPEN SEASON

"So you are back from the lake!" cried the girl in purple when she ran onto her friend still in summer garb. The latter was rushing madly through the marts of trade hunting fall clothes. "What kind of summer did you have up there? Any luck?"

"Luck!" repeated the girl who was hunting clothes, in the most innocent tones. "Oh, you know I was all tired out and wanted a nice long rest and quiet—"

"I take it that you got both," commented the breezy girl in purple. "You aren't showing any diamond rings or eyelashed blushes."

"I tipped over in my canoe just as the handsome stranger who had been at the hotel two days was coming along," confessed the girl who had been away. "Everything went according to specifications—he chugged up in his motor boat, dragged me in and saved my life while I tried to act as though I didn't know a side stroke from a breakfast food, and she sent up twice that evening to inquire about my health.

"The first time I appeared the next day and was floating toward him just as sweetly and ethereally as I could—you know a person who has been half-drowned shouldn't tramp along robustly—and he had arisen with a pleased gleam in his eyes, the hotel motor bus arrived from the village where it had met the train and his fiancee and her mother descended. That girl was the clinging kind of fiancee and he never got within six rods of me again."

"Oh, well," comforted the girl in purple, who had shaken her head sympathetically, "maybe he would have turned out to be one of the men who insist on rehearsing their golf games to you. Give me a homely man who wears good neckties every time."

"Well, you'd have liked G. Orderly Findee then," sighed the girl who was hunting clothes. She seemed very disheartened. "He was ugly and dark with brilliant white teeth and when he walked up to the desk to register he slapped his motor gloves down on one side, his runners on another, gave orders to two bellboys to carry up the grip and carry out the bulldog to the garage, explained that his breakfast eggs had to be boiled precisely three and one half minutes and he didn't mean maybe.

"It had been a dull day and I had on my most effective sports outfit and he had to walk over to my chair to get upstairs. I look up from my book in an abstracted way as he approached—you know just as though I was thinking an hard of something else—so my sight didn't register a single thing in front of me and was thankful I had spent so much time on my water wave.

"The man actually seemed to see me too, and I allowed a little girlish interest to light my eyes and tried to decide whether he was a Wall Street financier, a western oil man or what have you. Exactly then the hotel window who was getting a divorce flutter cot down and crashed him—he who her lawyer came up to talk over the case and a confirmed woman hater, as a divorce lawyer should be."

"Just rise to be landed by an ex-poet widow," commented the girl in purple eagerly. "Exactly what he deserves, too, after acting so free and unattached and rousing your honeymoon thatt. Weren't there any nice men at the cottages visiting or otherwise?"

"Plenty," said the girl who had been away. "All the fishers had their college friends up; the older girls shared week end visitors nearly every throw, rather and mother sent out dozens of bids to the sons of their dear old school friends or that nice young Mr. Jones who lives at the club, poor man, and is so lonesome for a real home atmosphere—and occasionally a girl would mislay one of them down on the hotel veranda.

"But they might just as well have been sealed in a glass case. I tell you, if you want to have men on hand at a summer resort you've got to pack them along with your rouge and face powder and never let them out of your sight after you get there! It's fierce!"

"You poor thing!" crowed the girl in purple, who was simply delighted at her friend's wasted summer. "Come on and have a chocolate parfait while I tell you all about the three proposals I had this summer from perfectly wonderful young men left behind while the other girls went away to resorts and lakes for the season."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Three times state senator, a term as lieutenant-governor, and twice governor before being sent to the United States senate in 1921 is the record of public service of Peter Norbeck who is candidate for renomination as senator in today's primary in South Dakota. Senator Norbeck boasts that he has never been beaten in contesting for office and confidently expects to hold his seat in the upper house of congress for another six years. His record as war governor of South Dakota gave him a reputation outside the confines of his own state and in the senatorial contest that followed his term as governor he came through with flying colors, despite vigorous opposition from the combined forces of the democrats and non-partisan leaguers. Senator Norbeck was born in Dakota territory some 50 years ago, and has grown up with his state. Before entering actively into politics he was a merchant, farmer and well driller in turn.

From Small Beginnings

William Smellie, the Printer's Boy, a Great Printer

A boy who had just completed his studies in the schools of Edinburgh in Scotland found work in a printer's office. He had shown keen intelligence in his studies, and had developed high ambitions. He would very much have liked to go on to the university of Edinburgh and there continue his studies. This he was not able to do. Stern necessity sent him to work—and the work that he had to perform was almost wholly muscle work and not brain work. For a time it seemed to William Smellie, fresh from the Edinburgh Grammar school, that he had been turned away from all good fortune.

William Smellie, however, was made of that stuff that does not acknowledge misfortune. He came of good Scotch origin, and he had inherited the strong characteristics of his race. He found time to carry on his work for the printer, and also to read and to study. The work of a printer in those days was far different from the work of a printer in the present times. The great modern presses had not been invented; all the processes of printing involved long and tedious hand work. All type was set by hand, and even the presses were run by hand. William Smellie, printer's devil had to make very active use of his strong young muscles and to work hard. There was one great difference between him and his fellow workmen. When the long hours in the shop were over the others went to rest or amusement. William Smellie went to lectures in the University of Edinburgh and continued his studies. Because of his energy he made himself a highly educated man.

By the time he was 25 he set up a printing business of his own. In this he prospered exceedingly because he did excellent work and had the education that enabled him to do work of a superior kind. Because of his ability he was able to print the great Encyclopedia Britannica when it appeared for the first time. He was then about 30 years of age. He devoted himself day and night to work on the sheets of the new encyclopedia and did much to make it an unusually well-printed book. As he grew older he amused himself by writing various books in which he made use of his learning as well as of his experiences in life. His energy, however, led to his death at 55.

Stories That Recall Others

Remove After Using

When one auto owner entered his garage recently he found that one of the rear tires on his automobile was flat. Mounting the car on a jack he placed the spare tire in position and transferred the "flat" to the spare rack, intending to visit the nearest tire repair shop. Glancing at his watch he noticed that the time for punching the time clock was getting close. He stepped on the starter and the buss responded nobly. He threw out the clutch and shifted to reverse. Nothing happened. He tried it again. Nothing doing. The air then became blue with abusive phrases cast on the car.

He could not take time to walk to the car line as he lived a long way from one and anyway street cars are slow when one is late. Perhaps, he thought, a garage man could remedy the trouble and start him on his way without much delay. A garage man was called and in a short time arrived with a "dolly" on which to pull the "dead" car in. The garage man started the car. A smile came on his face. He got out of the car and walked around it.

"Brother," he said, "after having repaired a tire always remove the jack. The car invariably will run better."

The owner paid the $1.50 and chugged on, sadder but wiser.

Prohibition and Probation

Jimmie came home one day with the report that the prohibition officer had visited their school that day. His mother was very much concerned that such was necessary. However, the teacher assured her on inquiry that it was only the probation officer making his usual visit to the school.

Baby Fretful?
Avoid Constipation

Remember your baby is helpless, unable to point out that constipation is making its life miserable. You must be able to recognize the symptoms.

Convulsions, night terrors, grinding the teeth in sleep, feverishness, frostbitness—all indicate that poisons from baby's stagnant intestines are flooding the little body.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without straining.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggist.

EXPLAINS TO NORWICH AUDIENCE OPERATION OF COMMUNITY CHEST

The March meeting of the chamber of commerce, held Monday night at the Wauregan hotel, with supper at 6:15, drew out the largest attendance for several months, between 125 and 150 being present to hear the subject of the evening, The Community Chest, explained by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, where the chest idea is in operation for its first year.

Music during the supper hour was by Swahn's orchestra and the song leader was James Rountree. Two tenor solos were finely rendered by Roderick F. Sullivan, who sang Love's Sorrow and gave for an encore O Promise Me.

In opening the speaking programme, President James L. Case mentioned committee activities in the month, referring especially to the committee on aviation field and said it was hoped before long to conduct a programme on this subject.

President Case introduced Rev. Mr. Danforth, saying that the chamber of commerce had felt that the community chest was a community proposition, one which the citizens should determine.

The visitor from New London gave a pleasing and forceful explanation of the operation of the community chest there, saying that it was an organization made up of the giving public, a community movement. In the past, welfare and charitable organizations, all of them doing a good work, each meeting the need in its own special field, had conducted their individual campaigns and the public felt that these campaigns were multiplying. The community chest was organized that the givers might enter into control. An executive committee was organized which represented the general giving public and contained no representatives of organizations to be benefitted. A budget committee was also formed which worked to see what was being done and what possibly ought to be done in fields that were not reached. The budget committee met with the organizations and talked with them upon what was being spent. Nineteen organizations including the community chest itself, were included in the organization of the community chest. Three things the community chest does not do; it pays no debts, raises no capital, and builds no new buildings. The bookkeeping of the organizations, especially among the smaller ones, is subject to inspection, and by the use of a revolving fund each organization is paid at the end of the month what it has expended in the month. The officials of the organizations are relieved from the task of raising funds.

The great advantage comes in that word "community." The community chest is something that takes the whole into view. It was found that the year before the community chest was adopted in New London, different organizations had been raising $40,000. These organizations were taken in, others were added, the amount was set at $76,000 and the sum raised was $82,000. It was just as easy to raise the whole as the parts and it was done without revealing any undiscovered millionaires.

The community chest is team work, Rev. Dr. Danforth said, representatives of every group in the community being on the budget committee, in the executive committee and on the board of directors. It does all the work at one time instead of having practically the same people do it five or six times, and if there are kicks, they have to take them only once instead of five or six times.

The large welfare organizations which had been most effective in their own campaigns were not those benefitting most by the community chest, but it was rather the smaller ones. There should be no reluctance on the part of any to go in, said the speaker, likening this community participation to the union of the states where it is worth while to sacrifice a little individual independence for the sake of the great union. That word "community" settles it, he said. Everybody's need is met and everybody meets it. Everybody is to have a share in receiving the benefit and everybody is to have a share in giving it.

A vote of thanks emphasized the applause which was given to Rev. Mr. Danforth by the meeting, which then adjourned after singing a verse of the Star Spangled Banner.

President Case invited the representatives of various organizations to remain for further conference with Rev. Mr. Danforth. These included the Y. M. C. A., Lions, Rotary, Manufacturers' association, Merchants' association, Central Labor Union, Boy Scouts, Diocesan bureau, Red Cross, Backus hospital, Duwell club, West End Community association, and Salvation Army.

DENIES MOTION TO SET ASIDE $1,800 VERDICT

The motion to set aside the verdict in the case of Gladys E. Palmer of Hopkinton, R. I., against Owen C. Wolfe of New London has been denied by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court. Notice of the judges decision was filed late Monday with Judge George E. Parsons, the clerk of the superior court in this city.

Miss Palmer, who is 20, sued for $15,000 damages and was given a verdict for $1,800 for injuries she received at Hopkinton, R. I., May 23, 1924, when she was hit by an automobile driven by Wolfe.

The decision says: The plaintiff's injuries for which she seeks recovery in approaching from her right as she was struck by the defendant's automobile approaching from his right as she was walking across the main street of Hopkinton, R. I., at a street intersection. Just after two other cars going in the opposite direction from that of the defendant had gotten by her.

The defendant's contention in support of this motion, that counsel for the plaintiff in argument appealed to the prejudice of the jury in referring to certain claimed admissions of the defendant, etc., apparently comes as an afterthought inspired by the jury's verdict. No objection was raised during the trial and none should have been for the argument used was warranted by the evidence and entirely proper. There is no reason to conclude that the verdict was influenced by prejudice.

The claim that the amount of the verdict is excessive is likewise without merit. The plaintiff's evidence if believed by the jury, amply justified the award made.

The only other ground relied upon by the defendant in support of this motion is that as a matter of law the evidence did not warrant the jury's finding that the plaintiff was free from contributory negligence. Since upon the construction of the evidence most favorable to the plaintiff the jury might well have found that before starting across the street she paused on the curb to let the two machines coming from her left go by that she then looked both ways and could see no other vehicles, that she then started across the street at a walk, the defendant's car either not yet having come into view over the top of the grade to her right, or being obscured by the other two cars that she continued across looking either straight ahead or to her left in the direction from which she would naturally expect any vehicle to approach traveling upon the half of the highway where she was walking that shortly before she reached the middle of the street she was struck by the defendant's auto which came down the hill toward her at a rate of from 40 to 45 miles an hour and that in spite of the fact that she was proceeding across at the very intersection of a cross street, the defendant sounded no horn and the plaintiff heard no warning of any kind of his approach before being struck., this contention of the defendant also must be overruled. The motion to set aside the verdict is denied.

RESERVES DECISION IN CONTRACTOR'S $950 CLAIM

Judge E. Victor Prince in the court of common pleas Monday at New London took the papers and reserved decision in the $950 damage suit brought by George S. Gadbois, a New London contractor and builder, against the Robertson Paper Co., of Montville. Attorney Thomas E. Troland conducted the case for the plaintiff, while the paper company was represented by Attorneys John McGarry and Frank S. Shea.

The suit was brought by Gadbois to recover an amount alleged du him for services rendered the defendant company in shingling a house and doing other work. The first portion of the plaintiff's complaint alleged that there was $442.10 due him for day work from September, 1924, to December, 1925. This was not contested by the defendant. The second portion of the complaint, however, stated that there was $340 due for the shingling of the house, the papers alleging that the sum was the estimate given by the plaintiff. This the defendant denies, setting up in its answer that the plaintiff gave the company an estimate of $275. The defendant also alleges that a tender of $717.10 had been made repeatedly to the plaintiff as full settlement.

Witnesses called to the stand by Attorney Troland were Mr. Gadbois and Arthur E. Blaisdell. Attorneys Shea and McGarry called to the stand R. A. Powers, president and general manager of the paper company, and Charles H. Andrews, assistant general manager.

GREENWOOD IS FREED OF MURDER SUSPICION

Following a second trip to Montville and Norwich by Cranston, R. I., investigators into the murder of Harold E. Hillman of that place with a view of checking up the movements of Nathan Greenwood of Scituate, R. I., and formerly of Montville, the authorities have returned from Montville with the result that Greenwood was freed of suspicion of having any knowledge of the murder. He had been held for three days in connection with the murder. Having confessed to the theft of an automobile according to the police, he is being held on that charge.

After a week of the most intensive work on the brutal murder of Hillman, a storekeeper at Cranston, the police were still baffled in their hunt for the murderer or murderers. Otto Von Waldhaus, Putnam police dog has failed to bing any new angle to light on the mystery and the police have practically abandoned hope from that source.

It is understood that the alleged companion of Greenwood whom the police were searching for last week has been eliminated with the convincing of the Cranston authorities that Greenwood knows nothing of the crime.

TRIBUTE TO HUTCHISON AS NOTED YALE ATHLETE

Or William F. Hutchison, son of a former principal of the Norwich Free Academy, a Yale graduate in 1880 and later a famous professional baseball pitcher, the New Haven Journal-Courier said editorially Monday under the caption "Hutchison, a Yale Athlete of '80":

The death of William Forrest Hutchison of the class of 1880 in Kansas City recalls the athletes of that time, for he was a great ball player and was of the class of Walter Camp. Boating was the only interest that was incorporated and of real standing and there were not many like Prof. Eugene L. Richards who sensed the significance of the physical training avenue to college morale. Says Walter Camp of the period when his class "entered" (1876): "Baseball came next in interest and football was but the mongrel game, with few laws and a general privilege of kicking and batting the ball at will, but no running with it. Track athletics had only just been thought of."

Julian Kennedy and Bob Cook were just graduating. In the crew of 1878 Henry Taft of '80 sat in the shell and again in 1879 but Harvard's three-time captain, Bancroft, won out. In 1880, however, came the first boating victory during the '80s course As for football Mr. Camp, always modest, writes in his class book, "We parted a football history for Yale that has kept them leaders in that sport up to the present day." (1910).

Hutchison and his class figured large in the baseball record. In freshman year George Clark was on the Varsity nine and in sophomore year the class gave three—Hutchison, Parker and Camp. A long list of defeats at the hands of Harvard was checked by '80 which enriched its Commencement with a deciding row at Cambridge, 8 runs to 5. In that year also the Yale nine with its strong '80 contingent won 11 of 13 professional games.

Hutchison lived his life in Kansas City. With him baseball was a part of his very being and, after refusing calls to the professional game for many years, he finally followed the call of his heart and played with the Chicagos, nine for seven years. That was thirty years ago. He was born in New Haven and his father was a Yale tutor in the Civil war period, later headmaster of the Norwich Free Academy. "Hutchey" filled a large place in his college generation. His dust will mingle with the soil of that community. Not many can remember his distinguished father who graduated in the class of Yale, 1854.

The Yale necrology is recruited of late by other chosen ones. Walter, '78, Badger, '83, the Boston lawyer, was also a ball player in his time. His active diminutive figure is vivid to those who ever saw him play. Of the late A. B. Morrill this column has spoken. Many a home where there are children will sorrow over the passing of Dr. H. Merriman Steele. New Haven is distinctive in this speciality but perhaps none surpassed him in power over little people. He held teaching and hospital posts; he kept abreast of the latest in his science.

Don't dope YOUR COUGH

It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or tar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, as most cough mixtures do, but this is not enough.

THE BURNING QUESTION IS ANSWERED

SUSIE IS SWAMPED WITH LETTERS RELATIVE TO LOCAL POLITICS

Susie in her weekly letter says she has come to the conclusion that city politics are funny things and that she had better stick to the sports in the future. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:

Say, old thing, didja ever get a mouthful of rubber bands and try to chew 'em? Well, if you ever did you know just how I feel since I got into them politics letters. Believe me, I sure bit off a wicked mouthful and I should bet I choke before I get 'em masticated. Politics is a game what folks of the innercent age should leave alone 'cause if they don't they is gonna get a awful set back. I ain't recovered yet and I don't expect to be for some time to come. Flocks of letters is comin' in on every mail and to see the number I gets every day you'd think I was promotin' some bum oil stock. Gosh, I'm as busy as a one-armed lady opening a parasol on a windy day when it comes to readin' my mail.

Some of them letters what I get don't hand me no bunches of violets, all the bouquets what I gets is poison-ivy. If I sent all them letters down to you it would take a truck to carry 'em and you ain't got type and paper enough to print 'em all. Guess I better cut 'em down and just tell you what folks is writin' to me.

I got a letter from Storrs from a feller what wants to know can he vote for Yip Yee for mayor seein's how he and Yip used to work in the same laundry. I tells him yes and I has cast one vote for Yip, which gived Yip the lead so far in this race.

Another feller writes an' tells me I don't know nothin' about politics and that I had better stick to sports. He says if I had twice as many brains as I got now I would have just one. Nice feller ain't he. I guess he's one of them guys what nobody but a blind mother could love. Well, I ain't read in no paper where no college has hung a medal on a feller named George for being a infant prodigal. He maybe all the world to his female parent but he's a boil on the neck to me.

Oh, yes, I got one more nomination for mayor, it comes from a feller what signed his name as Able. He writes as per follows:

Dear Susie: For why don't you have no Jewish boys try for mayor, eh? Them Jewish boys is great business men and they own about all of Main street now, eh? I like for you should print in the paper that mine friend Abe ——— should try to get the job for mayor. What you think about it, eh? He see a lotta peoples every day and he's what you say poplar.

ABIE

I crossed out Abe's last name 'till I get his answer about runnin' for mayor. I ain't goin' to run nobody what don't wants be run saymore.

Speakin' about fellers not wantin' the job of mayor I gotta letter from the China boy and one from Tony, the banana man. Yip Yee writes like this:

Most Horrible Susee:

By the most horrible paper I see the China boys likee mee to be mayor. This China boy have no time for politics, too muchee washee shirtee. Maybe I getee job for washee collars for the cops but no mayor job for life.

YIP YEE

Whatdo know about that? Ain't that the way with some folks. Try an' do 'em a favor an' right away they want something else. Well Yip Yee is gonna run 'cause I ain't gonna take his name offn the list seein' how's he's got one vote already.

Tony says he ain't got no clingin' vine feelin' for to be mayor. He say "I like better to grinda de orgun and pusha de wagon with de mont than have somebody grinda de orgun and me be de monk." Guess Tony thinks bein' mayor ain't bein' boss of your own business and maybe Tony's right.

Well, Ed, they ain't nobody voted for me yet and I ain't resigned seein' how all the skirts, long and short, is with me. Well, I'm gonna cast one vote for myself so's now me and Yip is tied for mayor.

One feller writes and asks me what's my platform and I writes back an' tells him I'm gonna use the one what the band uses for them concerts in the summer' time. A nother feller wants to know is I for or agin prohibition.

I writes and tells this feller I don't know as there was any prohibition. One feller wants to know would I favor plantin' trees in Franklin square and I writes back and says, yes, 'cause they would furnish shade for them curbstone sheiks and the roots would keep the dirt from blowin' in your face on a windy day.

One woman asks me would I have the Charleston barred in public dance halls. If I was elected mayor, I ain't give her no answer yet but I guess I would 'cause it's a menace to public health. I don't mean for the ones what's dancin' it 'cause they ain't nothin' that can make them any worse. It's them folks what ain't dancin' it that gets all cut up and bruised an' I'm talkin' as one what's had the painful experience. If I dont bar it I should insist that everybody what Charlestoned should wear felt slippers then when you gotta kick in the shins it wouldn't take the hide off.

Gosh I'm gettin' dizzy answerin' so many questions. Guess people must think my old man's a bootlegger seein' how poplar I'm gettin'. No, I ain't gettin' no swelled dome 'cause I been nominated for mayor, 'cause I know I'm gonna get my knocks like everybody else what's in the public's eyes

Oh, by the way, them two drug store fellers is innercent babes when politics is mentioned 'cause both say they ain't heard nothin' about they being mentioned as mayor. That's the old stall all right, they all say, "this is so sudden." This week I heard a nother man mentioned who they said would have a good chance of being elected if a coupla fellers what have got grudges against each other would bury the hatchet some place else besides in each others scalp. I don't know who I mean or not but if you think back over republican history maybe it will come to you.

Well I gotta get busy and make out the votin' sheets 'cause now we're goin' to vote for mayor. The candidates to date is Yip Yee, Tony, the banana man, Able, Susie, and the writer of many letters.

Yours for clean politics, if any.

BASEBALL TEAMS STARTING NORTH ON EXHIBITION TOURS

TAMPA, Fla., March 23—(AP)—Baseball teams will start their exodus from Florida this week.

The New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers complete training Thursday and leave Friday morning on an exhibition tour which will take them north for the beginning of the season.

The Boston Braves and the Washington Senators break camp April 1. The Braves will play the third game of a series with the Providence Easterns Friday. They meet the St. Louis Browns Saturday. The Yankees meet the Cincinnati Reds tomorrow and Thursday at St. Petersburg.

The Yankees and the Dodgers are billed for fourteen exhibition games as they swing northward. Two games at the Yankee stadium in New York will end the trip.

Breaking camp April 1, the Braves are to play Providence in Jersey City April 4. Before the season opens they will meet the Baltimore Orioles twice at Boston. They will end the pre-season schedule with a game with the Bears at Providence, April 11.

While Bucky Harris today expressed himself well-pleased with the condition of the Senators, he indicated the pre-season schedule ahead of them was the process by which he hopes to remove the few remaining kinks.

The Senators play two more games this week. They were beaten today in the first by the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 2. Wednesday, they meet Brooklyn and Saturday open a three game series with the New York Giants.

The Giants-Senators series is regarded as the climax of the local training season.

Experts have given the Giants credit for rounding into form more quickly than the Senators, but it is predicted they will be virtually on even terms Saturday.

Harris said today his pitchers were a bit further advanced than his batsmen, but that they were beginning to find the ball and would be in good trim next month when the league season begins.

The Senators play their final game of the training season here March 31st the Baltimore Orioles.

NUTMEGS TO START OUTDOOR PRACTICE SUNDAY

With the prospect of an exceptionally fast team to represent them on the diamond this season the Nutmegs will hold their first drill of the year Sunday next at Sachem field, Falls.

The majority of the players are prominent athletes who have made a name for themselves around these parts. Many of these men, playing under the name of the Warriors established a record last season of eight straight wins and no losses in the Twilight league, mowing down all kinds of opposition.

The pitching staff this year is to be composed of Ellie Segal, Ed Healey H. Couture and a darkhorse southpaw. Behind the bat Jab Burns, J Tombari and Leo Hamil will take turns at receiving the hooks and slants of the above-named twirlers. The regular infield will without doubt be made up of Gil Kramer at the initial sack, Farmer Bill Burns at the Keystone bag, Chubby Gibbs at the short field and Leo Morin at the dizzy corner. Powerful reserve material will be had in Jim Brassil, Jim Fenton and Nevius. In the outer pastures Brown, Fitzgerald Winters, Banville and the idle pitchers and catchers will room. Freddy Marchand will be with the team later in the season.

All of the above men are expected to report at 2.30 p. m. sharp, Sunday.

RAIN CALLS HALT ON TENNIS PLAY AT CANNES

CANNES, France, March 22—(AP)—With all play in the Cannes tennis tournaments postponed today because of rain, Riviera tennis enthusiasts were speculating as to what developments this week will bring.

Suzanne Lenglen, who has been recuperating in the vicinity of Lake Como, Italy, is expected to return to Nice this week, and officials of the coming Beausite tournaments, attempting to revive the Riviera's waning interest in tennis, have announced that she will play an exhibition singles match at the end of the week.

Helen Wills, the American champion, whose match with Miss Joan Ridley of England in the finals of the Cannes women's singles was rained out today, is undecided as to whether she will remain here a little longer or leave for Paris. She is tentatively entered in the Beausite singles, in which she is in the upper half of the draw. If she decides to play in the Beausite tournament it will be her last Riviera appearance of the season, as she is due in Paris within 20 days.

PROTESTS BOUT BETWEEN UZCUDUN AND DRAKE

PARIS, March 23—(AP)—As a protest against what he terms an uneven and one-sided match, Henry Bernstein appointed by the French boxing federation to referee the bout scheduled for tomorrow night between Paolino Uzcudun, known as the "Tiger of the Pyrenees," and Harry Drake, English heavyweight, served notice on the promoters of the bout tonight that he must decline the invitation to officiate.

Bernstein who is the most prominent boxing referee in France declared he had been informed that Drake was suffering from heart trouble and that he might be killed in the ring. He was unwilling to take the chance of criminal prosecution in such a case and asked the federation to have Drake examined by official doctors tomorrow afternoon.

DUWELL CLUB MAKES ANSWER TO CHECKERS

Sports Ed.: Perhaps there are many who expect to pick up the sporting section this morning and find some harsh reply to the letter which some one signing as Checkers, had published in yesterday's Bulletin, and no doubt they will be rather disappointed to find that instead of a strong comeback they will find that we are ready to thank our friend Checkers for taking such an interest in the checker tournament and also the affairs of the Duwell club and also stand ready to explain the unforeseen circumstances which arose at the time to make it necessary to postpone the opening of the checker tournament from March 9 to a later date.

When the plans for the checker championship tournament were made it was decided to run the tournament for at least four nights to decide which player should play in the finals to decide who should be crowned as checker champ of eastern Connecticut. The plan would have been perfectly all right if all the players lived in Norwich, but soon after the tournament was announced letters were received from Putnam, Willimantic, New London and a few of the smaller villages from players who wanted to enter the tournament, but would have found it hard to come to Norwich four or five different times to compete for the chance to play in the finals. Rather than to run the tournament without these ambitious aspirants it was decided to postpone the tournament to a later date when the whole tournament could be played off in one day, giving everyone a chance to play all their games in one day, thereby doing away with the original plan of having the tournament run four or five nights.

It has been decided that Good Friday, April 2, is the best day to run the tournament and that entries will be received until two days before that time. Eliminations will start early in the day, the time to be announced later and will continue throughout the day until the winner has finally been decided.

The winner is to receive $25 in gold and also a silver loving cup with cash prizes for the runner up. The contest will be open to any one in Eastern Connecticut who can register with the sporting editor of The Bulletin or by addressing Sports, Duwell Club. We feel that this is the desired information which our friend Checkers is in search of and hope that it will prove satisfactory.

Signed,
"SPORTS," DUWELL CLUB.

FRENCH-AMERICAN TENNIS TOURNEY OPENS MAY 28TH

PARIS, March 22.—(AP)—The French Tennis Federation today fixed May 28 as the date for the opening of the international tennis tournament between France and the United States, which will be played on the hard courts of the Tennis and Racing club in the Bois de Boulogne.

While it is understood that the American team will be Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter of New York, French tennis enthusiasts are hoping that William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston, also may make the trip.

After the France-America tournament will come the tournament between British and French women players, to be followed by the French championships. The schedule calls for continuous tennis in the Bois de Boulogne from May 28 to June 13, and nearly all the reserved seats for these meetings already have been sold.

MORE ENTRIES EXPECTED IN OPEN GOLF THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—Extension of the qualification test for the open golf championship from three to seventeen sectional tournaments will more than double the 1925 entry of 445 players, golf officials said here today.

Limitations of the fixture in the past, offering financial burdens which discouraged young and obscure professionals, have been overcome in the new plan, they pointed out. Under the change, 120 players will be qualified this year at the sectional tests as against 86 last season, and to these will be added the first thirty to finish in the 1925 final, members of the Walker Cup team and foreign players.

Sectional events for the open tournament will be staged in or near New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Richmond, San Francisco, Portland, Ore., and San Antonio, Tex., among other cities.

OLD MAN HARD LUCK NOT A TRAINING CAMP GUEST

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—Misfortune, unwelcome guest of many baseball clubs from the inception of the 1926 training campaign, has been a less frequent visitor at the southern camps of major league teams this spring.

Preparations for the homeward trek this week find the Brooklyn Robins seriously affected by the illness of their high-priced young infielder, Johnny Butler, now in a Baltimore hospital. Robinson counted heavily upon Butler in his reconstruction program, but "flu" and stomach trouble put him out of play almost as soon as he arrived at the Dodgers' camp.

Minor mishaps took from the Boston Red Sox their promising outfielder, Walter Shaner, who suffered a broken leg, and laid up Bob Lamotte of the Browns, who was hit in the eye with a pitched ball.

Despite the accident to Alexander, who also was injured last spring, the Cubs are in much better condition than they were a year ago, when Rabbit Maranville, counted upon to strengthen the infield at shortstop, broke his leg in a practice game. With a crippled infield from the outset, the Chicago entry stepped off to a bad start and never recovered.

The Philadelphia Athletics likewise were handicapped a year ago by an injury to their regular first baseman, Joe Hauser, who now appears ready to resume his old position.

The hand of the 1925 jinx, however, was laid most heavily upon New York's two major league entries. Babe Ruth was knocked out by influenza and indigestion, and the Big Bertha of the Yankee attack was silent almost half the season. An epidemic of injuries seized the Giants and clung to the club throughout the National league race.

MURPHY WINS WHEN TRAVERS FOULS HIM

NEW HAVEN, Mar. 22.—(AP)—Billy Murphy, of Lowell, Mass., won on a foul from Tony Travers, of New Haven, lightweight champion of Connecticut in the fifth round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight. Travers weight was 137 1-3 and Murphy 133.

Georgie Day, of New Haven, was given the referee's decision over Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, in the semi-final. It was an eight round bout.

Joey Eulo, of New York, was given the referee's decision over Pinky Silverberg of Ansonia, in a six round bout.

Sammy Cooper, of New Haven and Johnny Saxon, of Bridgeport boxed six rounds to a draw.

In the opening bout Tommy Jarrett of New Haven, was given the referee's decision over Johnny O'Keefe, of Hartford, in a four round bout.

The bouts were staged by the Nutmeg A. C.

FOOTBALL MENTORS DIVIDED AS TO EFFECT OF NEW RULING ON THE GAME

NEW HAVEN, March 22.—(AP)—T. A. D. Jones, head coach of the Yale football team is of the opinion that the new regulations regarding the forward pass will not materially alter the game but will have the effect of making the success of the pass more necessary.

"I do not believe that any of the new rulings of the rules committee will greatly alter the game," Coach Jones said. "The effect of placing a five yard penalty on each of each incompleted pass, the first one should add a greater premium to its successful execution and have a tendency to check its indiscriminate use. In many cases it should have the effect of speeding up the game.

"The ruling regarding the safety will not prevent a team from using it if it so desires but by requiring a kick on the next play will eliminate the practice of intentional safeties in order to keep possession of the ball."

RULE WILL NOT MAKE MUCH DIFFERENCE IN GAME

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 22.—(AP)—Restriction of the forward pass by recent rules changes in football will not make a great deal of difference, in the opinion of Fielding H Yost, athletic director at the University of Michigan, nor will the other three changes affect the game materially, the veteran fotball coach declared today.

"The rule appears to be destined to stop a team throwing passes by the wholesale in the closing minutes of a game," said Yost, "but when a passer is shooting for the moon, a five yard penalty is not going to mean so much especially as the team in possession of the ball can kick on fourth down."

Doing away with the intentional safety was a good move but "in all my 40 years of experience I have never seen over four intentional safeties," he declared, "it is something that does not happen very often."

HAWLEY SAYS HE IS SORRY TO SEE NEW RULE

CHICAGO, March 23.—(AP)—Infliction of a five yard penalty on a football team for each incomplete forward pass will retard the development of scientific football and will eliminate the offensive possibilities of the game, Jess Hawley, Dartmouth football coach, believes.

Hawley, whose Big Green eleven tossed forward passes like shrapnel fire to clear its way to national eminence last season on the gridiron, expressed disappointment today in the action of the football rules committee in restricting the aerial game.

"For years," he said, "the forward pass was not used because of its hazards, except as a last resort. In the last two seasons it has been developed until it put aerial play on a plane with ordinary running play. A team could adapt the forward pass to a running game, and could push back the defense with the threat of a pass when it played in close to stop linebucking.

"The new rule virtually stops that. It penalizes the use of the forward pass to an extent which will deprive it of its present uses, and relegate it again to a last resort. And a five yard penalty will mean nothing to the team trying desperately to win in the last five minutes of play.

"Personally, I'm sorry to see it."

YOUNG BELIEVES NEW RULE WILL ENCOURAGE PASSING

PHILADELPHIA, March 22—(AP)—Lou Young, head football coach at the University of Pennsylvania, does not think much of the new rule penalizing the second and third incompleted forward pass before a first down, adopted in New York last Saturday.

"Rather than discourage long and indiscriminate passing late in the game," said Young, "I really believe it will tend to encourage more throwing of the ball.

"When a team is in the hole, the loss of five or ten yards will not mean much if it has a chance to gain 25 or 30 on one long pass. The new rule is sure to encourage passing on the first down. I believe the passing early in the game will be shorter and more scientifically done. It looks as though the check was aimed at some of the colleges and universities that have ben too proficient with the passing game.

"If the rule makers desired to encourage the running game they should allow five downs for ten yards on rushing the ball and four downs when passes are inserted."

W. W. Roper, head coach at Princeton university said the new forward pass rule was a good thing. "Being a member of the football rules committee," he said, "naturally I am in favor of the new rule."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy Makes Use of Bowser the Hound

Why not of other folk make use?
I do and offer no excuse.

—Reddy Fox.

A lot of people are just like Reddy. When they are not smart enough to do things themselves they are smart enough to get other people to do them for them. This is a favorite trick of Reddy's. He certainly does believe in making use of other people.

It was just this thing that he was planning to do now. He was planning to get Bowser the Hound to drive the new stranger out of the Green Forest.

Of course, Instantly Bowser started after him

He didn't dare try to do it himself. You see he didn't know how big the stranger might be, for he never had seen him. He didn't know how good a fighter he might be. If there was to be any driving done it would be a lot easier and safer to get some one else to do it. So he had gone over to Farmer Brown's dooryard and had shown himself to Bowser the Hound. Of course, instantly Bowser started after him. Now Reddy was leaving Bowser straight to the place where this stranger had left his foot prints and scent.

When he reached this place Reddy put his nose to the ground and began to follow the stranger's track. He chuckled when he heard the extra roar of Bowser's voice as Bowser's wonderful nose picked up the doubly strong scent. Everything was working out just as Reddy wanted it to. The next thing to be done was to get off that trail without leaving any scent of his own so that Bowser would go right on following the scent of the stranger. Reddy was quite sure he would be able to do it without much trouble. It was a trick he had worked a great many times.

Reddy ran lightly and swiftly along, following the trail of the stranger. By and by just ahead of him, he saw an old tree trunk and he hoped the stranger's trail would lead close to that trunk. It did. It led just exactly where Reddy had hoped it would.

The end of that trunk was just a few feet to one side. Reddy made a long jump and lightly landed on the tree trunk. Then he ran swiftly along this to the other end where he stopped and turned to watch what would happen. In a moment Bowser the Hound came in sight. He was running with his nose to the ground lifting it only to send his great voice rolling through the Green Forest. Reddy grinned. Bowser was enjoying that hunt. That was an easy trail to follow and Bowser was having a thoroughly good time. So was Reddy Fox.

Bowser reached the place where Reddy had jumped to the end of the fallen tree. Would Bowser miss his scent there? Reddy held his breath as he watched. No, sir, Bowser didn't hesitate a second. He went right on. You see, his wonderful nose picked up the scent of the stranger, and because that was a Fox scent, too, he didn't miss Reddy's scent. Presently he disappeared among the trees. His voice sounded more and more excited as he followed that trail. Reddy fairly chuckled. He jumped down. Then what do you think he did? Why, he started along after Bowser. You see, he wanted to see for himself all that happened. He wanted to know if Bowser actually did drive this stranger out of the Green Forest. And, of course, he knew that Bowser would never think of such a thing as turning back or looking back. It never would enter his head that Reddy Fox was following him, because he thought he was following Reddy Fox.

"I guess that stranger will get out now," muttered Reddy. "There is nothing like making use of your neighbors. Bowser doesn't know I am making use of him, but I am. That shows how smart I am."

MEANEST MAN IS SOUGHT BY GROTON BARRACKS POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 23—The state police of Groton barracks are conducting a search in the hope of ascertaining the identity of the automobile driver who last night ran down Gerald McCarthy, of Holyoke, Mass., and then left the man in the highway to care for himself the best way possible. The patient is now under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital suffering from head injuries and lacerations.

McCarthy was walking along Pequot road, Groton about 11 o'clock when at a point nearly opposite the plant of the Max Pollock company, the auto struck McCarthy causing him to be hurled violently to the highway. Instead of stopping to determine the extent of McCarthy's injuries, the driver speeded away. A short time later McCarthy was found by passing autoists, who had the hospital ambulance summoned and the man was taken to the institution for treatment. The state police were notified and an officer was sent to the hospital in the hope that a clue would be obtained that would result in identification of the guilty driver, but McCarthy could not aid the authorities in this way.

CHESHIRE PROVES THE GOAL OF HAROLD M. SMITH AT 18

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Harold Smith, aged 18 was in the police court this morning as a thief—the robbed friends who trusted him and granted him the privilege of their room at 7 Golden street. Judge Prince said that he was the sort of fellow who should be controlled and in custody. "You seem to be a youth who likes fine clothes, wear flared-bottomed trousers and drink booze," declared the judge in disposing of Smith's case. The accused man had stolen clothing from his former associates in the coast guard and then had disposed of what he had taken for money. Smith was dishonorably discharged from the service some months ago after he was arrested with a case in which his immorality was disclosed. He was in a room that was at a Howard St. house where the mother of a baby was making herself free with persons of immoral character. That woman has been disciplined by the court. Now Smith gets a similar punishment. Judge Prince committed Smith to the state reformatory at Cheshire, there to remain until the authorities deem him a person to be at large. Smith did not tell the whole truth about his theft of the ring and what he said could not be relied upon as the truth. He represented that he came back here to make restitution but then he said he shipped to Boston to go south and tehre he was to meet one he had stolen. His conduct in the matter was reprehensible so he received no applause. Even the probation officer, who investigated the stories told by Smith, refused to defend him and ask the court for leniency.

Three drunks were disciplined, one a jail sentence, one by a fine and one by a suspended judgment.

SANTANGELO IN JAIL CAN THINK OF HIS FOLLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—James Santangelo, two weeks ago, was a courageous fellow, who with companions in coast guard uniform, late at night in Bank street, near the Whaling bank building, had looked at him and his companions in such a manner that the police inferred that the sailors "wanted something." That was enough—the police attacked the fellows who dared to ask inquiringly at them. There was no real damage, but no particular harm resulted from it and the sailors went to the station at Fort Trumbull.

Santangelo was not satisfied with the result of a foolish encounter, so they chased an automobile and pursued the coastguardsmen to the vicinity of Bolton street, where they laid in wait for them and then renewed the fight. The sailors said, using something more than figs to carry on the conflict. The sailors made complaint and the police were arrested and promptly in the police court. Santangelo was the gang. He left the city at once and no more was known of him by the police of Bristol, Mass., noticed the New London department that Santangelo was in that city. There he was suspected of being concerned in the disappearance of an auto, and questioning revealed that he came from New London. Sergeant Cavanaugh was given a warrant for Santangelo and that officer had the fugitive here in less than twenty-four hours. Santangelo pleaded guilty of assault when presented in the police court this morning. He was fined $25, which penalty took him to jail. So ended a silly row that was unprovoked and in which the precipitators were all justly punished.

In the Groton town court this morning, two more cases of delinquent taxpayers of the personal tax were tried, the convictions making a total of 13 men and women who have been convicted of failing to pay the tax until they were presented in court. Those presented before Judge Cornelius C. Costello this morning were Henry Pringle and Mrs. Alma Stockford. In the case of the former a nolle was entered upon Pringle paying the tax no costs being imposed. Pringle testified that he had not received an official demand for the payment of the tax from Tax Collector J. Morgan Adams, while the latter testified that he had mailed Pringle a notice demanding payment. Pringle stated that he had moved from his former residence and had never received a notice to pay the tax. He also testified that heretofore he had received an official visit from the personal tax collector for the purpose of making payment. That course had not been followed this year. In the case of Mrs. Stockford she was fined the customary costs of the court, about $8, also paid the tax.

Bernard Goldberg, son of Mrs. Rose Goldberg 55 Bayonet street, and Miss Lillian Reinstein, New York, were married Sunday evening at the residence of the bride's parents. They will make their home in New York. Mr. Goldberg was recently discharged from the United States coast guard this city, where he was a paymaster.

The body of Mrs. John D. Allan, formerly of Groton, whose death occurred at her home in Southington Saturday and for whom funeral services were held this morning at Southington, was brought to Groton this afternoon for burial in Starr cemetery. The committal service was conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church.

Miss Ethel Chapman has returned to her home on Smith street, Groton, having spent several months at Belleair Heights, Fla.

Jeanette N Gibbs has sold to J. N. LaPointe a building lot on Pequot avenue. Mr. LaPointe later transferred the title really to his son, Stanislaw LaPointe.

Anthony Irlandi has transferred his undivided one-half interest in a building lot, corner of Ocean avenue and Squire street to his daughter, Josephine Agnes Irlandi.

The Colonial Filling station, a Boston corporation, which has been in business in this city about a year, discontinued operations today, when the corporation disposed of its business to the Beacon Oil company also a Boston concern. The Colonial filling station purchased a piece of land corner of Huntington and Church streets, formerly the Augustus Williams property, from Frederick W. Mercer about 18 months ago and caused a modern and expensive filling station to be erected upon the site. The concern, it is understood, did not have good business and recently decided to dispose of its holdings here.

James Dygert of Groton: Mrs. Frank Stanton Stonington; Miss Elizabeth Dennis, 10 Methodist street; Peter MacKinnon, United States coast guard destroyer, Fanning; George Belche, 58 Pacific street and Gilbert Berg, Race Rock lighthouse, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today and Sunday.

Louis Sinogra, 43, of 623 Bank street, proprietor of a cobbler establishment, Bank street, died today at Lawrence hospital Monday, where he had been under treatment for four days for pneumonia. He is survived by his wife and three children.

Luke Martin, 74, well known resident and contractor, died this morning at his home 22 Montauk avenue, death ending an illness of about two years as a result of general breaking down. He is survived by his wife and three children, Thomas and Richard Martin, New York, and a daughter, Mrs. James Sheedy of this city. Mr. Martin was a mason and chimney constructor in New London many years and at the latter work he was considered an expert.

George E. Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo B. Nichols, 835 Bank St. and Miss Rachel G. Watrous daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Watrous of Ledyard, were married Sunday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ, by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. They were unattended.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

She was a wistful little clerk with a truck driver for her in a five and ten-cent store "feller," but she became a great motion picture star.

Why, yes, that's what has really happened to many of the greatest stars in the cinema world today. Practically all of them have humble antecedents. Then why not a motion picture of this romantic condition?

Why not, indeed! That is what has been done by Edward Sloman in his production of The Beautiful Cheat, a Universal-Jewel starring Laura La Plante which is at the Broadway theater today.

The cast includes besides the star, Marry Miers, Bertram Grassby, Alexander Carr, Youcca Troubetzkoy, Helen Carr, Robert Anderson, Helen Dunbar, Tom S. Guise, Kate Price and Walter Perry.

Other features include a new comedy and news.

Bread Theater

A society dance on the sixteenth level of a mine!

Such scenes are unusual, even in pictures, and the "shots" of this event for The Girl of Gold, the Regal picture which heads the double feature bill at the Breed tomorrow and Tuesday are highly spectacular.

While miners in their grimy clothing and their hat lamps toil away in sunken chambers, men and women in evening clothing dance merrily to the strains of a jazz orchestra in adjoining parts of the mine.

In the midst of the hilarity the dance is suddenly brought to an end by a mine explosion. This great scene is one of a series of high, exciting episodes in the play.

Florence Vidor is the star and is supported by a sterling cast including Malcolm McGregor, Bessie Eyton, Charles French and many others. John Ince directed.

A photoplay packed with thrills and dramatic situations of great power, is Rocking Moon, a Metropolitan production which is the second feature on the bill. The featured roles are in the hands of Lilyan Tashman, John Bowers, Rockcliffe Fellowes and Laska Winter. The story deals with a young woman who runs a fox farm in Alaska and is harassed by poachers. The love element is strong.

The Fox news completes the bill for tomorrow and Thursday.

Today's bill consists of Elinor Glyn's sensational love story Soul Mates with Aileen Pringle and Edmund Lowe, the Pathe news and a comedy.

Broadway Theatre

One of the big drawing cards of the 1925 Calgary Stampede was a Universal motion picture company of 44 persons which spent the entire week filming scenes for a great epic of the west as a starring vehicle for Hoot Gibson noted cowboy star.

The picture was The Calgary Stampede and will be shown at the Broadway theater beginning Thursday. Half of the action takes place at the stampede but it is a drama replete with thrills which is Gibson's most pretentious effort in his long motion picture career.

All the beauty and splendor of the romantic west has been captured in this thrilling tale of the outdoors. Herbert Blache, director of this, also made House Peters' Headwinds and Secrets of the Night.

Watch for the great Keith vaudeville bill in addition.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Dainty refreshments were served, the color scheme being pink and blue. A social hour was passed, which included an exhibition of the Charleston by Miss Mary Levine. POETRY

Robin Redbreast

The day is bleak, it chilleth me;
The fog blows in from dull gray sea.
I feel no joy, and seems the year,
When, lo! a voice sings sweet and clear
"Be of good cheer,
The spring is here."

I look about. Whence came the sound?
What caused my pulse to give a bound?
The fog still hangs, all seems the same.
But, no! I feel the thrill again,
Though clouds may lower,
I scent the flower."

Out there on topmost bough he swings
And cheerily he sings and sings.
My spirits rise, life seems less drear.
He trills and happiness draws near,
"It must rain first
That buds may burst."

I smile, my heart has felt the glow
Of coming sun. Full well I know
The robin's faith has quickened mine;
And, lo! my heart cannot repine,
"In God's good time Come cherries fine."
—Harriet Morse Litchfield.
River Fog

Softly up the river sweeping
Goes a lady clad in grey,
As along the bottoms creeping
Comes the fog at close of day.

Lady Fog, with long white fingers
Drifts along the river shores,
Gently strokes the grass and lingers
Underneath the sycamores.

Under mountain tops low lying,
Falls her robe in many a fold;
Branches bend above her, sighing,
As she drifts through leaves of gold.

Red and gold and bronze they quiver
While the fog in rolls and waves
Spreads her blanket on the river
As her garment's hem it laves.

Silently she clothes the meadows,
Trails her robes on fallen log,
Sweeps among the twilight shadows,
Dusky Lady of the Fog.
—Ruby Culver Henry in Christian Science Monitor.

RALLY IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Stock prices headed upward today after another selling attack by bear traders had failed to bring out any appreciable volume of long liquidation. The rally, which ran from 1 to 5 points in scores of issues, was held in check by the calling of about $28,000,000 in bank loans which sent the call money rate to five per cent. Trading was relatively light in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,402,200 shares.

Opening prices were firm; due to the execution of a fair-sized accumulation of week end buying orders it generally placed on the theory that the market was entitled to at least a technical rally after the sustained decline last week. What these orders had been disposed of and speculators in the advanced showed little disposition to force a rally, bear traders launched another selling attack, centering on the motor and food shares.

Hudson was driven down from 94 1-2 to 89, a new low for the year, with several stop-loss orders touched off as it went through its previous resistance point. Good buying support was quickly forthcoming, and the stock soon snapped back to between 91 and 92 and later worked up to 93, for a net gain of 1 point on the day.

Ward Baking company B which sold as high as 85 3-8 earlier in the year, dropped from 42 to 37 and then rallied to 39 off 2 1-8 net.

Pan American Petroleum issues also rebounded about 3 points on reports influenced by the decree of the Mexican supreme court, holding that a new petroleum law was not retroactive, and by the decision of the United States supreme court granting a rehearing in the Doheny oil lease case. Union Oil of California was bid up 2 1-4 points to 47 1-2 on reports that the Texas company was seeking the property.

Other oils were mixed. General Asphalt advanced 3 3-4 points to 71 1-2 on buying credited to interests who see interesting possibilities in the company's South American oil concessions. General Petroleum dropped two points to sixty on the traditional "selling on good news" following the confirmation of reports that negotiations were pending for its absorption by the Standard Oil company of New York.

Short covering operations stimulated the advance in such issues as Allied Chemical, American Brown Boveri, Brunswick Packing, Du Pont, General Electric, General Motors, Mack Trucks, May Department Stores, New York Canners, Philadelphia Company, Radio Corporation, Savage Arms and United States Cast Iron all of which closed two to four points higher.

Strong buying support also was in evidence in the rail group. Stocks of the roads operating in southern territory led on short covering. The low-priced issues were heavily bought in anticipation that dividends would be restored on the first preferred when the directors meet on April 7.

Commodity markets were mixed with futures were firm at the opening on renewal of heavy liquidation which caused sharp declines

May wheat dropped nearly 2 1-2 cents a bushel to $1.56 and July wheat was off over 2 cents at $1.55. Cotton, however, opened lower and then rallied, closing at net advances of 11 to 14 points. The raw sugar market was steady, but refined sugar sold down to 4.95 cents a pound, a new low price for the year. Coffee prices rallied 20 to 35 points on short covering.

Calling of bank loans presumably was due to the sharp decrease in excess reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement. Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent. advanced to 4 1-2 and thence to 5. Time money on the other hand was easier, being quoted on a flat 4 1-2 per cent. basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular. French francs breaking below 3.53 cents to a new low level for the year. Demand sterling held steady at $4.84 3-4. Belgian francs were slightly firmer around $4.00 1-3 cents. Norwegian krone rallied 9 points to 21.54 cents and Polish zlotys broke 25 points to 12.50 cents.

TAFTVILLE

The Sacred Heart dramatic club presented their annual play Sunday evening in Parish hall, before a large audience. The play selected this year was a three act comedy by Sheldon Palmer, entitled Lighthouse Nan. In the opinion of all those who attended, the comedy was very well presented, the various parts being well carried, and the play full of interest from the time the curtain rose until it went down at the end of the third act.

Thomas Corcoran was exceptionally well cast as John Enslow, president of the Seacost Banking company, and yachtsman. His cool and efficient handling of this difficult part made him one of the leading characters of the play. As Ned Blake, his private secretary, Victor Fontaine was quite at home on the stage and handled the role in a clever manner.

The part of Ichabod Buzzer, the old keeper of the lighthouse, an old soak, and owner of the mule "January" fell to James Hanlon, whose acting at once made him a favorite with the audience. In fact he produced most of the comedy of the play. With his dilapidated wagon and his frantic efforts to keep January from running off with it, he had the audience gasping for breath most of the time.

James Murphy was excellent as Sir Arthur Choke, a British aristocrat His "high-brow" English and his frequent use of the monocle that goes with it, delightful the audience. Thomas Coleman as Injun Jim, a bad man, was also very good in his role.

Miss Margaret Hasler played the part of Nan, a little roustabout. Miss Hasler needs no introduction to local people who well know the ability of her theatrical ability, as she has played in former productions of the club. Her role gave her plenty of opportunity to demonstrate the time she had spent on the part.

No better choice could have been made for the part of Moll Buzzer, the gentle antelope, than Miss Kathleen Hasler. This was no doubt the most difficult part in the play, calling for the interpretation of an old hag with a sharp tongue and temper. Although always good in amateur productions, it was the opinion of all that Miss Hasler surpassed herself in "Lighthouse Nan."

Miss Agnes Dougherty played the part of Hon. Sarah Chumley Choke, the haughty sister of Sir Arthur to perfection, and Miss Hortense Enlow was acted by Miss Norah Murphy in very good manner.

The music for the evening was by Adams orchestra, and between the acts, Miss Elizabeth Corcoran, soprano, sang several solos accompanied on the piano by Miss Mayme Hasler. There were also solos by Miss Josephine Mastroloptisto of Bristol, accompanied by Mrs. Evelyn Woisard also of Bristol.

The stage appointments were by John Carroll, and the furniture for the third act was loaned by the Plaut-Cadden Co. The ushers were Miss Julia Chappell, Miss Pauline Hasler, Miss Grace Phalen and Miss Helen Breault. The hall was decorated with American and Irish flags. The play was given for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church.

Thomas Sharples of Lynn, Mass., spent the weekend at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sharples of South Second avenue.

Mrs. Fred Ince, superintendent of the home department of the Taftville Congregational church school has issued invitations to a social and entertainment to be held next Friday evening in the vestry of the church.

Hugh H. Osgood Lodge, I. O. O. F. M. U. gave a very enjoyable social and dance at Ponemah hall, Saturday evening. Many guests came from Baltic and surrounding towns.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Kellner and children William and Virginia spent Sunday with relatives in town.

The committee in charge of the charity dance for the benefit of the William W. Backus hospital held a meeting Friday evening at Ponemah hall to discuss general plans.

The Ocowasin Camp Fire group, with the guardian, Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis and the assistant guardian, Mrs. John Vokman, attended the grand council fire which was held at the community house, Norwich on Friday evening. Miss Marjorie McNally received the rank of woodgatherer at this meeting.

SUSTAINS JURY'S VERDICT IN REAL ESTATE COMMISSION SUIT

Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court, in a memorandum of decision filed late Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city denies the defendant's motion to set aside the verdict in the case of John A. Moran vs. the Central Building Co., of this city.

The memorandum of decision is as follows:

Reduced to its tersest terms the charge to the jury in this case warranted a verdict for the plaintiff based either upon a finding of the fulfillment of the contract alleged in the first paragraph of the complaint, in effect a contract giving the plaintiff the exclusive sale of the property, or of the fact, that the plaintiff was the procuring cause of the sale, except that, the plaintiff could recover upon neither ground if he had abandoned the transaction before the sale to Murphy was really consummated.

The defendant's motion, as contended in argument, is rested upon the proposition that the plaintiff's verdict cannot stand because on the evidence, as a matter of law, the jury could not have found either that there was a contract giving the plaintiff the exclusive sale of the property or that the plaintiff was the procuring cause of the sale, and that in any event it must have found that the plaintiff had abandoned the transaction before the sale was made if the defendant's contention is sound as to either of these propositions, the verdict can not stand.

In considering the verdict, it is to be borne in mind that it was general and found all of the issues in favor of the plaintiff. It was tested by no interrogatory. Therefore if the evidence warranted a verdict for the plaintiff either upon the ground of a contract of exclusive right of sale in the plaintiff, or of the plaintiff's being the procuring cause thereof, it must stand unless the jury as a matter of law must have found an abandonment.

The defendant's claim upon the matter of abandonment seems to me entirely without merit in the light of the plaintiff's own uncontradicted testimony that after his talk with Murphy he continued his efforts to arrange to finance the sale, so that Murphy might become the purchaser on the terms by him suggested, and H. H. Gallups testimony that he did not let the plaintiff know of his direct negotiations with Murphy until the contract was closed.

It is my conclusion that there was evidence which warranted the jury in finding for the plaintiff upon both the above grounds expounded in the charge. While there was a flat conflict of testimony as to what the contract between the plaintiff and the defendant was the jury had a right to accept as true the story of the plaintiff which was sufficient in substance to establish the contract of exclusive sale to him which he claimed.

But were this not so, the evidence amply warranted the jury in concluding that the plaintiff was the procuring cause of the sale. Whether the jury accepted as true the testimony of H. H. Gallup that Murphy took the initiative in the direct negotiations with him, indicating that Murphy had not ceased to hold the matter of the purchase under consideration or the testimony of Murphy that Gallup took the initiative which in the light of subsequent circumstances tended to corroborate the plaintiff's claim of bad faith on the defendant's part may not have been of controlling importance. For the evidence was uncontradicted that Murphy did not consider the purchase of the Central Building property as a possibility until the plaintiff spoke to him about buying it, that the plaintiff obtained from him an offer of $65,000 for it, and submitted it to the defendant, which rejected it, that subsequently the defendant sold the property to Murphy direct for the identical amount of the original offer obtained by the plaintiff, though Murphy was to pay the said amount by a somewhat different method from that discussed with the plaintiff.

"If any act of theb roker in pursuance of his authority to find a purchaser is the intiatory step that leads to the sale consummated, the owner must pay the commission." Hoadley vs. Savings Bank of Danbury, 71 Conn. 599.—608.

"The procuring cause of sale is such intervention of the broker for that purpose as constitutes the foundation on which the negotiation is begun." Idem 609. "Whether or not a particular person is the "procuring cause" of a sale is a question of fact for the jury." Idem 608. Where a broker brings a prospective customer procured by him, in touch with the owner, who shortly after sells the property direct to such customer before his relation to such with the broker had been expressly broken off, or such customer not ceased to hold the matter of the purchase under consideration, "the purchaser is still the customer of the broker and he is the procuring cause of the sale." Fisher vs. Hanson, 99 Conn. 704. 707.

The motion to set aside the verdict is denied.

This case was tried in the superior court last month and the jury returned a verdict of $2,068.38 for the plaintiff.

ROARING CHIMNEY FIRE AT CORNING ROAD HOUSE

The fire department was called out three times Monday, twice for chimney fires and once for a supposed fire. The first call came in at 7:14 o'clock Monday morning for a bad chimney fire at the residence of George Anderson, Corning road. The chimney fire had evidently been burning since Sunday and was discovered Monday by neighbors who told the family. When the firemen arrived there was a roaring fire from base to top of the chimney. It was necessary to knock a hole in the chimney in order to get at the blazing soot.

At 3:05 o'clock Monday afternoon the department responded to a call for a bad chimney fire at No. 79 Oakridge street, owned and occupied by Mrs. Delia Shea.

A telephone call was received at 6:05 o'clock Monday evening for a supposed fire at the building, Washington square, owned by Alex Pasnik. The building was filled with smoke. Investigation by the firemen revealed the fact that the occupant of the store had burned a quantity of excelsior in the heater and that a back draft had shot a large quantity of smoke into the cellar, the smoke working its way up through the building.

RABBI TEITELBAUM THRILLS JEWISH RELIEF MASS MEETING

Rabbi Teitelbaum, a man very well versed in international politics, who is secretary of the United Charity organizations in New York and executive chairman of the Zionist Organization of America, is a great authority upon the Jewish question in Europe and Palestine.

Speaking at the Community house at the relief mass meeting on Sunday night, he astonished his listeners by relating the fact that the joint distribution committee furnished a nucleus from which the Hadassah Medical Unit was organized, and that since its organization the joint distribution committee contributed towards its maintenance more than seven and one-half million dollars, which is about half the amount spent by the Hadassah organization in Palestine to this day. Rabbi Teitelbaum in most glowing terms lauded the work performed by the joint distribution committee with the assistance of Mr. Hoover, during and since the great World war. He said that were it not for the body of men in this organization who sacrificed their lives to reach some of the most afflicted zones where no other agencies could or dared to reach, about three million Jewish people living in Europe today would have been dead and forgotten. He also recounted the noble work performed by this organization in alleviating suffering by diseases. In this line of work the joint distribution committee was non-sectarian and humanitarian by saving the lives of hundreds of thousands of Gentile sufferers. The Rabbi related the experience of the joint distribution committee in the matter of transmission of funds in some parts of Europe where no other agency, governmental or civil could reach. It required more than ordinary human endurance and great sacrifices to carry out the work of this bureau. In numberp less instances, places where such money was sent through the joint committee had changed ownership several times; some of them were wiped out by the warring armies and the monies would travel back and forth for several months looking for the owner, who probably was driven many miles away from his place of residence. When the owner was finally located, the amount originally sent, owing to numerous changes of the values of exchange, the money transmitted shrunk to a nominal value. The joint distribution committee made super-human efforts to reach the unfortunates to whom these monies were sent. It cost the organization more than a half million dollars of their own funds to maintain this bureau.

On the colonization plan in Russia, Rabbi Teitelbaum, speaking with authority, said: "If the Jewish nation in Europe is to be saved from annihilation, the only solution is to return them to the soil in Europe and to give them a chance to earn their own living by the sweat of their brow and that the Jews of America are not asked to give charity but to do their duty and help their co-religionists to become self-sustaining land holders so that there will be no more need for drives to furnish bread for these unfortunate people. The listeners were also thrilled as the Rabbi related the extraordinary sacrifices of David A. Brown, the national chairman of the relief committee, is making in the great work of Jewish relief. He lauded Mr. Brown's charitable activity in most eloquent terms and also astonished his audience by recounting intimate facts of the unusually generous sacrifices made by Felix M. Warburg, in order to keep alive the Jewish nation in Europe.

Rabbi Tedesche, of New Haven, who is also very well versed in the necessity of the present relief campaign while speaking about colonization in Russia in relation to colonization in Palestine said that the increased birth rate of the Jewish children in Europe is about two hundred and fifty thousand per year over and above the death rate and that it could not take care of an immigration of two hundred and fifty thousand per year equal to the increased Jewish population in Europe, and therefore it can not be expected to take care of the unfortunates who are starving because of the disarranged economic conditions in Europe caused by the World war. He pointed out that in this emergency the only solution of the Jewish question in Europe is the colonization plan for which a part of the present fifteen million dollars relief fund will be applied. He urged his listeners to plead with their friends to come to the rescue of their co-religionists in this fateful hour.

Matthew Delaney, found a gallon glass jug full of liquid believed to be moonshine, a similar glass jug containing about a pint of the liquid and a large pitcher containing a quantity of the alleged moonshine. The containers and contents were taken to the police station along with Morris. He was held under bonds of $1,000. This is the second time he has been hauled into court on a liquor charge. AUTO LAW VIOLATORS PAY FINES IN CITY COURT

In the city court Monday morning Michael Sutera of New London was fined $5 flat for violation of the motor vehicle law for not having his registration with him and was fined $3 for not having his operator's license with him. He pleaded guilty to both charges. Sutera was arrested after he had been stopped for driving through a one way street the wrong way, when the officer who stopped him discovered that he had neither registration nor license.

Linus S. Sterritt of this city was presented on the technical charge of being a fugitive from justice. The case was continued for one week, James Casey furnishing a bond of $500 for his appearance. The case was continued in order to give Reading, Pa., police authorities time to arrive here and have him extradited on a charge of passing several checks without having sufficient funds in the bank to meet payment on the checks. Two of the alleged bad checks have since been honored.

Ernest Farraguss, 18, this city, was fined $20 and costs on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having a license issued to him. He paid his bill amounting to $30.50. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Six men were in court on intoxication charges. They were all fined, three paying their fines and the other three going to jail.

BANK STREET IMPROVEMENT BRINGS WARM DISCUSSION

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 22.— The city council this evening tackled the matter of improvements to be made in Bank street at a cost of more than $47,000 and it aroused some opposition though not enough to stop its reference to the compensation board for a hearing at which every property owner affected will be invited to appear and state their objections or declare their adherence to the plans which the council has formulated.

The matter came up on the report by the city manager that the damages the property owners would experience would amount to $1,410, while their benefits were estimated at $11,553. It is proposed to cut the sidewalks back, to lay new curbing, and to have two sets of tracks in the street and to resurface the street with cement or asphalt. The expense of cutting back the sidewalks, the repair of the walks and the resetting of the curbing is to be borne by the property owners on a 50-50 basis. Property on both sides of the street is to pay for the improvement. Manager Holt said that the estimated cost was very close to that fixed by the city engineer some years ago. Councilor Kiley was outspoken in his opposition to the election of the cost of the work, saying the property owners were not treated fairly and he quoted statutes to show that the street railway was by law to keep in repair the street for a distance of two feet outside the rails. He did not want the expense of relaying the tracks or of putting in double tracks to be made a burden upon the property owners.

Councilor May explained that his objection was not against the widening of the street but against the laying of double tracks in the street. He said that he did not think that double-tracking would relieve the congestion but that it would place a burden on the taxpayers they should not bear.

Manager Holt explained that the two lines to track would relieve the congestion and that the widening of the street would permit a line of cars to move along with a car parked at the curbing. Replying to the mayor the city manager said that Main street was 52 feet wide while Bank street would be 35 feet in width.

Councilor Streeter declared that the city manager was speaking from the premises wherein the conditions were perfect and said that at Pearl street there was not sufficient width to allow the passage of an auto with a car parked at the curb. He believed that with two tracks the congestion would be worse than at present. He referred to conditions on State street above Union at present and argued that the Bank street situation would be even more congested than that was. He asked that the compensation board, when it held its meetings should assemble in the evening that all who desired to be heard might have the opportunity to appear.

Mayor Fox expressed the opinion that all the talk now was out of place and said that the matter was to go to the compensation board and later to the taxpayers. He asked that the objection should be withheld till the compensation board shall report.

Councilor Streeter declared with some warmth in his words that he proposed to be heard on any subject that came before the council. That he said, was what he was leected to the council for, and he proposed to exercise his privilege.

Councilor May followed Mr. Streeter and spoke in much the same tenor. He said he was elected to the council by the taxpayers and he, too, proposed to stand up for them. He said that taxpayers had talked to him and expressed their opinion and that he was voicing it. Mayor Fox replied: "That is more grand stand stuff." The councilor replied, "Like the utterances of the mayor." The report of the mayor was then ordered received for record.

INGROWN NAIL
Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

OUTBREAK OF INFLUENZA GROWS MORE SERIOUS

Epidemic Conditions Again Threaten Danger To Thousands

Gain Strength to Resist the Germ by Taking Father John's Medicine

Health authorities say that an epidemic of influenza is now threatened in many sections of the country and the need for caution is greater than ever. The disease appears to have really come back and while doctors urge calmness, they admit that the danger is everywhere present and every safeguard should be taken.

Your greatest danger from the germ is when you are tired or run down. In this condition your system is unable to fight off the disease germ and you need a strengthening food tonic such as Father John's Medicine to rebuild your resisting power. The pure food elements of Father John's Medicine make new strength and fighting power.

If you catch cold your danger is even greater because colds quickly develop into grip or pneumonia.

Every home should keep Father John's Medicine on hand during this time of danger because it is the logical, safe remedy for colds. Its soothing elements heal the irritated lining of the breathing passages; its gentle laxative effect drives out impurities and its strengthening elements are of great value. Guaranteed absolutely free from alcohol or any dangerous narcotic drugs in any form, Father John's Medicine may be taken with safety by every member of the family.

The danger from cough or cold "cures" containing morphine or opium in any of its disguised forms is especially great at this time because these narcotics weaken the patient, depress the heart action and open the way for more serious illness.

AMERICAN RESERVATIONS TO WORLD COURT EXPLICIT

President Coolidge Doubts Wisdom of Sending an American Representative to Geneva to Discuss the Scope of American Ratification of the Court—Sees No Reason Why the United States Should Further Explain the Terms Upon Which It has Agreed to Enter the World Court.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—President Coolidge sees no reason why the United States should further explain the terms upon which it has agreed to enter the world court.

He believes the reservations adopted by the senate when it approved American court membership speak for themselves, and that neither the league of nations nor any one else can fail to see their purpose and effect.

Consequently he doubts whether any good purpose can be served by sending an American representative to the meeting called by the league council to discuss the scope of American ratification of the court.

This authoritative outline of the president's attitude, disclosed today at the white house, carried a step further the development of an administration policy whose keynote was sounded recently by the state department. On that occasion the department made no comment on the question of American representation in the Geneva conference, but pointed out that under no conditions could it be supposed that the conference would undertake to modify or interpret the American reservations.

Both the white house and the state department, however, have indicated that a full development of the American attitude toward the conference must be left for the future. The formal invitations to the meeting have not yet been issued. When one is received in Washington, the American government will lay down its policy definitely, and in terms that it hopes will be understood everywhere.

Meantime, officials here will take their time in directing fully what was said and done at the recent meeting of the league council, when Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, suggested that the forty-eight members of the world court ought to meet in Geneva to talk over the American reservations.

Just what the British cabinet official had in mind is not fully clear to Washington. President Coolidge is unable to understand why a conference was considered necessary. In ratifying the court, the senate specified that the other member nations must accept the American reservations by an exchange of diplomatic notes, and the president himself believes that method of acceptance fulfills all the requirements of international practice.

One of the avowed purposes of the reservations was to distinguish sharply between membership in the court and involvement in the league. In any case, the reservations are fixed quantities, and even if the president sent a representative to a conference called by the league, he would have no authority to add or detract from what the senate has done. No one realizes more fully than Mr. Coolidge the difficulties of any effort to reopen the question in the senate.

The president is not ready to speak finally on the subject as a whole however, because he wants first to know all the facts in the case. He realizes that the forty-eight nations holding membership in the court might have some reason for wanting to put their heads together over the reservations, although no such reason suggests itself to him. So he will say nothing in his official capacity until he learns the nature of the invitation addressed to Washington.

The Geneva conference date still is six months away, and during the summer the state department evidently expects to continue so far as possible its direct negotiations for acceptance of the American reservations by individual nations. Cuba already has accepted them and other acceptances are expected to follow.

RHODE ISLAND TAX LEAGUE CRITICISES REVENUE BILL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 23—(AP)—The Rhode Island Tax league, a newly formed organization of the business leaders of Rhode Island, today adopted a platform criticising the revenue bill enacted by the present congress, and calling for reform in the federal policy of state aid.

The league asserted that the federal policy of contributing a dollar for every dollar appropriated by state legislatures for approved improvements and projects within the state's domain encourages extravagance in the expenditure of public funds.

It contended that the tax rebate clauses of the revenue bill in many instances amounted to coercion of the state legislatures, compelling states to create tax rates needlessly in order to share in federal rebates. The league claimed that the lure of "state aid" was used to induce states to submit to federal supervision and control of purely state activities, thereby destroying the state's sovereignty.

The repeal of the federal inheritance tax was urged, the league contending that this was a coercive measure to compel uniform inheritance taxes among the states.

It condemned the federal corporation tax as being too high, and of unsound policy.

"Grade aid," was particularly condemned as subversive of good state government, and as saddling the states with unjust and unequal tax burdens.

PROVIDENCE HAS CLAIM ON MILLVILLE P. O. ROBBERS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 23—(AP)—Police officers left here this afternoon for Worcester to serve warrants charging larceny of an automobile on the three men held at Worcester for attempting to rob the Millville, Mass., postoffice yesterday. It is charged that the trio, Thomas W. Burns, Frank D. Fagan and Edward Tracy, all of Providence, stole from this city the car in which they went to the postoffice.

In the meantime the police are endeavoring to link the prisoners with the $260,000 stamp robbery at the Pawtucket postoffice several weeks ago, and desire to bring them back here in event they are released on bail in Massachusetts.

DECIDE COL. WILLIAMS MUST FACE COURTMARTIAL

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—A court martial will pass on the case of Colonel Alexander Williams, of the marines, charged with drunkenness by Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler.

Secretary Wilbur today authorized the proceedings on the basis of a report forwarded here by General Butler, now commanding the Marine Base at San Diego, where Colonel Williams has been stationed. The personnel of the court will be selected later. The trial will be held at San Diego.

The case arose out of incidents which occurred in a San Diego hotel after a dinner given by Colonel Williams at his home in honor of General Butler, who had succeeded him there. The filing of the charges was about the first official act of General Butler after he retired from a strenuous prohibition enforcement campaign as Philadelphia police chief.

None of the specifications recited by General Butler in his charges has been made public. His report, recommending that Colonel Williams be brought before a court martial, passed through the usual channels to the secretary's desk and there has been nothing to indicate that any of the three senior officers of the Navy and Marine corps who have had occasion to review it did more than attach their signatures.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The tariff commission investigation was begun by a senate committee.

The house passed a senate bill authorizing states to tax national banks under certain conditions.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—A military guard of honor for the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington cemetery was ordered today by Secretary Davis of the war department, and will take its station there within a week.

Lawrence Lowell of Harvard.

Mr. Beveridge, as chairman of the endowment committee, has issued a public statement in which he asserts that the raising of a million-dollar fund for American history is a patriotic duty.

PRIMARIES TO BE HELD IN PENNSYLVANIA TODAY

HARRISBRG, Pa., March 23.—(AP)—Pennsylvania democrats tonight found themselves faced, like their republican opponents, with the prospect of a primary fight for the party nominations for United States senator and governor.

William S. Wilson, of Tioga county, former member of congress and secretary of labor in the cabinet of President Wilson, today entered the senatorial race after a conference here of leading democrats, including Vance C. McCormick, former national chairman. At the same time former Judge William E. Porter, of Newcastle, announced himself as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination with the backing of the same group.

The senatorial contest in the democratic ranks remained somewhat uncertain tonight, however. Sedgwick Kistler, of Lock Haven, was expected to oppose Mr. Wilson with the backing of the party forces supporting the candidacy of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell who is already in the field for the nomination for governor. Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Monroe county, is also a gubernatorial candidate, but his name has not been linked with that of any senatorial aspirant thus far.

The Wilson-Porter ticket is expected to camaign on a "dry" platform but no state wants were issued today outlining plans.

COMMONS SUPPORTS SIR AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON, March 23—(AP)—Aided by strong support from Premier Baldwin, who taunted the opposition leaders with having come in deep mourning to attend the league of nations funeral, but found the league very well and in charge of a skillful doctor, Sir Austen Chamberlain, in the house of commons tonight came victoriously out of a strong attack on his Geneva policy, led by former Premier Lolyd George. The foreign minister was sustained by a majority of 189.

In order to inaugurate debate on the recent league of nations proceedings at Geneva and Sir Austen's part therein, Mr. Lloyd George moved a reduction in the foreign office estimates, equivalent to a motion of censure. At the end of the lengthy debate this motion was defeated 325 to 136.

Imbidentally, the prime minister put the quietus on any idea of Sir Austen Chamberlain's removal from the foreign office which may have become current, by taking it for granted that Sir Austen would continue to bring to fruition the work he began at Locarno.

BUCCANEERS' CLUB FORMED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)—The Buccaneers club, with a "seagoing clubhouse" the five-masted barkentine Buccaneer, is New York's latest in clubs. The club, organized here with Vincent Richards, national tennis champion, as president, will use its clubhouse on cruise, in dock or at anchor nine months of the year in New York water and will sail to Florida for the winter seasons. The atmosphere of the days of piracy will be preserved aboard the ship.

One of the purposes of the new club is to "initiate, foster and participate in a renaissance of the arts of building and sailing square rigged ships," and to recall and perpetrate memories of the United States clipper ships formerly supreme upon the seven seas."

Honorary members of the club which William B. Vanderbilt is a member, include William Beebe, explorer; Captain George Fried of the President Roosevelt, Captain Robert Bartlett, Artic explorer and Frederick O'Brien, author-traveler.

CRITICISED APPOINTMENTS TO TARIFF COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—Unfortunate appointments have been made to the tariff commission by the Harding and Coolidge administrations, Professor F. W. Taussig, the commission's first chairman, said today at the opening of the senate's investigation into administration of the tariff law.

He criticised President Coolidge for withholding from the public the report of the commission's sugar investigation, and advocated a policy of permitting the commission to report direct to congress.

Professor Taussig, now a Harvard professor, served on the commission from 1917 to 1919 as an appointee of President Wilson. At first he was a reluctant witness and frequently asked to be excused from answering. He cut loose, however, when Senator La Follette of Wisconsin produced extracts of a speech the professor had made in New York.

American Was Stoned To Death In Mexico

American Embassy at Mexico City Notified By Vice Consul Ives at Mazatlan.

MEXICO CITY, March 23.—(AP)—Four Americans on the west coast have been attacked recently by Mexicans, and the American embassy has requested the Mexican government to punish the guilty persons. Two of the Americans were killed and one wounded. The ranch of the fourth was raided by a band of outlaws, who fired many shots.

The latest victim of the atrocities was Joe Hall an American employed by the Mexican National Railways, who, according to notification made to the American embassy by J. Winsor Ives vice consul at Mazatlan, was "brutally stoned to death."

Hall was killed near the town of Ixtlan, not far from Mazatlan, yesterday, and it was close to this place that Rex McIlpene was murdered and E. H. Heindenknap seriously wounded by bandits on March 14 last.

The ranch of J. M. Feeley at Acamparo, state of Guanajuato, was raided Sunday night by 25 armed men. Feeley notified the Mexican authorities and asked for protection from the American embassy.

The Mexican government has instituted an investigation of the outrages, and the embassy is awaiting detailed information. All the embassy notes to the foreign office in these cases have been couched in the usual diplomatic phraseology with a request for the apprehension and punishment of those guilty. As yet no reply has been received from the Mexican foreign office.

GEN. EDWARD'S TRIBUTE TO MAJ. M. G. BULKELEY

HARTFORD, March 23.—(AP)—Major General Clarence R. Edwards, commanding the 26th Division overseas, today paid tribute to the services of Major Morgan G. Bulkeley, commander of the 101st Maine Gun battalion. Major Bulkeley, who was vice president and treasurer of the Aetna Life Insurance company, died yesterday after a long illness.

General Edwards' tribute to Major Bulkeley, follows:

"Your announcement of death of Major Morgan G. Bulkeley, the commander of the famous Yankee division machine gun battalion comes as a great shock to me. I intended to visit him at the hospital tomorrow. It was to him in a critical time towards the end of the battle of Chateau Thierry that I wrote in the field on my knee on an old envelope, that the Germans were in retreat, that the French cavalry was ahead of us, that he should consider his battalion in canvas covered trucks independent cavalry, rush through the infantry, catch the enemy, hold them until the infantry catches up to you. He literally did that thing, stopped only when his canvas covers were perforated by German bullets, dismounted with their machine guns on their shoulders, formed, under fire, a crescent and held the enemy and were the great factor in the capture of our third objective. Again in the famous night march September 12-13, when your Connecticut regiment marched down the Grand Tranchee Calaone, rods and took Vigneulle at 2 a. m., thus closing the whole St. Mihiel salient. Major Bulkeley's battalion shouldered their machine guns, marched all night 28 kilometers with 102nd Infantry. In the last great offensive, the Argonne, he and his battalion were 25 days in Death Valley. You know his citation on that occasion. Many other times I cited him and his battalion. My father and his father were life-long personal friends. This made me take special though critical interest in his son I gave him and his battalion desperate jobs. They always made more than good. He is part of my proof that the blood of New England had not attenuated. His going west is my personal loss. My sympathy to his family and comrdaes.

"C. R. EDWARDS."

Leading radicals declared that th government had committed "heri-kari" in going back to the principle of indirect taxation for more than half the sum required to balance the budget.

Woodlock Certain Of Confirmation

White House Outlines Future Policy in Selecting Members of the I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—A white house pronouncement today outlining the future policy in selecting members of the interstat commerce commission madep racically certain senate confirmation of Thomas F. Woodlock, of New York, whose nomination has been under fire for more than a year.

The white house statement was that hereafter the south, southwest and Pennsylvania would be given recognition. It was issued only a few hours before the senate took up the adverse report of the interestate commerce on Mr. Woodlock and it is known to have swung several votes.

The senate debated the nomination for more than two hours without getting to a vote. After the session ended, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, announced that in view of the white house pronouncement, he would support Mr. Woodlock, who is holding office under a recess appointment given him last year after the senate had failed to act on his nomination.

"The white house announcement is a complete recognition of the principle for which we have been fighting," Senator Reed said. "I have not opposed Mr. Woodlock for any reason except the non-recognition of Pennsylvania and her industries. Having won the point, I am glad to stand with the administration in the vote on Mr. Woodlock."

The first tests of strength between the administration and anti-administration forces on the nomination came almost immediately after the executive session began, with the senate voting 43 to 30 against debating the question in public.

For two and a half hours the senate then wrangled, largely over the question whether Mr. Woodlock is a democrat or a republican. That question bulked large in heir rings before the senate committee. Mr. Woodlock, who was appointed as a democrat, conceding that he had voted the republican presidential ticket for a number of years.

Consideration of the nomination will be resumed later in the week, and Chairman Watson of the interstate commerce committee, in charge of the nomination, said he would press for action before the week is out.

ALCOHOL WASHED ASHORE; RUM BOAT IS MISSING

BOSTON, March 23—(AP)—Contraband liquor was the center of two mysteries today, and in each case this rum boat was missing. Citizens of Manchester with a taste for something stronger than water stampeded for the beach when it was learned that several hundred cases of alcohol had been washed ashore. The police believed the liquor was part of a smuggled cargo, and they had been on the watch since last night to catch the smugglers. Their suspicions were borne out when they found 26 cases of alcohol hidden among the rocks of West Manchester beach.

The other mystery was nearer Boston. The Revere police were hunting for a power boat which disappeared last night after they had unburdened it of its cargo of 1,000 gallons of alcohol. When they returned after taking the liquor to the station house the boat had gone.

Gilson, will go to Washington next week to attend a hearing before the committee on foreign affairs which has the resolution offered in the house of representatives last week by Congressman Tilson, of Connecticut, and in the senate by Senator Swanson, of Virginia.

This resolution would permit the First and Second companies, Governors Foot Guards and the Putnam Phalanx, of Connecticut and the Light Infantry Blues of Richmond, Va., to go to Europe this coming summer for visits to England, France and Belgium.

Congressmen Schuyler Merritt and E. Hart Fenn, of Connecticut and Senator Hiram Bingham, of this state together with Congressman Henry St. George Tucker and others of the Virginia delegation are also favoring the resolution before the joint committee.

FIVE ADDITIONAL ARRESTS OF STRIKERS IN PASSAIC

PASSAIC, N. J., March 23—(AP)—Five striking textile operatives were arrested late today as a result of a clash between 12 non-striking hands from the Gera mill and ten strikers. The fight occurred about one block from the entrance to the plant. The strikers received minor injuries.

FLOODS ARE MENACING NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, March 23—(AP)—Murmurings of dangers from impending floods in New England were becoming louder as rain began to fall on the great snow blanket that covers this region. For days under slow thawing weather the rivers have remained quiet. But the big basins, reservoirs and dams in the northern sections of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, are filled, and warm weather and heavy rain, it is predicted, would bring flood conditions. Danger may be largely averted, however, if the rains are light and the thawing of the snow gradual.

For days the coast guard cutter Ossipee has been crashing through the ice at the mouth of the Penobscot river below Bangor, Me., in an effort to clear a channel for anchor ice before the river begins to rise. The cutter had cut a channel six miles long today when it was discovered she had sprung a leak on the increasingly thick ice. It was said that the vessel might be forced to return to Boston without driving through the two and one half additional miles the authorities had hoped to open.

Three days of warm weather have placed roads in northern Vermont under water, according to word received from St. Albans today.

At Nashua, N. H., where a new bridge is under construction over the Nashua river a flood warning was received today from the weather bureau at Concorn. The river had risen six inches in 24 hours.

Paper company dams and reservoirs in the Penobscot and St. Croix valleys were filled to capacity. In the Androscoggin valley in Maine, and running back into New Hampshire there were more than 3 feet of snow on the ground. Apprehension has been felt along the Kennebec because of the depth of the snow at the headquarters in the upper Kennebec and Dead river regions. At Moosehead the snow is about four feet deep. With thick ice on the Kennebec and its tributaries, it was feared that the break-up would bring serious jams.

Ice in the Connecticut river was breaking up in the vicinity of Northampton and the water had risen a foot since last night, but there was no sign of an ice jam. The upper stretches of the Connecticut valley were heavily covered with snow, however, and the authorities were watchful. In southern New Hampshire and eastern Massachusetts the Merrimack was quiet. No flood conditions were reported from Rhode Island or Connecticut.

VETERAN RIVERMEN PREDICT RECORD FLOOD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 23—(AP)—A record flood in the Connecticut valley, already started and due to reach its climax within the next few days is forecast by veteran rivermen and power engineers here. Unusually heavy late snows in Vermont and New Hampshire beginning to thaw just as the ice in Massachusetts is breaking, will bring the height of water to an unprecedented mark, observers say.

DIRE RESULTS FROM DRY LAW FORECAST IN SENATE

Senator Bruce Predicts That With a Few More Years of Prohibition "Half of the People of the United States Will Be in Jail and the Other Half Drunk"—Senator Edge Calls For a "Full and Comprehensive Investigation"—Declares That Twelve Days Would Do Little More Than Scratch the Surface of Existing Conditions.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP)—New prohibition flareups developed today in and out of congress.

"A full complete and comprehensive" investigation of prohibition in all its phases was proposed by Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, who asserted that the 12 days the senate judiciary committee has given to wet and dry hearings could do little more than scratch the surface of existing conditions.

In another of his daily speeches in the senate, Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, predicted that within a few more years of prohibition "half the people of the United States will be in the penitentiary and the other half drunk, with nobody to look after the commonwealth."

What may prove new leads in the effort to dry up the flow of illegal alcohol were furnished to Secretary Mellon by Governor Pinchot or Pennsylvania, in the form of the names of scores of persons whom the governor charges are illegally withdrawing alcohol in Philadelphia. The secretary turned the letter over to Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition, who passed it along to John A. Foster, chief of the alcohol flying squadron recently created in the prohibition unit.

In the few minutes Senator Bruce occupied the senate floor he spoke plainly. Adverting to memorials in favor of prohibition, he said Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, wanted prohibition for his employes but had "a well stocked wine cellar himself."

The senator added that he hoped Thomas Edison, who also signed a dry memorial, "isn't as good a judge of Jersey lightning as he is of all other forms of electricity."

Senator Edwards' proposal, in the form of a resolution on which he will seek senate and house action, proposed an inquiry by a joint congressional committee appointed by Vice President Dawes and Speaker Longworth.

The New Jersey senator doesn't want any time limit on the investigation; he wants the committee to go into every possible angle of the whole prohibition question, including the operations of federal enforcement agencies and the effect on the morals, liberty and respect for law and order of the people of the United States under the 18th amendment and the Volstead act."

There are just one short of a dozen "whereases" in the resolution, alleging "fraudulent, criminal and unjust practices" by federal officials in the administration of the prohibition laws as well as admissions by officials of the treasury and justice departments that the Volstead act in its present form cannot be satisfactorily enforced.

REICHSTAG SUSTAINS THE POLICY OF LOCARNO

BERLIN, March 23—(AP)—The intention of the Luther-Stresemann government to follow a foreign policy on the lines laid down at Locarno and to enter the league of nations in September received warm support from the majority in the Reichstag this afternoon, when a motion of the government parties approving the government's course at Geneva, was adopted on a show of hands by a substantial vote. Only the German National party and the extreme nationalists and communists opposed it.

Other motions by the opposition parties of no-confidence in Chancellor Luther and the foreign minister and of no-confidence in the government as a whole were rejected, as was also a motion demanding the withdrawal of Germany's application for entry into the league of nations.

There was very little excitement in the house as the outcome of the voting was a foregone conclusion, and the maide nspeech of Admiral von Tirpitz, former minister of marine, demanded abandonment of the policy of Locarno and the league of nations, fell on deaf ears and was greeted with jeers by the parties of the left.

The prompt reply of Chancellor Luther to the admiral's allegations satisfied the majority that the path which the government was following was right, and indeed the only one possible for Germany.

HANGED FOR SLAYING WIFE AND DAUGHTERS

LIVERPOOL, England, March 23—(AP)—An execution took place here today the like of which is unknown in British crime chronicles. A naturalized Chinese, Lock-ah-Tam, went to the gallows for the killing of his wife and two beautiful daughters, and it seemed as if the mourning for his fate was as great as that for those he had killed.

Lock-ah-Tam was known as "the beloved murderer," and the reason for the crime of which he was convicted remains a mystery, for he had surrounded his family with every luxury and showered every token of affection upon them.

A few minutes before his execution, he received Christian consolation from the Church of England chaplain of the prison, then walked steadily to the scaffold, his features betraying not the slightest emotion. He faced the noose with the same oriental stoicism he had displayed throughout his trial and imprisonment.

Liverpool friends described him as the greatest Chinese who ever lived in Great Britain, and the kindest hearted Chinese in the world. Flags were half-masted in Liverpool's Chinatown from the hour of the execution and across the river at Birkenhead, where he had built a home for his family.

CONFERENCE ON STREET AND HIGHWAY SAFETY

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The principles of proposed uniform nation-wide traffic-control program, submitted today to the second annual national conference on street and highway safety by a committee which has spent a year on the task, found ready support among the thousand delegates, including representatives of 43 governors.

Secretary Hoover in commending the report, invited attention to the indications that in states having modern vehicle codes, accidents hazards are 25 to 30 per cent below those without them. Mr. Hoover urged drastic penalties for deliberate law violators and enforcement of the law by the police and properly organized traffic courts, as a major solution of "the present high accident rate on our city streets and rural highways."

The reports of various committees read today will be turned over to a unified program of recommendations.

CHANCES FOR AGRICULTURAL LEGISLATION GROWING SLIM

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—With congress nearing adjournment and chances for agricultural legislation growing slimmer each day, several members of the house agricultural committee are seeking a way to bring to a close the long hearings on the subject so that their plans may be formulated to place before the house.

Interrogation of F. W. Murphy of the American council of agriculture was completed today after he had spent five days under cross examination.

CRIMINAL IN HIDING WROTE FALSEHOODS TO JUDGE

BRIDGEPORT, March 23—(AP)—While Charles Frost was on trial before a jury last December, charged with instigating the burning of his Bethel plant Sam Weisenger, known as Harry Cohen, and now one of the key witnesses for the state against Frost, was in hiding in Boston and writing letters to Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, trial judge, state's attorney William H. Comley and attorney Homer S. Cummings. It was revealed for the first time this afternoon before Judge John W. Banks in criminal superior court.

Cohen, while the trial was going on, wrote to the highest officials concerned in it that Frost was an innocent man; declared that "the union" hired the incendiaries, Frost knowing nothing about it while the actual guilty were laughingly walking the streets free; and he showed hatred of Abraham "Whitey" Friedman, Frost's chief accuser, and called him a liar and less mild terms of reproach and contempt.

He dickered with judge and counsel for the defense and state for "a light sentence" in return for which he would surrender himself, he wrote, and tell the true facts.

Suggestion was made by him that his letters be put in evidence and read to the jury and he begged that Friedman "not be allowed to ruin Frost's life as he did mine."

Cohen asked Judge Dickenson, the state's attorney and counsel for Frost, when he wanted to act as his own attorney, to communicate with him through items inserted in the "personal columns of New York, Boston and Chicago newspapers."

In addition to the letters, Cohen signed a statement, written in his own hand, in which he purported to tell the true story of the arson plot, wholly vindicating Frost.

On the witness stand today, Cohen asserted every statement he made in each of the letters protesting Frost's innocence, was a deliberately concocted lie and he knew the statements were false when he wrote them.

COUNSEL VISITS CHAPMAN IN THE DEATH CHAMBER

HARTFORD, March 23.—(AP)—During a short visit at the state prison this afternoon Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, and Joseph M. Freedman, of this city, counsel for Gerald Chapman, went over with him new evidence being collected to substantiate their appearance in court in a new move to save the convicted murderer from hanging.

Contending that he is innocent of killing Policeman James Skelly in New Britain in 1924 only as a last resort will Chapman allow his attorneys to go before the board of pardons and ask for mercy, Freedman said after the talk with the bandit in the latter's cell. To appear before the board would be an admission of guilt, Chapman holds.

Before returning to Freedman's office here where many of the details in the legal battle to remove Chapman from the shadow of the gallows have been worked out the two lawyers visited the death chamber. The Hartford attorney said that it was the first time that he had seen the gallows on which there now hangs a canvas dummy. Chapman who has been three times reprieved by Governor Trumbull, is due to hang on April 6.

NEGRO WAS ROUGHLY HANDLED IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, March 23—(AP)—A negro whom police believe is mentally unbalanced, was roughly handled by a crowd at East Main and Maple streets about 7 o'clock tonight, shortly after he grabbed a little girl of six or seven years of age and tore her muffler from her neck. A police officer nearby hearing cries of "lynch him," ran to the scene of the commotion and to the rescue of the negro who was hustled off to the second precinct station, where he was booked by Lieutenant George E. Fox on a charge of breach of the peace.

When brought to the station by Patrolman Frank J. Barts, the man was badly frightened and bore mute evidence of the manhandling that he received at the hands of the infuriated mob of nearly fifty persons who appeared intent on dealing out severe punishment to the negro, who gave his name as Andrew Albus, of no address and about 30 years of age.

WRECK OF FREIGHT TIES UP RAILROAD LINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 23—Traffic over the north-bound line of the Central Vermont from Willimantic was tied over 12 hours as the result of the derailment of seven of a train of 37 cars being hauled over the road at two o'clock this morning, near Perkins' Corner, three miles from here. The cause of the wreck was given as the dropping of a brake beam onto the ties. The seven derailed cars were about in the middle of the train and they blocked the tracks in the cut near the overhead bridge near the Perkins' Corner until late today. The wrecking train and crew from Brattleboro, Vt., arrived about 11 o'clock in the forenoon and the men worked for several hours in the rain clearing off the wreckage. Through traffic was held up, the two passenger trains of the day, north and south bound, transferring passengers. The electric coach took the north bound passengers and the steam train accommodated those south bound.

COAL HEAVERS SHOVEL WAY INTO THE LEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 23—In the attendance contest of the local Rotary club, the Coal Heavers, captained by Raymond A. Parker, stepped into the front seat at the meeting held Tuesday noon in the Y. M. C. A., for the first time since the contest started. The reading of the roll call for the meeting showed that they had broken the ice and at least temporarily stood one point ahead of Captain Charles B. Pomeroy's Haymakers. It is likely, however that Haymaker absentees will make up the attendance sometime during the week, causing a change in positions.

The contest comes to a close next Tuesday. The meeting was in charge of President-Elect James P. Bath in the absence of President John F. Ahern who is slightly ill at his home. The club appointed as delegates to the spring conference to be held in Bridgeport, April 15 and 16, President John Ahern and President-Elect James P. Bath, who will choose their own alternates.

A. Linn Weatherhead, as president of the chamber of commerce called on the members to give their individual support to that organization in its effort to increase its sustaining membership. The Rotarians pledged their assistance by unanimous vote.

Edwin J. Donnelly, a member of the Exchange club, addressed the meeting on behalf of the disposition of six per cent. first mortgage bonds for the new Nathan Hale hotel, pointing out that the hotel was a strictly community affair, built by the people of the city and created as a center for public activities. He characterized the bonds as being a safe and conservative investment in addition to offering an opportunity for rendering a real public-spirited service.

Harry W. Standish, chairman of the Rotary education committee, was in charge of the program which he conducted in the form of an informal class. The feature of the program was a humorous life review by Harry A. Blanchette. Following this Chairman Standish in the role of a "school marm" called for answers to various questions relative to Rotary. Among the "pupils" who gave intelligent and interesting replies were: Dr. R. Bullock Jones, William A. Dawson, Herbert W. Huber, C. Harry Branch, Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, James P. Bath and Secretary Gerard E. Lolecli.

John T. Quinlan was pianist for the day, with Dr. Jones as song leader. The session adjourned at 1.30 o'clock.

Morris Spector, local junk dealer, was to have appeared in police court here Tuesday morning to show cause why he had not complied with an order of the Connecticut Humane society relative to placing his children in homes agreed upon. Spector was not present, and when it was learned that he had not been notified through the proper channels it was arranged to give him a hearing next Thursday morning. Some time ago the Humane society received complaints concerning the Spector children. Mrs. Spector left her husband some time ago and took their three children with her. The society was notified that the children were not receiving proper care and that their surroundings were very dangerous from a moral standpoint. Spector was brought before the authorities and George W. Williams of Hartford, an agent for the society. Agent Williams arranged for two of the children to be placed with a family in Mansfield and the other at a Hebrew children's home. Spector returned to his wife in Norwich some time ago but the children are still in need of proper attention.

Salim Haddad, charged with allowing four minors, under the age of 17 to loiter in his pool room at 33 Union street, not being accompanied by their parents or guardians as required by law, was found guilty in police court Tuesday morning and fined $5 and costs, amounting to $15.15. He paid the assessment. County Detective William P. Jackson testified that he and Lieutenant of Police Frank McLean made the arrest shortly before 9 o'clock Saturday night. Judge Fox cautioned Haddad that another conviction would mean a more severe penalty and the loss of his pool license.

A continuance until Tuesday, March 30 was ordered in the cases of Ernest Bernard, charged with keeping a gambling house and 13 local men charged with gambling, at the session of police court Tuesday morning. The bonds in the cases were likewise ordered continued.

Antonio Fonseca of Hartford, was charged with violation of the city traffic ordinance in police court Tuesday morning. He pleaded guilty. He was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13.15 which he paid. Fonseca was arrested when he drove his car on the wrong side of a traffic signal on Main street Monday night and was detected doing so by Officer Grant Bembria.

At the late home, 284 Valley street, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock conducted a prayer service for Mrs. Bertha C. Morrison at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. The remains were placed on the 1.10 o'clock train and taken to Brockton, Mass., for burial. Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

As the time approaches for the annual Easter Monday concert and ball to be staged by San Jose council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus and the committee reports that arrangements are progressing most favorably, the indications of an unprecedented success become more imminent. The committee met this week under Chairman Thomas O'Brien and listened to enthusiastic reports. Several boxes have already been engaged.

WILLIMANTIC IS ABLE TO PADDLE ITS OWN CANOE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 23—An expected reaction has come of a story printed in The Norwich Bulletin recently relative to the daylight-saving time for 1926. The story, told from a one-sided angle, had the desired results and otherwise uninterested people began to form opinions on the matter. While some comments were favorable, some were decidedly of an adverse nature, one coming from a Norwich resident to local party being exceptionally so. However, it is felt by all concerned that whatever action Willimantic takes on the day light proposition is Willimantic for fune or misfortune as the case may be and it is likely that the question will be settled here on a basis made up strictly of local opinion. The last mentioned reply was interesting, however, according to some local people, inasmuch as it led into a lengthy treatise on the lack of "governmental brains," the writer being apparently willing to contribute surplus intelligence for the welfare of the nation.

DANIELSON

H. E. BACK ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION FOR WARDEN

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 24—Attorney Harry E. Back reluctantly accepted the nomination for warden of the borough of Danielson at the annual caucus held in the town hall this evening. Less than a score of electors sufficiently interested themselves to attend the meeting. Attorney Back, who has previously served as warden, accepted the nomination as a civic duty after Warden Walter Anderson and others who were proposed declined the nomination. The nominees for the board of burgesses are the same as those now serving and made such a splendid record the past year. They are D. E. Jette, Richard D. Bannigan, Gaston A. Maindon, Lewis E. Young, Pierre Boulaine, Charles D. Austin; tax collector, Sidney H. Perry; bailiff, John McFarland; assessors, Thomas Bradford, William Young, Joseph Lavallee; library directors, William Parker, Harry E. [illegible].

Friends here received notice Tuesday morning of the death at Melrose, Mass., of Mrs. Madge Sherman, 54, widow of William Sherman, and for many years a resident of this town. Mrs. Sherman has been ill a long time. She was for years resident at Elmville and in the Mashentuck section, where Mr. Sherman owned and conducted a farm. Mrs. Sherman has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Grace Caswell. The body is to be brought here the latter part of the week for burial.

There is an unofficial but enthusiastic member of Danielson's fire department. His name is Buddy, and he's just a dog, but an alarm for fire brings him at top sped from wherever he happens to bew hen the siren starts to blow. It is not unusual for him to be about the first at the central fire station on Academy street, his home being adjacent, and he baits there quivering with excitement and interest as the apparatus gets going and speeds away. Strangely, he never attempts to follow. Strange, too, is the fact that he shows no interest in test calls or recalls sounded on the fire alarm. Let a box number start to come in, however, and he goes like a streak of light for the station. He has lived near the fire station since his puppy days and always has exhibited unusual interest in activities thereabouts. The dog is owned by Miss Katherine D. Aylward.

BROOKLYN GRANGE OBSERVES 40TH BIRTHDAY

DANIELSON, March 23—Brooklyn grange, No. 43, third oldest in Windham county, observed its 40th anniversary at Grange hall in Brooklyn Tuesday evening. It was an event of outstanding importance in the history of the organization and there came to celebrate it not only members of Brooklyn grange, but also members of Little River grange of Hampton and Benevolent grange of Woodstock, two subordinate organizations of the grange within Windham county that ante-date Brooklyn grange as to date of organization.

Brooklyn grange was organized March 25, 1886. It had 30 charter members. Of these eleven are still living. Vine R. Franklin, now a resident of Danielson was the first master. The officers at that first organization meeting were installed by State Master J. H. Hale of Glastonbury, assisted by George Austin Bowen of Woodstock and George M. Holt of Hampton.

Only those who know what it is to have been associated with an organization through 40 years of life can fully appreciate how joyous was the occasion of the charter members who assembled with the many others who were at Brooklyn Tuesday evening to observe the anniversary date. Others might experience something of the joy of the occasion, enthusiastic members though they be, but there was something special in the way of reminiscence and what might be regarded as spiritual retrospection for those who remain of that hopeful thirty who gave an organization to Brooklyn that through all the years has meant so much to the community.

The living charter members are Mr. and Mrs. Vine R. Franklin, N. G. Williams, Samuel C. Harris, Alice Litchfield, Cora Chapman, Charles S. Hyde, John Brown, Mrs. Amos Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen. Of this list three were numbered among the original officers of Brooklyn grange, Vine R. Franklin was the first master, Mrs. Franklin the first Pomona, Charles S. Hyde the first assistant steward. All of these hold their interest in the organization they gave to Brooklyn.

There was a supper at the 40th anniversary observance attesting the unfailing bounty of Brooklyn grange when it entertains. Escalloped oysters headed the list of good things with which they rangers regaled themselves. Historical papers reviewing the grange history and containing interesting information pertaining to its members were presented and followed with exceptionally close attention. The Bulletin has arranged to reproduce the history of this grange, which has afforded a remarkable opportunity for the promotion of community interest, agricultural pursuit and good fellowship for two score years.

Maple sugar operations are more extensive in territory hereabouts than a person who has paid no attention to the matter might imagine. A great many trees have been tapped and the sap boiled for either syrup or sugar.

Now, seriously, would you set a lighted kerosene lamp on a table on a night when you were expecting an earthquake and go to bed, chancing that the quake would rock the house, topple over the lamp and set the place afire? It appears that's the way weather and earthquake prophets do it.

MANY INTERESTING CASES DURING MARCH SESSION

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 24.—Members of the Windham county bar and other court officials join in the opinion that the March term has produced more cases of unusual interest than any similar period in the history of the court.

At the short calendar session yesterday the suit of Dorilda Thibeault against Joseph Thibeault was called for trial.

The plaintiff was married to the defendant on February 10, 1896. They separated in 1916. In October 1925, Joseph Thibeault obtained a divorce from her in the Windham county court charging desertion. Two years later he married again, a child was born to them and they are now living in Hartford.

The first wife claims that the divorce decree was obtained through fraud and misrepresentation, and this action is brought to have judgment annulled.

The plaintiff is probably between 55 and 60 years of age. The defendant's years number as many but he looks much younger.

Service was by an order of notice published in the Danielson Transcript but the attorney for the plaintiff insists that the defendant and his son who is married and lives in Goodyear, knew where she had lived a few months before the action was begun and that no effort was made to locate her.

In the examination of Napoleon Thibeault, son of the defendant, the admission was obtained that in the divorce trial he testified that in recent years he had seen his mother but once and that was in Goodyear, although he had seen her but a few months previously at Greenfield, N. H., where she had lived for several years. To other questions of a vital nature he made the reply, "I don't remember."

The hearing was conducted late in the afternoon, judgment being reserved.

Judge Edwin C. Dickenson is on the bench. Prior to the trial of this action he heard three divorce suits and granted decrees in two of them. The third was continued until more evidence by the plaintiff can be offered

Mrs. Lena Whitehouse was given a divorce from Frederick O. Whitehouse and the custody of their two children.

The plaintiff testified that the marriage took place in Mansfield July 28, 1917. "We lived together two years," said the plaintiff, "but he deserted me two weeks before our last child was born After leaving me he tried to get a divorce from me in Tolland, Conn.

Lorena Deviller was given a decree on the grounds of desertion. Both parties live in Brooklyn. She charged abuse and desertion and proved her allegations to the satisfaction of the court.

VOTE MONEY FOR ADDITION TO STATE TRADE SCHOOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 23.—(AP)—At a special town meeting held at the Municipal building last evening it was voted to appropriate a sum not to exceed $30,000 for an addition to the State Trade school on Providence street. Nearly 100 citizens attended the meeting and there was no opposition, the vote being unanimous.

Charles L. Torrey, J. F. Trinder, director of State Vocational school, and Col. H. J. Thayer spoke in favor of the project, and Mr. Trinder explained what it would mean to the town, and the advantages that had come from the Trade school being located here.

The citizens committee that has had the matter under consideration for several months was continued to act with the town school committee in securing plans and proposals, and to oversee the construction of the building. This committee consists of Byron D. Bugbee, Col. Henry J. Thayer, William P. Warren, Silas M. Wheelock, Alex. Gilman and John H. Bulger

Byron B Bugbee, and the board of selectment, Clarence E. Pierce, William P. Warren and Edward Girard, were named to consider the best way of financing the proposition and to report at an adjourned meeting to be held at the same place two weeks from Monday evening, April 5.

Judge M. H Geissler presided at the meeting and David Flagg was clerk.

Hinman, the Auburn, R. I., grocer. Dewey Tetreault, Edward Rowe and Mr. Bodo's son accompanied him. Mr. Bodo says that his dog found the trail easily despite the light snow that had fallen, that he took the scent from the glove which was found near the body and located the scent again from where the car was found and traced it for three quarters of a mile to the door of a house in the Italian quarter of Cranston. The dog picked up four different scents, all of which led to the same house. Mr. Bodo said that the trail, which the dog followed would suggest that the murderer was someone who was familiar with the territory around Cranston, and he believes that Otto's sense of smell will prove a material aid to the Rhode Island authorities in locating the murderer.

A woman in Nebraska was troubled with headaches for fifteen years. She writes, "I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have felt my health steadily improving. Today, after taking your medicine for almost a year and a half, I believe I can say the headaches have left me for it is seven months since I had the last one. I am continuing the Vegetable Compound. I am feeling fine now."

HOUGHTON'S VIEWS

Senator Harrison in his burst of oratory concerning the Houghton incident isn't going to get very far. Think of asking for the recall of the American ambassador to any country for doing his duty! Yet that is what the senator from Mississippi seems to think ought to happen. He is of course trying to create an entirely wrong opinion for the political effect it may have. He is using it for the purpose of injuring the administration, but he will not make much progress in that direction.

Ambassador Houghton, along with Minister Gibson, was called home for the purpose of giving this government the benefit of his knowledge of affairs abroad. Such information was sought in anticipation of the coming disarmament conference at Geneva. Since being recalled there has been a meeting of the league of nations for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the agreements reached at Locarno and it is fully understood that the league failed to accomplish its object.

Even at a distance it has been indicated that this result showed the temper of the European countries, that it displayed the age old suspicions which have prevailed and that it furnished a picture of just about how far Europe had advanced toward the much talked of disarmament.

The situation over there has not been going on under the eyes of our representatives without opinions being formed concerning them. They have made their impressions and if they have been told to this government by its representatives it is no more than was to be expected.

The fact of the matter is that it would have been a capital time for the senator from Mississippi to have gotten up and demanded some action be taken, if it were so that the American ambassador had seen all these things going on and had failed to note their significance and neglected to call the attention of his government when asked for a report of the situation across the water. Such however wasn't the case. The ambassador was on his job and there is cause for commendation rather than censure.

PAYING FOR ADVANTAGES

Between Pennsylvania and New Jersey there is nearing completion a fine steel structure that will carry the traffic between Philadelphia and Camden. It will take the place of ferryboats. It will be a great convenience to the thousands and thousands of users everyday. There will be eliminated the waits and delays incident to the operation of boats. Those who use that structure will be deeply appreciative of the relief that has been provided for them in the way of facilities for more speedy travel.

No one doubts the desirability of the bridge but there is considerable opposition being displayed in Philadelphia because there is to be a toll collected. The neighboring states must stand the expense of the bridge and it has been the contention of New Jersey that it could not build the structure without the levying of toll charge and that it was part of the understanding when the agreement to build was reached.

While attention is being called to the fact that former Highway Commissioner J. H. McDonald of this state has stated in a bulletin of the American Road Builders' association, that "toll roads and bridges still exist in the United States, but these are so few as to be negligible," and that "They are for the most part in a great many places connected with pleasure resorts and sight seeing tours," it is remembered of course that it is only a few years since Connecticut stopped the collection of tolls on state bridges, two of which were new and one had been given to the state by the New Haven road and been put into shape for highway use at considerable expense.

Connecticut resorted to the collection of tolls to make good for the accommodation provided for the public and there were but few who objected to the levy in view of the avoidance of previous annoying delays. The situation doesn't appear to be so different in connection with the new and costly bridge that is nearly completed over the Delaware. The users pay for the advantages gained.

HIGH FLYING

Even though it was impossible to watch the entire flight, any more than it would have been to witness the start and the finish of the cross country flight, the attempts of Lieutenant Macready to establish a new altitude record for flying never fail to create interest. It makes little difference what the effort is there is always keen concern where a struggle for new records is underway.

There will thus be disappointment over the finding of the bureau of standards at Washington as the result of the official calibration of the barograph that the high flying lieutenant failed in his effort. According to the unofficial figures he had not succeeded in getting higher than Lieutenant Callisz of France who now holds the record at 39,586 feet. The unofficial figures in the Macready flight this month were 39,025 feet, but it is often that corrected figures more than make up such a difference, so that there was a possibility that the official result would show the skillful flier to have reached a new goal. That it has not simply means that he will continue to attack the record altitude until he has succeeded in getting higher than any other man has been. Then he may not be content to stop, but the situation will be such as to arouse the ambition of other high fliers.

Lieutenant Macready knows what it is to be the holder of the altitude record. He established it prior to the flight to greater height by the French flier and there is a determination about his efforts which establish confidence in the belief that he will yet regain the coveted honor.

High flying is accompanied by no slight hardships. It is by no means a pleasure trip. Special equipment is called for to meet the conditions which are certain to be experienced at that height, with oxygen for use while in the very thin air and sufficient clothing and heat to counteract the 70 or more below zero. Climbing skyward may have its fascination for those who like it but its attractions are not such as to offset its disadvantages for most people.

STREET ACCIDENTS

Whether it is the life of a child that is quickly snuffed out, whether it is an adult who is knocked over or whether it is a person of prominence who is killed many years in advance of his expectancy of life, it serves to emphasize the danger that exists in the highway at the present time.

Regardless of what conditions may have been or what they ought to be as far as safety is concerned, or the rights of others involved the person who looks out for himself to the extent of delaying an extra minute before crossing the street, or stops to see what is coming before he steps out into the street from behind a standing vehicle, is looking out for his own welfare to no greater extent than is required by prevailing conditions.

On the other hand there is no reason to expect that the drivers of vehicles are to be exonerated of all blame and responsibility. There is in fact a large measure resting on their shoulders. They should give due regard to conditions as regards the rate of speed, they must take into consideration that others have a right in the streets and highways and they must anticipate the possibility of interfering therewith when operating their cars.

With all users of the highway, those driving vehicles and those walking in or crossing the road, alert to their respective responsibilities to self and to others, there could be a marked reduction in the needless accidents and fatalities which occur all too frequently in these days of motor vehicles and the carelessness, borne perhaps of past practices, which is brought to light invariably in connection with the many accident reports. There is much to deplore and much to correct as disclosed by the deaths and injuries experienced in the streets.

COUNTRY DOCTORS

One is obliged to sympathize with those in the country who are far from the office of the doctor. There are those who always have been at some distance, even during the days of the country doctor, but that situation has been changed by the passing of the latter. Appeals are not infrequent of communities advertising for doctors to locate within their midst. A group of small country villages might be able to offer considerable business to those who would be willing to begin practice under such conditions, or to retire to such a locality after strenuous years elsewhere. But for most doctors the chance to settle and practice in the country is not attractive.

In these days of telephones, motor vehicles and good roads it is pointed out with good argument that doctors in nearby cities are perhaps in closer touch with possible patients than were the country doctors of other days when it was necessary to drive after them, carry them to the patient and take them home again.

But there are nevertheless emergency conditions such as heavy snows in some of the states, and a none too good system of highways, which make it desirable to have a doctor within easy reach. What might be favorable to the long distance doctor in some states would be decidedly unfavorable in others. It is under such conditions that there are still demands for the country doctor, but the question in such communities is, How are the demands going to be met? It is a situation which naturally commands much sympathy, since there are few doctors ready in these days to make such sacrifices as are required of the country doctor.

FROM THE SIDELINES

Mabelle sat in front of her mirror and gave herself an extra dab of the lipstick. She stared at herself nervously. There certainly could be nothing so terrible about walking across the hall and dropping in to see another girl!

If only she could keep that casual state of mind and not get excited! For Mabelle was deliberately planning to descend on Lisbeth Parker in time to be established in the Parker living room when Raymond Bingham arrived.

Mabelle wasn't as pretty as Lisbeth, she admitted to herself, but no one could call her homely. And she was up to date in clothes and manners. Give her a chance and she would be as peppy as anybody! It was a chance she needed. An article that she had read crystalized all her unhappiness and had led to a resolve. "Unless a girl is a raving beauty," it had run, "she has to call attention to herself in order to be popular! Don't sit back; reach out!"

Well, she couldn't expect Raymond Bingham to notice her if she stayed hidden behind her own front door!

Mabelle got up hastily and walked straight through the front door across the hall and rang Lisbeth's bell. There were rapid steps and Lisbeth herself opened the door, a gay welcome in her smile which faded into a look of surprise, hastily suppressed.

"Oh!" she stammered. "Hello, Mabelle! I thought it was—come in!"

"I just thought I'd drop in a while." Mabelle heard herself saying in a rather high, strained voice as she followed into the living room. It's just dreadful to live so close and see so little of each other, don't you think?

What a darling dress—it's so becoming, too!"

"Is it?" Lisbeth murmured, "I like it myself!" She smiled in a friendly enough fashion, but Mabelle sensed uneasiness in her hostess, who glanced carelessly at her wrist watch. She most evidently was waiting to hear what Mabelle had to say for herself, but now that she was here Mabelle was stricken with a kind of dumb terror.

She jumped when the bell rang and Lisbeth again went to the door. Raymond Bingham entered the room, and there was a catch in the girl's throat as she realized again how good looking, how fine looking he was. She was pale beneath her rouge as she acknowledged the introduction in what she hoped was an intriguing manner—she had so little time and every eyelash flicker counted!

It was her chance and she would see it through. There were a few minutes of desultory talk and then Raymond fell silent. He coughed a bit uneasily and then tried to act as though he had not coughed. His eyes sought Lisbeth's meaning while he was saying to Mabelle that yes, he did enjoy golf. Yes, the weather was wonderful right now. Wasn't it? Mabelle echoed and laughed so gayly that both of them looked at her in some bewilderment. She was flushed of cheek, keyed up, anxiished.

Then of a sudden Raymond turned to her after a telegraphic message from Lisbeth. "We—won't you join us and go to the movie, Miss Belcher?" he asked earnestly and pleasantly enough. "And we'll dance somewhere afterward—we'd like to have you. We're going to meet some others, too, later."

Mabelle clenched her cold hands and pushed back thoughts of effacement. "Oh," she sparkled, entranced, "do you really want me? I'd love to."

"You won't need a wrap. Come on!" Lisbeth added with just the right touch of cordiality.

Mabelle cringed at what she knew Lisbeth really was feeling about her. But something grim and determined forced her on. She laughed and talked at Raymond as they got up to go forcing herself to believe that his glance was growing interested. Yet she knew with a deadly certainty that his replies were abstracted, his mile perfunctory.

Going down the staircase she saw him look at Lisbeth and the look killed her. Coldness, clutched her heart, she felt sick. "It's no use, no use!" rang inside her head. "He doesn't want you to go at all. He hates it!"

She leaned against the wall breathless. "Wait!" she gasped. "I—I just remembered—I can't go—I've got to do something else—no, don't come back—good night!"

She fled upstairs and sat pressing her hands to her scorching face, overswept with misery. She heard the door to the maroon roadster bang and the echo of a laugh.—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

David Roberts, the House Painter, the Great Artist

"Dave, ye are a grrrand slapper wi' the brush. Mon, ye do put the paint on as though ye liked to put it there."

"Aye," answered Dave in the jocular Scotch manner, for, like the rest of his race, he was not free in speech.

Year after year, "Dave" Roberts painted houses, and none of the people who saw him do it thought that he would one day become one of the most famous artists of all the British Empire.

David Roberts, the house painter went ahead and did the best he could in painting houses. Then he did a little more, and studied as much as he could. From being a poor and humble workman he made himself at last an intelligent workman. He studied books, tried to paint pictures and failed, and knew that he failed. There was one thing that he could do—one bit of slap-dash painting in which he could succeed. That was the painting of scenes for theaters, for that work called for slap-dash and little else. David Roberts painted scenery for theaters in Scotland and then in London. He saved a little money and then went to the continent of Europe to "look about the world" a little. He saw beautiful scenery that filled him with delight. The house painter, the stage scene painter, the dauber, now sat down to paint the scenes he saw. He kept on trying, and lo and behold out of his love of the beautiful and out of a joy in his work there came really great paintings. The world recognized him as a genuine artist, and he was able to devote himself to real art. Rich people bought his paintings which now hang in art galleries. He traveled about Europe and into the orient, looked upon all that was beautiful in scenes like the Pyramids and the desert, in interiors, as in the interiors of old Spanish cathedrals where the dim light makes holiness and then he put down what he saw and what he felt, in paintings. It was a rare triumph. By the time the house painter was 45 years old he had been made a member of the Royal Academy. When he died at the age of 68 was was lamented as one of the few artists who are really great. In every man there slumbers something great if he will but work and persevere.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Count of Turin, whose engagement to marry the Countess Negrotto Cambiaso is reported from Rome, is a cousin of King Victor Emmanuel and a son of the unhappy Duke of Aosta, who was once King of Spain. A brother of the count is the Duke of Abruzzi, celebrated as an explorer and scientist. The Count of Turin is a member of the Italian senate and was once commander-in-chief of the Italian cavalry. In his younger days he came prominently into the public eye on account of a duel he fought with the Duke of Orleans, who had reflected on his courage of the Italian army. The Count of Turin is handsome and a polished courtier, and was exceedingly well received in New York, Newport and other cities when he made a transcontinental tour of America in 1898.

Stories That Recall Others

West Is West.

Because of the slippery condition of the streets the other morning two Fords met. The occupant of one car, a white man, was driving south in X street. His car was in collision with a car driven by a colored man who was driving west in Y street. During the argument that followed a policeman arrived, who after questioning the white man called on the colored man to tell what he could of the accident. After a somewhat voluble preliminary explanation, the colored driver exclaimed with an air of assurance:

"All I know is this. I always did contend that the north and south traffic takes the right of way and that's the reason I took it."

After much laughter it finally dawned on the colored man that his car was traveling west at the time of the accident.

Accent on Third Word

A few years ago when melodrama was at its height, there was a play that had many stirring moments of action, not the least of which was the shooting of the villian, who fell at each performance with the words, "Heavens, I am shot!"

Doubtless the cast grew weary of the scene and intended to liven it up. At any rate, the story goes that some one put salt in the blank cartridge to be used by the heroine in the act and the audience was startled when, after failing as he uttered the fateful words, felt his side and announced, his eyes as big as saucers, "I AM shot!"

Treat Colds 2 Ways

With ONE Treatment

WHEN rubbed over throat and chest for all kinds of cold troubles Vicks VapoRub does two things at once:

(1) Its ingredients are vaporized by the body heat and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing, and

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain and thus aiding the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

This double action of Vicks usually relieves the most stubborn cold overnight.

Reddy Fox Doesn't Know What to Think

The very smartest must confess
That sometimes they can only guess.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy does not like to confess that he can only guess, but he knows it is true sometimes. Smart folk never do like to confess that they don't know. But they have to do it or else just guess, and let it go at that. Sometimes they guess right, and quite often they guess wrong. Guessing is not at all satisfactory.

Reddy blinked both eyes. "This is queer," said he

Reddy Fox, grinning to himself and thinking himself very, very smart, trotted along through the Green Forest just far enough behind Bowser the Hound to be sure that by no chance would Bowser discover that he was there. Bowser was following a trail with that wonderful nose of his and growing more and more excited as the trail grew fresher. It was the trail of the stranger who had come to the Green Forest, but Bowser thought it was the trail of Reddy Fox, for certainly it had the Fox smell.

You know that Reddy Fox is very clever in fooling dogs who may be following his trail. He is very clever at fooling Bowser the Hound, although sometimes he has hard work doing it and has to use a lot of tricks. Some of these tricks he worked out for himself. Some he learned from Old Granny Fox. Now as he trotted along he wondered if the stranger would be smart enough to fool Bowser. It rather pleased him when he found that the stranger had tried some of the simpler tricks and had failed to fool Bowser. He knew that Bowser knew all about those tricks and he chuckled at the idea that this stranger should think Bowser could be fooled in such simple ways.

But by and by ahead of him he found Bowser's voice change. He began to bark in an entirely different way. He was barking just as he was in the habit of barking when he had driven Bobby Coon up a tree or when he had run a young Fox into a hole in the ground. Reddy recognized it right away.

"Can it be that that stranger has taken to a hole in the ground or is in a hollow log?" muttered Reddy. "It sounds that way. It's hard to believe that he would run only so short a distance and let Bowser fight him in his hiding place."

Very, very softly and carefully Reddy crept forward until where, by peeping around the trunk of a tree, he could see Bowser. Bowser was at the foot of a big hemlock tree, looking up in it and barking with great excitement. Yes, sir, that is just what Bowser was doing. He was saying just as plainly as if he had used words, "I've got this fellow up a tree! I've got this fellow up a tree!"

Reddy blinked both eyes. "This is queer," said he. "What is Bowser looking up in the top of that tree for? If I didn't know differently I should think he had been chasing Bobby Coon, and that Bobby is up in that tree. I wonder if it can be that the stranger and Bowser met Bobby Coon and Bowser forgot the stranger in the excitement of seeing Bobby Coon? Still, there is a different note in Bowser's voice. If Foxes climbed trees I should think that he had a Fox up that tree. But that is foolish. Foxes don't climb trees. That is, they don't climb way up in trees, and Bowser is looking way up high."

Reddy began to look and look. But the branches on that hemlock were thick, and though he thought he saw some one high up in the tree, he couldn't be sure of it. So Reddy didn't know what to think. No, sir, he didn't know what to think. If ever there was a puzzled Fox that Fox was Reddy as he watched Bowser the Hound barking excitedly at the foot of the big hemlock tree.

POETRY

Retrieval

There must be many days without a storm,
And many peaceful nights, before this tree
Can be itself again. The branches bend
In order now; the leaves are very still—
But the wind upturned and tore them yesterday,
And all they held was poured into the rain.
The tree is empty now as an old bell
Suddenly swung.

The darkness gathered here
Was filled with silent movement, of the shapes
That never speak. Each bird that fluttered through Hung up an echoing wing-beat, like a leaf.
The gentle winds that hourly wandered in
Made hesitating music, never lost.
Nor ever heard by any but the nights.
That folded round the days and darkened them—
All sleeping till the tempest burst about.

The tree has not lamented what is gone.
Time, and the open air, and the quiet ground
Already work together with the wrens
And noiseless, climbing spiders. They collect
New treasure now, sufficient for a while.
—Mark Van Doren, in The North American Review.

The Happiest Heart

Who drives the horses of the sun
Shall lord it but a day;
Better the lowly deed were done,
And kept the humble way.

The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Ay, none shall nail so high his name
Time will not tear it down.

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight sweet,
And left to Heaven the rest.
—John Vance Cheney.

NEW SCHEDULE OF RATES FOR FIRE INSURANCE IS IN EFFECT

A new schedule of fire insurance rates has gone into efect in Norwich, the so-called Dean schedule, applying on all specifically rated property but not on dwelling houses or household furniture in unrated locations. Notice of the new schedule was received here Tuesday, making it effective at once on all new insurance business and renewals written from this date.

It was explained by an insurance authority Tuesday night that the Dean schedule will result in an advanced rate at this time in a large proportion of insurance risks on business property and property in business locations, but that it offers the possibility of reductions in each individual case.

The Dean schedule is explained by insurance men as a scientific rating plan which is intended to bring everything in the country upon the same basis. It has been in operation in Rockville and in Hartford and other Connecticut cities besides extending into Massachusetts. Under its plan the rate for each individual piece of property is made up of debits and credits added to or subtracted from the base rate, according to the deficiencies or the improvements attaching to the property. It takes into consideration a number of different elements, such as exposure, fire department, water supply, building construction, etc., on which a survey of Norwich was made some time ago. Each risk stands as an individual risk, on which the rate is determined by the number of factors that enter into it. When the insurer learns what his rate is, he can learn how it is made up and it will be possible for him to have credits, which will lower his rate, by making certain specified improvements.

REV. MR. ABBOTT SPOKE BEFORE COLLEGE CLUB

The March meeting of the Norwich College club and the Norwich branch of the American association of University Women was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer, No. 142 Broad street.

The business meeting was omitted and the address of the afternoon was given by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott upon "America and Some of Its Relations to the World."

In part Rev. Mr. Abbott said:

I think, perhaps, by way of preface, I ought to assure you that what I know about America and some of our relations to the world is exceptionally little. I have none of the technique of internationalism at my disposal.

The relation that America holds to the world—some of us are thinking in definite lines and more of us are thinking in indefinite lines. Some are puzzled; some see things clearly. I am going to attempt to say something about some of the thoughts going through my own head on this problem. I am merely gathering together some of the things all of you have thought out thoroughly. Some convictions have come to me with certain clearity.

Before I even proceed to lay a basis for the point I expect to reach at the end, there are three things I would like to be very clear about and would like to have you hold them in your mind as things to be taken for granted. There are three stupidities. First: I thoroughly believe in the stupidity of war. I thoroughly believe in the whole stupidity in war business. I presume that we are all in definite accord on that particular. To me war is a perfectly stupid, asinine thing.

The second thing is a belief that I have in the stupidity of the military order—the general stupidity of it. I am firmly convinced there are many individuals in the world who are unable to see things as a whole and clearly unable to see the problems of life. Nothing is as stupid as the military class. I am not referring to the late military antagonist. I am referring to our own military organization. I speak from experience with it and in it. In the military order, individualism is pushed out. The third thing is the stupidity of holding the concept of isolation. If I speak of America in a certain distinctly way later on, please hold in your mind I am calling the concept of isolation a marked stupidity.

I am constantly reminded of three facts that I never get away from. I am going to describe these three facts as clearly and as briefly as I can, so that you will see that in my own attitude I cannot get away from them. The first fact is that mankind has come down through the ages not as an individual, but in clans, tribes, races, nations. He has not come down as an individual but as universal mankind. In time we are going to wipe out national peculiarities but not in one generation. He may, in time, get uniformity but not in one generation.

I think it is quite presumptious for us to suppose in one generation or two generations or three generations we are going to wipe out all these barriers. That has not been done for millions of generations. It may be done six thousand generations hence. I hope we do not think that it is going to be done in this generation. Before that is done mountains have got to be leveled, zones wiped out, skin texture made alike. After this we may get uniformity of man. We may get him to be a rose. He may come out a dandelion. That particular fact I think we have, namely that mankind comes down the ages by tribes.

Second, the contributions that races have made to mankind have always been in some particular excellences that each has achieved. Mankind has had its contribution from nations that have achieved. Let us go back to Greece. The contribution she made of course was in terms of particular excellence that she, herself, had achieved. I am not saying that she did not borrow from Egypt. She borrowed, but what did she do with what she borrowed? There was her originality. She made those things more available than they were before. Plato borrowed, absorbed what he borowed, got it into his system and then he was original in the fact that he made it more available. Greece, however, in each one of her departments took those old things and made them new by the might of an original availability. She achieved an excellence that was peculiarly her own, because she took things already in the world and gave them a new availability.

The third fact is this: That whenever any nation disappears from the scale of mankind, it is always in terms of a twofold process. The disintegration from within not of her excellence, but of those elements of which these excellences have been projected. The world has not lost anything of Rome's achievements. The world has not lost anything that was the beauty of Greece. The world has not lost any of the excellence of Magna Charta. The world has not lost an atom of the splendid efficiency that was Germany's 20 years ago. The disintegration, however, was in the elements out of which these excellences were projected. When you go back in history again you will mark the truth of that.

And there'd that other process, the process from within—namely, that the enemy always attacks that nation not at the point of excellences that it has achieved but at the point underneath where efficiency is crumbling. We used Germany's efficiency. We practiced her efficiency. We almost outdid her. Then we attacked her underneath that efficiency where she was crumbling. These are the three facts then: First, that mankind comes down the ages by races; second, that the contributions to mankind are made in superior excellencies that each nation achieves; and third, that the passing of the excellence or nations is always in terms of two-fold process of disintegration.

I cannot get away from these three points. I will go a step further. I will say what is America's duty with respect to its relation to the world and I'm going to tell you in one phrase what America's world duty is. To Mind Her Own Business! That's what America's duty to the world is. I think it is one of her first necessities. It sounds flippant. I am using it in this way; to attend to, to be careful of, to be consecrated about, to be dedicated to, to be mindful of her place she occupies in the world—to provide an excellence of her own which is superior.

Now there are many, many people who are described in the phrase of the Psalms, "The fool's eyes are in the ends of the earth"—exactly "where fools' eyes are! They are not concentrated on a thing that is near, but far off. The man is looking far off, not here. America's first duty is at home. Her mind is confused. She has no stalwart mind. Her moral influence is just a phrase. What do you think of the spirituality, mentality and morality of America at this specific moment?

I propose we do not give America to the world until we have something very much respected to give.

A "COUNTESS" HELD IN GRAND LARCENY CASE

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)—A fashionably dressed young woman who described herself as the Countess Virginia Von David and gave an uptown New York address was held in $2,500 bail for hearing Thursday when arraigned today on suspicion of grand larceny. Police said she was widely known in Boston, Mass.

In court today police produced several clippings from Boston newspapers which they said they found on the young woman's person. One bore a picture of a young woman resembling the defendant and had the caption, "Arrested Again."

The young woman told police that she had been a baroness as well as a countess and that she is 29 years old. Her arrest was brought about by a dress shop where she was alleged to have cashed a worthless check for $50.50.

No countess or baroness of her name is listed in the standard books listing persons of title.

FLOOD CONDITIONS ARE PASSING IN PENNSYLVANIA

OIL CITY, Pa., March 23.—(AP)—A general movement tonight of the huge ice gorges which have choked the Allegheny river south of here the last few weeks is believed by observers to mark the passing of flood conditions that already have caused damage estimated in the millions and has driven more than one hundred and fifty families from their homes.

Oil City, however, tonight remained a city of apprehension with no way of predicting what the outcome of the ice movement may be. Should the ice continue to move out freely, there will be no further flood menace, but if a jam should occur the water may again back up Oil creek and cause a repetition of yesterday's flood that covered the central business section with water to a depth of from three to twelve feet.

The Allegheny river and Oil creek fell two feet within 15 minutes tonight and were continuing to steadily recede.

Catholic Prelate Opposes Dry Law

(C) HENRY MILLER, WASH. D. C.

Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, states that the Roman Catholic Church applauds voluntary abstinence, but opposes compulsory prohibition. He did not mention the Episcopal controversy started by the Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church that it favored legalization of light wines and beers. He confined himself to defining the position of his church and warning the Protestant prohibition leaders that the Catholic Church would not allow itself to become entangled in the compulsory total abstinence movement, although the Catholic Church has long been fighting intemperance. The cardinal said compulsory prohibition was another matter.

CHAIRMAN HALL BELIEVES NEW RULE WILL NOT DETRACT FROM THE GAME

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—The belief among numerous coaches that the new football rule penalizing incompleted forward passes will rob the gridiron game of many of its spectacular aerial features is not shared by Edward K. Hall of New York, the chairman of the football rules committee.

Discussing today the new rule, under which a team making more than one incompleted pass is set back five yards for each attempt, Mr. Hall expressed to the Associated Press his conviction that it will not hamper any well-developed aerial attack such as those exhibited last season by Dartmouth, Michigan, Princeton and Washington.

Mr. Hall emphasized that the rule is aimed solely at the indiscriminate passing efforts of teams which use this mode of attack as a last minute resort. As a matter of fact he indicated that, in the rule committee's opinion, the only question is whether the penalty decided upon is severe enough to check the ill-conceived type of passing.

Discussing the general situation which prompted the rule committee's decision, Mr Hall asserted that "the indiscriminate heaving of a series of wild forward passes in the blind hope that one of them may possibly connect with someone, somewhere eligible to receive it is not good football, in fact, not football at all."

"Under the 1925 rules, however," he pointed out "a team could resort to this sort of tactics without taking any chance whatever except that the pass might be intercepted if the pass failed to connect and it usually did in these orgies of indiscriminate heaving the ball was brought back for the next down without loss of any distance.

"In the 1926 rules the team that makes more than one incomplete forward pass in a given series of downs must pay five yards each for the privilege.

"No one expects this provision will eliminate all of the indiscriminate passing of the ball that marred the beauty and interest of so many contests last season. The rules committee, however, hopes it will have a tendency to check it.

"The problem of the committee was to find some provisions that would tend to check this use of the pass and at the same time not curtail in any way the real strategery of the game. Whether or not the five-yard penalty will tend to check this wild passing is, of course, more or less of an open question which experience alone will answer. The committee is clear, however that it will neither reduce the threat nor diminish the strength or limit the strategy of any intelligently developed aerial attack."

In the opinion of Dr Edward J O'Brien of Tufts prominent kridiron official and a member of the advisory committee of the rules committee the new rule "will keep teams which do not know how to pass from spoiling the game."

"I do not believe that the new rule will have much effort on a good passing team, unless the effect is psychological" Dr O'Brien points out.

"Dartmouth probably was the outstanding forward-passing team of last season. If you examine the statistics of last year's Dartmouth-Harvard game you will find that if this penalty had been in force, it would have been administered just once and that one time against Harvard.

"A good passing team will complete sixty per cent. of its passes. I believe Dartmouth completed 69 per cent. during 1925. This is the way it will work out—first down, ten yards to go. Team completes a short forward pass. Second down, small gain on rushing play. Third down, incomplete pass (no penalty because there has been no previous incomplete pass during the current down.) Fourth down, kick.

"The rules committee does not want to legislate so that the pass will not play an important part in football. It does not want to run any danger of forcing the game back to the pushing-and-pull state but it does want to cut out the ineffectual and tiresome efforts of a poor passing team."

DOLE BELIEVES NEW RULE WILL MAKE LITTLE DIFFERENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., March 23—The football rules committee made a wild play in their legislation last Saturday to curb long forward passing in the fourth quarter," said Sumner A. Dole, varsity coach at Connecticut Aggie, when asked here today to state his opinion of the rule governing the forward pass.

Dole's views on the subject are of particular interest, for the state college mentor has been especially successful in the use of the overhead attack with Connecticut Aggie elevens during his three years at Storrs.

"By placing a five-yard penalty on a team unsuccessful in its attempt to complete a second or third down for first downs the rules committee probably believes that the wild heaving of passes in the fourth quarter will be greatly reduced." Dole said "Personally, I'm positive that a review of next season will show just as much long passing at the end of the game as before. And why not? If a team needs a touchdown to win, what difference does it make if five or ten yards are lost in an attempt to make twenty-five or thirty-five, which if successful will probably mean a touchdown and victory.

"No, I can't see where this rule will cure the evil, and I don't know of any legislation by the rules committee that will unless the pass is eliminated from the game. It is going to handicap the team with the weak aerial attack, and I think it will mean more drill on the forward passing game. There will probably be fewer passing plays than before, but they will be better executed.

"Where at Connecticut the forward pass will play an important part in the offense of our 1926 eleven We will probably direct more attention to forward pass drill, and so far as the penalty of the new rule is concerned, it won't in any way affect our plans to use the overhead game I do believe the rule governing intentional safeties is a good one. It will do away with a weaker team stalling for a stronger team's attack, for the latter will now have a chance to score that would otherwise be lacking."

GALLANT ELECTED CAPTAIN OF AGGIE BASKETBALL

STORRS, March 23.—(AP)—James F Gallant, of Worcester, Mass., today was elected manager of the Connecticut Agricultural college basketball team for 1927. In addition to his work on the basketball squad, Gallant has been prominent in other student activities. He was a member of the 1925 rifle team, captain of the freshman track team and his first year at the college, a member of the cross country team, sporting editor of the college annual, and is an active member of the college dramatic club. His fraternity is Phi Mu Delta.

BRAVES HAVE GREAT DEFENSE BUT LACK HITTERS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 23—(AP)—Defensively well fortified, the Boston Braves need more batting punch to be real pennant contenders this year, in the opinion of Manager Dave Bancroft.

"It is true we won a number of games against strong clubs by impressive scores," Bancroft said to The Associated Press, referring to his club's sensational work in exhibition games, "but then we were getting good pitching while the other fellows were not. As the enemy pitchers rounded into form. We did not do well.

"Our chief weakness is at the bat, but at that we will have a better punch than last year. Eddie Brown and Wilson will help us. Brown is showing particularly well.

"Our main strength, however, is in the pitching box, where we have a five corps of young stars. We lost Jess Barnes but in Werts, the Worcester boy, we have the coming sensation of the big leagues. He was everything—speed, curves, control, and a change of pace. Werts by the way, came to the Eastern league from class D. He's a big raw rookie with only a year and a half experience. But fielded only two runs in 16 innings of exhibition pitching.

"Hearn a left hander, is another rookie pitcher who looks ready for fast company. Rosy Ryan, also will help us this year while George Mogridge. The former Washington southpaw will surprise a lot of folks.

"Joe Genewich is showing great form this spring. I ought to have a wonderful sextet on the mound in Genewich, Benton, Kamp, Graham, Cooney and Smith, in addition to the possibility in Werts, Hearn, Ryan and Mogridge.

"Gautreau should be a big help to the infield this year. We are strong behind the bat. On defence we have a one, two, three club but the batting is not so good. I am hoping the team as a whole will develop more punch and if it does, we will give all of them trouble."

NEW PRO HOCKEY LEAGUE IS BEING ORGANIZED

BOSTON, March 23.—(AP)—A new professional hockey league that will be on a footing equal to the National Hockey league will be in operation in seven or eight cities of the United States and Canada next winter if plans laid by promoters here today matures. The new circuit, the promoters voted, shall be known as the American Hockey league and it will bear the same relation to the national league as the two major baseball leagues bear to one another.

Representatives of interests in New York, Providence, Montreal and Boston attended the meeting. Suitable rinks already exist in these cities. The league will later consider admitting New Haven, Conn., Springfield, Mass., Newark, and Jersey City. The admission of these cities hinges upon the development of suitable playing surfaces.

The rebuilding of the New Haven rink, the installation of freezing equipment in the eastern states exposition auditorium in West Springfield and the probable building of a rink at Jersey City, it was said, made likely a seven team circuit. Newark, too, may have an arena.

RAIN STILL PREVENTS PLAY IN CANNES TOURNEY

CANNES, France, March 23—(AP)—For the second successive day rain today prevented the playing of the finals match in the women's singles of the Cannes tennis tournament between Miss Helen Wills and Miss Joan Ridley of England, and if the rain continues tomorrow this match probably will remain unplayed. The American champion announced tonight that she intends to leave for Italy Thursday morning, while Miss Ridley expects to depart for London tomorrow night.

Miss Wills plans to visit Milan, Florence and Rome, returning to Paris April 10, when she will begin practice on the courts of the racing club in preparation for the international matches and the French championships scheduled for May and June. While in Italy she is expected to play a few exhibition matches.

Suzanne Lenglen returned to Nice today looking fit after her rest in the region of Lake Como. She said she would play in no more Riviera tournaments this season, but would content herself with only a few practice matches before leaving for London, where she will make her next appearance in championship tennis at Wimbledon in June.

AGGIE ATHLETE PLAYS ON THREE TEAMS IN SAME DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS Conn., March 23—Seldom is it that an athlete participates in baseball, football and basketball all in the same day, yet that was the unique experience of a Connecticut Aggie student here today. Howard Kennedy '28, of New Haven reported for work in the first outdoor session of the Connecticut Aggie baseball squad here this afternoon at 3.30 Then from 6 30 to 7.30 he was going through signals with the varsity football team, which is now in its second week of spring practice. Then with football practice over, he immediately donned a basketball uniform, and played a fast game for his class basketball team, which at present is leading the class league here. Kennedy is only a sophomore, and close observers of his work expect to see him make varsity letters in all three sports before he graduates from Connecticut.

SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE FOR THE ACADEMY SQUAD

Although the ground is in poor condition for outdoor baseball practice the Academy football squad has been working for the past week under the watchful eye of Coach Whitney. A squad of 33 candidates for the football team reported to Mr. Whitney when issued a call for spring practice. The squad is being drilled in the fundamentals of the game and much attention is being paid the promising candidates.

Indoor practice for baseball continues each week and it is expected that when the ground permits of outdoor work the members of the squad will be sufficiently hardened to permit of stiff practice from the first. The prediction this season point to a wonderful baseball machine as practically the entire team of last year is back for the 1926 season.

Baseball Challenge

The Majestic baseball team of Westerly issues its challenge for games to any similar nines in or about Norwich. The Majestics lay claims to having had a fast team a year ago, having defeated the Valiants and many other aggregations. For games, write Manager George Winterbottom, 29 Prospect street, Westerly.

TWO PROMINENT JOCKEYS ARE DENIED LICENSES BY STEWARDS OF JOCKEY CLUB

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Applications for licenses of Jockeys L. M. Fator and Clarence Kummer were laid on the table today by the stewards of the jockey club. This action will bar the mfrom the New York state tracks unless favorable action is taken at a meeting just before the season starts.

Although no official statement as to the cases of Fator and Kummer was issued by the stewards, it was indicated that unsatisfactory riding in races last season was behind the action. Fator was suspended by the Empire City association in Yonkers, N. Y., late last summer for an unsatisfactory showing.

Kummer and Fator are two of the best known jockeys on northern tracks. The former is under contract to J. P. and E. M. Byers, while Fator rode last year under the colors of the Rancocas stable.

Application of John G. Dorsey and James Rowan for trainers' licenses were denied, while those of G. C. Winfrey and Samuel Greenfield were laid on the table. B. A. Chilson, ruled off the tracks several years ago for using "ringers", failed in his plea for reinstatement to privileges.

No formal action was taken in the matter of the four jockeys and three owners barred for life by the Kentucky racing authorities last Saturday, but officials said that the ruling would be recognized and supported by governing turf bodies throughout the country.

RAIN PUTS STOP TO SPRING TRAINING ACTIVITIES

CHICAGO, March 23—(AP)—Jupe Pluvius, supposed to have been unconditionally released for the rest of the training season, came back today and shut out many of the major league baseball clubs.

The Cleveland-Brooklyn tilt at Lakeland, Fla., was rained out.

While Dolfo Luque took treatments for a severe cold, the rest of the Cincinnati Reds took things easy watching a downpour wash away their proposed game with the Yankees at St. Petersburg.

The scheduled St. Louis Browns-New York Giants encounter at Sarasota, Fla., was cancelled because of rain.

Ty Cobb called off the practice game at Detroit's Georgia camp in favor of a long hitting and infield session.

Ray Schalk's second defeated their White Sox brethren at Shreveport, 8 to 6, the sale to Chattanooga of Davenport, southpaw pitcher, was announced.

The Chicago club's infield went on a hitting spree to help McCarthy's outfit win from the San Francisco mission team 8 to 4.

At San Antonio, the St. Louis Cards defeated the local Texas league team, 5 to 2.

GROUND TOO SOFT FOR OUTDOOR PRACTICE AT W. H. S.

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 23.—Westerly high school baseball coach, Joel A. Sherman visited the Westerly athletic field off High street the first of the present week but found the ground too soft to risk the beginning of W. H. S baseball. It is unfortunate that the field is so located and drainage so poorly provided for as the low line of the north end of the field for early practice instead of the regular laid out diamond.

Having visited the high school to interview Superintendent W. H. Bacon and High School Principal Charles E. Mason, Coach Sherman is confident that at least 30 men will report for baseball practice when notice is given. The exact date for starting practice is problematical and depends almost entirely upon the weather conditions, but of one thing "Joe" is certain and that is more freshman than ever before will be on hand for the "first throwing of the ball around."

Uzcudun Kayoes Drake

PARIS, March 23.—(AP)—Paolino Uzcudun, the Spanish heavyweight pugilist, knocked out Harry Drake, English heavyweight, tonight after one minute and 25 seconds of fighting.

Drake put up a miserable showing, although pronounced fit physically by physicians. They had made an examination of his heart at the instance of Henri Bernstein, the noted referee, who had refused to officiate on the ground that Drake suffered from a weak heart.

Tonight 5,000 spectators gathered in the Cirque de Paris freely gave vent to their opinion that the English heavyweight was almost entirely without heart. The crowd cheered Bernstein, while they pelted the ring with all kinds of missiles.

It was explained later that Drake had been affected by numerous knock outs while acting as sparring partner for Jack Dempsey in the two weeks exhibitions which the world champion gave in Germany last year.

THINKS O'CONNELL SHOULD BE GIVEN ANOTHER CHANCE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23—(AP)—Jimmy O'Connell, former New York Giants' outfielder, should be given another chance in organized baseball, in the opinion of William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs and Los Angeles Pacific Coast league clubs.

Mr. Wrigley said today that O'Connell, who was outlawed from organized baseball as a result of the National league bribe scandal of 1924 was the victim of circumstances and innocent of any wrong-doing.

He added, however, that Baseball Commissioner Landis probably feels that a dangerous precedent would be established if O'Connell should be restored to good standing.

O'Connell was the principal figure in the attempted bribery of Heine Sands, shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals, during the critical series between the Phillies and Giants. O'Connell asserted "Cozy" Dolan, coach of the Giants, had put him up to approaching Sands.

"The whole thing, in my opinion, was a rather crude practical joke on the part of Dolan," said Wrigley.

The track at Longwood, Fla., was muddy the rain having ceased just before the start of the program. Casanova accounted for the feature with Greenwoods second and Eanola third The time for the six furlongs was 1:21. Word was received at the track that J W. Shewbridge had unloaded a string of six horses from Baltimore and that Kenneth Karwick was on his way from Havana with four. J. A. Hall has arrived with 14 head from Tampa.

Tea. Manzana and Crossbow finished in that order in the six furlong event at TiJuana, the time being 1-12. Freya defeated Roseate 2nd and Kinsman at a mile and 70 yards in 1:48 1-5.

"It wasn't me", declared Tommy. Herman and Kaplan will enter the ring at 133 pounds, the title not at stake.

N. Y. COMMISSION ORDERS JOE STECHER TO MEET MALCEWICZ IN TITLE MATCH

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Joe Stecher of Dodge City, Neb., claimant o fthe world's heavyweight wrestling championship, was ordered today by the state athletic commission to meet Joe Malcewicz of Utica, N. Y., in a title match. Stecher recently refused to meet Malcewicz in a Boston ring when the latter was substituted as an opponent in a last minute shift.

Jack Curley, veteran wrestling promoter, was told by the commission to match the grapplers at the earliest possible moment and he promised to do his best.

Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight boxing champion, who was defeated by Johnny Risko, Cleveland, O., heavyweight in a match at Madison Square Garden last Friday, sought permission to sign for a return engagement with the Clevelander but the commission withheld its decision until next Tuesday. Jess McMahon, matchmaker at the Garden, said he would match the two for an early engagement if permission was granted.

Harry Alberts, manager of Joe Glick, outstanding challenger for the world's junior lightweight title, was suspended, together with his entire stable, for 30 days for alleged illegal conduct during a match at Syracuse, N. Y., last week when Glick fought Frankie Lafay, Troy, N. Y., lightweight. The report to the commission alleges Alberts hit James Gorman, Lafay's manager, in a quarrel over bandages on Glick's hands and refused to remove them when ordered by the deputy in charge.

Scotty Montieth, one of the managers of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., world's featherweight champion, was suspended until he answers a summons to appear before the commission to explain the action of Kaplan in refusing to fulfill a contract to meet Kid Roy, Canadian featherweight champion, in Montreal, Nov. 13, 1925.

The Montreal commission filed a complaint against Kaplan and his managers and the New York board started an investigation by summoning Montieth.

DEAD-HEADING ENGINE JUMPS OFF THE IRON

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 23—The slipping of three tires on the driving wheels of a "dead" and disconnected locomotive, of the New Haven road, the last in a string of four locomotives, three of which were in tow, caused its derailment about noon Tuesday under the High street railroad dry bridge in Westerly.

New Haven locomotives in order Nos. "329", "3201", "1393", and "2383", were en route from Midway to the Readville, Mass., repair shops, two of the string being of a large and heavy type, and had reached the "foot of Westerly hill," near Burdick lane, in Pawcatuck, when the iron rim or tire of the three-driving-wheeled rear engine were found to have slipped, two on the out side and one on the driver next to the west bound track. There were no pilot or pony truck wheels under the last locomotive and when the widened tread reached the head-on crossover switch point near the High street bridge the flange followed the crossover rail and twisting over this rail as the locomotive continued pulling set the drivers all on the ties, while the tender remained on the rails. The locomotive lacked but 100 yards of making the siding on which it was planned to leave the locomotive while the tires were to be replaced when the derailment occurred.

With the arrival of the Midway wrecker, the three locomotives remaining on the rails were uncoupled and proceeded. The wrecking derrick was backed down to pass a cable under the forward end of the boiler and gas torch set on the tires to expand them for resetting. When this work was completed the locomotive was run onto the siding. Sectionmen set new rails in place of the twisted ones which were taken out, outside of which the roadbed was undisturbed. East and west bound express passenger trains were crossed over at Stonington and Bradford to get by the wreck and it was not until after 5 o'clock that the east bound track was again in use.

Pawcatuck Patrolman C. Wilson Brown, state dog officer for the town of Stonington, was called to the William Clark Mills of the American Thread company at 7:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning. A mongrel dog had gotten into the mill and had nipped at the legs of several mill employees. Securing the dog with a rope, it was taken outside, where one shot from the officer's automatic sent it to the happy hunting grounds, much to the relief of the mill people.

Capt. Kelly of the New Haven railroad was at the Westerly station Tuesday to warn and reprimand a R. I. college student who unfastened a car gate of the west bound train to jump the iron fence and cross the east bound track to the waiting station. Jumping the fence is a most dangerous practice.

Funeral services for Miss M. Louise Collins who died Thursday in Stamford, Conn., were held Monday afternoon at Christ Episcopal church. The Rev. G Edgar Tobin officiated. Burial was in River Bend cemetery.

Miss Collins, the daughter of George C. and Louise (Marriott) Collins, was born in Westerly and spent her early life here and summers at Weekapaug beach. The bearers were Elisha C. Burdick, Walton Clark, Eugene Clark and Lewis A. Joslin, all Westerly friends of the deceased.

This (Wednesday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, "Americanization," is to be the general topic of Miss Charlotte E. Fraser, a national lecturer for the Women's Christian Temperance union, when she speaks at a public meeting in the Broad Street Christian church. The gathering will be under the auspices of the Westerly W. C. T. U. It is expected that there will be a large attendance, including representatives of various women's clubs and civic organizations interested in the problem of foreign immigration. Miss Fraser is herself a former immigrant, having been born in Scotland.

Senator Harry A. Sanderson of Providence, Grand Tall Cedar of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon in Rhode Island, is to be at the Westerly Masonic club rooms on High street Wednesday evening. A Forest of Tall Cedars is to be located in Westerly and invitations have been sent out to members of Franklin and Pawcatuck lodges, F. and A. M., to be present and hear Mr. Sanderson. The committee in charge consists of Clarence A Vars, Raymond C. Vars and Lewis R. Greene.

Funeral services for George Washington Burdick, 64, who died on Saturday at his home on Chase Hill, Hopkinton, R. I., were held on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. E. P. Mathewson, of Ashaway, pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church of Hopkinton, officiating. Interment was in the First Hopkinton cemetery, the bearers being Arthur Champlin, Thurman Main, George Partelo, LaVerne Chaffe, Henry Hoxie and Charles Kenyon. Included in the attendance were several members of the grange.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mudge of Hartford were week end guests of relatives in Westerly.

Mrs. Amos Brown is the guest of relatives in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Smith are confined to their home on Granite street by illness.

Miss Bessie Mudge is expected home on Wednesday, after being confined at the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, by illness.

William O. Sullivan of Pawcatuck, chauffeur for R. B. Mellon of Pittsburgh, Pa., a summer cottager at "Sunshine," Watch Hill, is the guest of Westerly relatives and friends for a week while the Mellon family are stopping in New York city.

George Jordan of Westerly was called to Auburn, R. I., on Monday night because of the serious illness of his mother.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building activities in and about Norwich showed increased improvement over the past few weeks although there was no startling activity noted. The milder weather of the week allowed some little cement work to be done as well as much of the exterior work on some projects. At the Schwartz Bros. store on Main street Contractor Sweeney made good progress on the remodeling of the store. The plate glass windows are being set in place and the partition dividing the large store into two stores is erected.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton three building permits were granted bringing the total for the month of March up to eight permits. Included in the permits issued last week is one for a bungalow on Boswell avenue, the first permit granted for a dwelling house during the present year. The total valuation as placed by the owners on the building called for in the new permits is approximately $7,000.

The permits issued are as follows:

To Joseph J. Chinigo to erect a frame piazza to the present house at 14 Hickory street for himself. The piazza will be 6x14 feet.

To George Adams to erect a frame bungalow on Boswell avenue. The house will be of the semi-bungalow type, 28x40 feet, with cement foundation. The exterior will be finished in colonial siding with composition roof. The interior will be in hard finish plaster, with hardwood trim and floors. The contract has not yet been awarded.

To G. F. and F. H. Christ to build a small frame building on Cliff street. The building will be 10x15 feet and the work will be done by day labor

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were five sales of real estate in Norwich, a decrease of three sales as compared to the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the corresponding weeks were $40,450 and $9,700.

In New London the real estate sales during the the past week numbered 12 as compared to four for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $76,789 and $95,725.

Building Outlook in Connecticut

The record of building issued in this state during the past two months would seem to reflect a serious slump in building operations says The Commercial Record. Week after week the amount of new work for which permits are issued in the principal business centers in this state appears to have been much less than last year although at the present time there is a big improvement in the totals. The situation, however, as viewed by several prominent architects and contractors, is not so critical as would appear from the permits totals. On the contrary the feeling prevails that a large amount of work is being contemplated and in many cases plans have already been prepared. But, so far, the majority of this work has been held in abeyance pending the arrival of better building weather. So widespread, in fact, has this tendency been on the part of prospective builders there is a need for a good amount of building outlook has been created in many cases. Assuming from this that that is a need for a good amount of new construction we can see no reason why the builders should not be swamped with work before the end of April. Surely material prices are well stabilized that they can gain nothing in this respect by waiting. Apparently there is only one fly in the ointment and that is the threat of an impending labor disturbance in Hartford, affecting the steam-fitting and electrical trades. Whether or not the tradesmen are justified in making new wage demands at this time, nothing is more certain to kill a lot of proposed construction work than the carrying out of this threat. For the good of all we sincerely hope this thing can be settled without a strike.

The Lumber Market

The lumber industry has been more active this year than last year. Reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers' association from the leading hardwood and softwood mills of the country show that production and shipments for the week ended March 6 were at a higher rate than for the same period a year ago, while a particularly gratifying increase was noted in new business. Orders taken by the 369 softwood mills during that week amounted to 253,639,152 feet, compared with 223,823,120 feet reported by 360 mills during the corresponding week in 1925. The hardwood operations also showed marked current increases in both shipments and new business.

Building Permits in State

When compared with last year the building permits totals in the leading building centers in this state for the past week show a sharp decrease as to the number of permits with only a slight decrease in the total estimated cost of work permitted for. The week's record, however, indicates a big improvement over the preceding week. In the cities and towns covered by The Commercial Record there were 221 permits issued this past week compared with 295 for last year. The total estimated construction cost for the past week was $1,528,535 as against $1,569,603 for the like week in 1925.

Geisler, coast guardsmen charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition act with 16 others some of whom have already been arraigned, were brought from New London today to plead to indictments returned against them by the federal grand jury here. Peterson pleaded not guilty to two counts and was committed to jail in default of bail fixed at $1,000 in each case. Geisler pleaded not guilty to one count and was committed when unable to furnish bail of $2,000. These men are said to have figured in the recent conspiracy to land liquor in Rhode Island.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

After a week of excitement Norwich settled down to await news of the arrest of the thief who got the $40,000 in bank money. Other items of the week as taken in part from the columns of the Norwich Courier of 1851 are as follows:

Tuesday, March 18, 1851—The wind has blown a hurricane for the past two days and no sound boats have made trips. The Norwich boat remains at Allyn's Point and her captain announces that she will remain there until the sound is safe for passage.

George Bliss, Esq., was nominated for sheriff of this county at the Whig county convention held in this city yesterday. This is pleasing news for his many friends as he has filled the office in a most capable manner.

A reward of $5,000 is offered for the arrest of the thief and the recovery of the $40,000 of bank money stolen last week at the Norwich & Worcester depot. The sum of $3,000 is for recovery of the money and $2,000 for the detection of the thief. The reward is offered by several banks and notice is signed by Lyman Brewer, cashier Thames bank; Charles Johnson, president Norwich bank; Joel W. White, cashier Merchants' bank and E. H. Learned, cashier Quinebaug bank.

Thursday, March 20, 1851—Edgarton and Marshall, the burglars who raided the stores in the Apollo building entered pleas of not guilty when put to plea yesterday. They were then returned to the jail. It is now disclosed that Edgarton came to Norwich shortly before the burglary and endeavored to rent a local house. As he has now been provided with free quarters in jail the owner of the house Edgarton rented is awaiting another tenant.

The storm which has been sweeping the country played havoc along the water front in New York and Boston, causing the water to overflow the wharves and flood cellars in down town districts. Boston is tied up by snow and trains are held up. It is believed that 48 hours will pass before they can be put back onto a regular schedule.

Captain Harris of the Light Boat stationed at Edgeass Shoal, Fisher's Island, reports the number of vessels passing his boat in one year as follows—Ships, 125; brigs, 292; schooners 8,152; sloops, 12,510; steamboats 1,196; a total of 22,195.

Mr. Gwin, senator from California will receive over $11,000 constructive mileage for being presumed to travel from Washington to San Francisco and back, between 11 o'clock and noon on March 4th. Nothing in the Arabian Nights surpasses the rapidity of this journey.

Saturday, March 22, 1851—Mr. Witter, the bank messenger who was robbed some nights ago, is still in a very serious condition. The blow struck on his head just above the temple, is found to have fractured the skull. It is hoped that he will recover and doctors state that he has a good chance to do so. Slightly harder and the thief would have been a murderer as well, for the blow was evidently no gentle one.

There is so much business before the higher court that it is doubted if the trial of Edgarton and Marshall can be reached inside of a fortnight.

A new postoffice has been established at Staffordville, Conn., Tolland county, and Edward G. Hyde appointed postmaster of the first district.

Daniel Tyler of this city was nominated as Whig candidate for state senator at the convention held here yesterday.

The New London Chronicle comes out with a very delightful editorial about Lafayette S. Foster of Norwich, candidate for Governor of Connecticut and claims that the whigs of Connecticut can certainly place him in office if they get together and vote.

News from Thompson, Windham county is that a house there caught fire late at night and that three children perished, another is expected to die and the father, burned in trying to rescue the children, has slight chance to live.

Water proof shirts are now coming into style. The bosoms are made of sheet iron; and the ruffle consists of a handsaw, with the teeth set wide.

TOLD HOW AMERICAN CONSUL SAVED AMOY

PEKIN, March 23 (AP)—How an American consul, fearing that the partition of China was threatened after the Boxer uprising in 1900, maneuvered to save Amoy, its finest southern port, for China, has been told here by Captain "Tom" (T. C.) Hutchins, erstwhile naval attache to Peking.

The intimate story, never before published, discloses that American silver dollars averted a mutiny of some Chinese outlaws, effected the evacuation by the Japanese of the island of Kulangsu through a ruse in which the British consul participated and, finally, brought into being the present day international settlement in South China's great harbor.

The amount shows the practical nature of America's friendship for China and reveals the resourceful methods employed by an American consul—A. Burlingame Johnson—to befriend the ancient empire at a critical time.

China out of gratitude offered to make America a gift of the island of Kulangsu but the United States declined. China's gratitude then took the form of decorating Consul Johnson, with the order "Double Dragon of the Rising Sun." He now is a member of the California state senate, having retired after nearly 20 years in the consular service.

Captain Hutchins said that in the year of the Boxer uprising, similar disturbances were occurring in southern China but on a smaller scale. Serious trouble threatened foreign commerce in Amoy. The Japanese, having acquired the island of Formosa, landed a detachment of marines and bluejackets on the mainland. Formal protests were made by the Japanese consul and to the senior Japanese naval officer that the landing was unnecessary and an infringement of China's rights, but the Japanese stayed on. Thereupon the British and American consuls put their heads together.

Johnson suggested to Rear Admiral Henderson of the British navy and British Consul Mansfield that they land marines on the Bund adjacent to the Japanese thus complicating the international problem. Johnson would file a protest similar to that he and the British had made to the Japanese landing, then trust to complications arising which would render it advisable for both to withdraw.

The British landed marines. They hoisted the Union Jack just across the street from the Japanese and dragged field pieces to points of vantage. Then the American consul protected receiving from the British the reply that Japan had made, namely: that the Chinese government had lost control; there was no central government at Peking; it was necessary to protect nationals.

Neither Johnson nor the British believed there was any breakdown of local authority and both thought the Japanese landing was in anticipation of the partition of China. Amoy was the finest harbor in South China, nearest to Manila, and hence Johnson's anxiety that his harbor be not alienated.

Peking was in the hands of the Boxers, the legation just emerging from a long siege; the Emperor and Dowager Empress were refugees. Still the American consul protested there was no disorder in the city warranting the presence of either Japanese or British troops.

But the ruse nearly went awry. Chinese troops garrisoned there were on the verge of mutiny because their pay was in arrears.

Consul Johnson was popular with Chinese officials. They confided to him that unless they could produce immediately $40000 to pay the troops they would mutiny and loot the city. Johnson deliberated; then assured the Chinese officials he would provide the funds if certain peace and order would be maintained.

The following night some Chinese silk stores were looted but the looters were caught. The officials reported to Johnson these arrests as evidence of the potency of the Chinese government of the region. Johnson directed the matter be kept secret until after the outlaws were executed. He demanded that the excution take place at sunrise next morning.

At sun up troops, prisoners and head men assembled for the execution out at a signal, the soldiers threw down their arms, refusing to proceed unless their arrears of pay were forthcoming. It was feared they would join the looters. The American consul hastened to the scene and pledged the unruly soldiers he would bring their money to the Yamen. The outlaws were beheaded and their heads swung on poles with placards proclaiming the crime and warning others to behave.

Johnson drew on the secretary of state $40,000, which he received in silver dollars. He spent hours dividing the money into sacks of $100 each and that night supervised its delivery to the Chinese military.

Then he called a consular conference and reiterated that the troops were not necessary since order was being maintained. He cited the executions as evidence. The British promptly agreed to investigate and, if warranted, have the British force withdrawn; providing the Japanese marines were. A few weeks later both British and Japanese troops were removed simultaneously. Some months later the Chinese authorities refunded the $40,000, and made the offer of the island of Kulangsu. The McKinley administration declined to accept it and suggested concession under consular control. Kulangsu has since remained an international settlement.

A Chicago record for automobile deaths in one day, 12, was established in Chicago on the first day of spring. In addition more than a dozen persons were seriously injured in the Sunday accidents, which increased the Cook county motor death toll to 169 since January 1.

BINDLEY PROPERTY, NEW LONDON, SOLD TO MR. AND MRS. WALDO E. CLARKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Another valuable piece of property in the heretofore fashionable Pequot section, one of the show spots of the city and until this season location of the homes for the summer of out of town millionaires, passed into the hands of realty speculators today when the property on Pequot avenue, just south of Glenwood avenue, was sold by Mrs. Cornelia B Bindley, wife of Edward Bindley, Pittsburgh steel magnate, to Waldo E. and Daisy Klinck Clarke The property consists of two tracts of good size, upon which stands the former Bindley mansion. The price paid was $495,000. It is understood that the purchasers will have the tract converted into several building sites. The sale follows that of the Guthrie estate and the Schall properties, located within a short distance of the Bindley property, together with the Robert Moore property, which was taken over by realty speculators within the past few months. With them passes, at least for some time, the exclusive of the fashionable summer residential places in New London, for it is known that with the passing of the Guthrie property into possession of the speculators two of the other property owners announced that they would dispose of their property.

BANK ST. PROPERTY OWNERS OBJECT TO IMPROVEMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Now that the cost of alterations in Bank street from State street to Tilley, and the character of the work that is to be done have been officially announced, the owners of property on that street are manifesting their displeasure at the undertaking. They do not object to the city accomplishing the improvements, but they rise up in the air over the proportion of the cost that will be assessed against them. They claim not to be in favor of the method followed in the making of benefits and damages. They contend that Bank street property can not by any stretch of imagination be considered to have been benefitted by the raising of a section of the sidewalk the width of the street, nor do they admit that the cost of such taking should be borne by the owners of the property. They will not admit that any part of the expense of relaying the pavement, no matter what material is used, should be borne by the owners of real estate. It can be claimed that the city is improved by the change, the cost of it should be borne by the entire taxable property and not by those who happen to own real estate where the surface of the street is changed. They hold that the double-tracking of the street is mostly of benefit to the street railway company and that it will not bring a penny to the stores or other property on the street. In some sections of the street the walks will be narrowed to a width that will be detrimental rather than advantageous. The claim is made that when the Hollandersky building was constructed to the building line laid down by the Myers survey, the chief objection was that the sidewalk was narrowed, and that was the chief argument of the city manager in opposing the change. He argued that it was depended upon a wide entrance and that such was a positive benefit to them. Two councilmen, Messrs Streeter and May, are in opposition to the change, in that it will bring double parking in the street, they arguing that the congestion will then be greater than it has ever been. The traffic officers of the city, if they are called upon to give opinion, will declare that the removal of the trolley tracks or the making of a one-way street of Bank street is the only remedy the city has for contested conditions. The traffic officers have been pretty close observers in the matter of traffic and are deemed competent to give opinion. It is represented that the placing of the tracks at the point where Pearl street enters and leaves Bank street will occupy almost the entire highway and that there is certain to be accidents at that point. Some of the curious having business on Bank street are asking why the city a couple of years ago, laid the sidewalks ten feet or more wide on Bank street, below Howard street, when there was the opportunity of narrowing the walks there and throwing about eight or ten feet into the roadway. It is held that if a uniform width of street is made from the corner of State street to Tilley street, as proposed, the sidewalks in front of some of the stores will be reduced in width to four to five feet. It is also asked whether the Connecticut Power company will be compelled to put its poles under ground and to carry its wires in conduits, that the street may be rid of unsightly objects that have been complained about for years. Some of the poles are claimed to be set inside the curbing while others are whollyoutside and some are indeed in the gutters or what would be the gutters if any existed there. For the reasons cited it is believed that when the board of compensation and the planning board give hearings on the matter there will be some warm sessions that will be largely attended. Law suits are already hinted at for the assessment of benefits is deemed to be unjust and without reason that can be explained as fair.

Louis Cassimono, 80, one of the best known of New London's Italian residents, died suddenly early this forenoon at his home, 27 Steward street, death resulting from a heart attack, to the surprise of the members of his family, for Mr. Cassimono had never displayed symptoms of having a weakened heart. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. Joseph Carona and Mrs. J. Pizzetole, both of Italy and Mrs. S. Mono, of this city, and by two sons, Victor and Joseph Cassimono, also of New London.

Mr. Cassimono had apparently unusually good health and daily exercised about the house and in the vicinity of his home. Yesterday Mrs. Cassimono followed his daily pursuits and during the early evening was apparently as well as usual, and seemed in good spirits. He retired at his usual hour and so far as is known slept well. About 5 o'clock this morning he suffered a sinking spell, prior to rising. His condition did not improve and a physician was summoned, but in spite of medical treatment, Mr. Cassimona gradually grew worse.

Dr. George E. Bradford, New London's oldest practicing physician, is critically ill at his residence, 191 Hempstead street. Dr. Bradford is of advanced years and until a few weeks ago he conducted his practice, principally from his office, 12 Main street, in which section of the city he had had an office for a half century or more. About three weeks ago Mr. Bradford suffered an attack of weakness and has since been confined to his home. Dr. Bradford has been a conspicuous figure about the city because of his taking exercise in responding to his calls. He used a bicycle for a number of years and for the past two or three years had used a motorcycle.

Mrs. Clarence Rice and infant son, of Waterford; Mrs. Charles Gordon and infant daughter, 106 Willetts avenue; Guy Nicholns, United States coast guard destroyer Porter, state pier; Emelius Harvey, Groton; John Andrus, 356 Bank street; Mrs. Joseph Pendergast and infant son, 65 Shaw street, and George Kunitz, United States coast guard patrol boat, 230 state pier, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Louis Sinogra was held this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev Alexander Wolischlaeger. Relatives and intimate acquaintances acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Rose Forader, wife of Max Forader, 169 North Bank street, died last night at Home Memorial hospital where she had been under treatment but a comparatively short time for an affection of the heart. Besides her husband, Mrs. Forader is survived by a son.

James Manning, former driver in the employ of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell Coal company, is critically ill at his residence, 37 Colman street, having developed pneumonia several days ago. Mr. Manning, who is of advanced years contracted a severe cold and pneumonia developed. Mr. Manning retired from active work a number of years ago and had his good health until about a year ago.

Joseph Ewentz, a private at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, who was arrested in New York as a deserter a few days ago and yesterday was brought to New London under guard, was taken to Fort Wright this forenoon. He will face a court martial tomorrow or Thursday.

Many householders are rejoicing that they are getting rid of the burning of coke and bituminous coal, now that anthracite is becoming plentiful. In such weather has prevailed today the such weather as prevailed today the heat.

That the care of the streets is becoming one of the chief sources of expense for the city is becoming apparent. For several days a gang of men and teams has been patching the surface of much-travelled streets at a considerable cost. That work is of such a nature that the repairs will last but a short time, a few months at the most and then more patching must be resorted to if accidents are to be avoided. The patching is with gravel and tar, a substance that takes the shape of the street, but on which the weather and use has its effect in marked degree.

An unusual sight has been possible from Bank street the past week for at the deserted wharf north of the government pier at the custom house perhaps some 20 sea gulls are to be seen perched on the piling at the head of the wharf. The birds are splendid specimens. The shooting of them is prohibited by law so they have become somewhat tame and interpid when persons appear nearby. The birds have found food none too plentiful of late, apparently. They live on fish and the refuse thrown from steamers and other craft that move into and out of the harbor.

A large number of cases of influenza is reported in this city, and measles patients are so numerous that the doctors declare the number of cases has rarely been larger.

The city council last evening declared in resolutions its intention to construct sewers on Summer street on Pequot avenue, and on Bolles avenue.

Councilor Streeter asked for the improvement of Gardner avenue above Montauk avenue and said that this highway had not had any repairs. He urged it on the ground that the ambulance going to the hospital necessitated the improvement. He presented a petition for the work from 16 taxpayers in that vicinity.

Mayor Fox called attention to the fact that Steward street was in need of attention and said that if the ambulance went over that street with a patient for the hospital the patient would not live to get there.

Councilor Streeter asked for a report on the matter of an overhead way to Riverside Park beach and was told that the matter would be reported at the next meeting. The manager said the matter was under consideration, but that it had not been possible to report the matter last night.

The council voted to buy oil for street work to the amount of more than $9000.

The lease of property belonging to the city on Garfield avenue to the Blue Ribbon Auto Paint Shop was cancelled as the lessees had left town for parts unknown and they owed the city rent for the premises.

The council voted to buy two motorcycles for use of the police department and to turn in one used cycle in part payment.

Arthur Rudd was given permission to assign land that he has under lease at Ocean beach to the Bank of Commerce. He has agreed under the terms of his lease to erect certain bathing houses on the land and that the houses so erected shall become the property of the city at the expiration of a 20-year lease.

More than the usual nur ber of cottages were contemplated in requests to the council this evening for building permits. All permits were granted. There were 19 requests and they include permits for several two-story cottages and garages.

QUINN SUES BONDSMAN FOR FATHER-IN-LAW'S DEATH

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Before the superior court in this city tomorrow the case of Quinn vs. Frank Scialabba, an action in damage, will come to trial. The suit grows out of the death of Quinn's father-in-law who fell over a veranda on the back porch of a building owned by Scialabba, on lower Bank street. The veranda railing is alleged to have been decayed and when the father-in-law leaned on it the railing broke and the man was thrown to the ground, sustaining injuries that proved fatal. The peculiar feature of the case is that Quinn is bound over to the superior cour for violation of the liquor law and Scialabba is the surety on his bond.

EAST LYME MAN BLAMED FOR THREE-CORNERED CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Samuel Bindloss, of East Lyme, will be in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the automobile laws, it being alleged that he was responsible for a three-cornered crash on Bank street this forenoon. Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who investigated the accident, ordered Bindloss to present himself in court.

Bindloss was operating his machine, a commercial car through Bank street, just south of Pearl street and because of the manner in which he is alleged to have handled the car, the machine became involved in a collision with a machine owned and driven by Louis Kitsis, 341 Bank stret and a touring car, the property of the federal government and operated by Archie Blatchford, of the United States Marine corps, submarine base. Both Kitsis and Blatchford declared that Bindloss was responsible for the crash. All three cars were damaged.

United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran is in Detroit, Mich., where he will remain several days in connection with the business of his office.

Miss Cecelia Golart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Golart, 34 Grove street, a student at Chapman Technical high school, is a patient at the private hospital, where she underwent an operation Monday for acute appendicitis.

Harold R. Starr has returned to his home on Williams street, having passed the greater part of the winter in Florida.

Miss Agnes Hadleigh has returned to Brooklyn, N Y., having spent several days with her mother, Mrs. William Wadleigh, of Granite street.

The sailors' automobile which went over the Winthrop street embankment was hoistered back to terra firma Tuesday morning by the wrecker from the Bank street garage. Twisted steering gear was the principal damage to the machine.

SAWED 18 CORDS OF WOOD IN A DAY OF 6 1-2 HOURS

I. M. Jones, E. W. Jones, Bradford Jones and Mr. Wheeler hung up a record at sawing wood at Woodland stock farm, on a recent day, sawing 18 cords of wood into stove lengths in 6 and 1-2 hours. Some of the wood was in 8-foot lengths. The larger portion was cord wood four feet long and was sawed three times through. Belt power was furnished by tractor. In the old days of working up the wood-pile by hand, two men with a cross-cut saw that could reduce two cord of fire wood into stove lengths were considered as doing a good day's work

Breed Theater

Rocking Moon which heads the double feature bill at the Breed theater today and tomorrow brings to the screen the first Alaskan story actually filmed in Alaska. Director Melford and his staff of players and studio technicians spent six weeks in and around Juneau, Sitka and other Alaskan cities filming this story, written by Barrett Willoughby and it carries with it the stamp of approval, not only of the author, but of the prominent citizens, or Sitka and Juneau as well, many of whom are seen in the Alaskan scenes of the production.

Lilyan Tashman, John Bowers Rockcliffe Fellowes and Laska Winter have the featured roles and in the support are Luke Cosrrove, Eugene Pallette and Evelyn Selbie. The background of the story are the blue fox farming industry and the expose of fox poachers There are many thrills in the development of the story.

For the second feature Florence Vidor will be seen in The Girl of Gold.

This is a sensational photoplay of society life with many unusual situations and spectacular scenes one of which is a society ball staged on the sixteenth level of a gold mine.

Malcolm McGregor has the leading masculine role opposite Miss Vidor. The supporting cast includes Alan Hoscoe, Claire De'Brey, Bessie Eyton and Charles French.

The Fox news completes this big double bill.

Broadway Theater

His employer had bet every cent he possessed on the Roman riding race at the Calgary Stampede. Yet he Don Q's champion rider could save him. Unfortunately he was wanted for murder and to win the race would disclose his identity. His sweetheart whose father he was accused of killing was among the spectators, and members of the Royal Mounted police with accurate descriptions of him were patrolling the race track.

Yet he entered the race.

This is the thrilling climax of The Calgary Stampede a Universal-Jewel starring Hoot Gibson which will be screened at this theater beginning Thursday.

An exceptionally good cast supports Gibson while his director, Herbert Blanche is recognized as one of the outstanding Western producers.

The cast includes: Virginia Brown Faire, Clark Comstock, Ynes Seabury, Jim Corey, W. J. McCulley, Philo McCullough, Charles Dallon, Ena Gregory Frank Rice, Tex Young and Bill Gillis.

There will also be five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville of exceptional merit featuring the great comedy act The Hicksville Four.

Palace Theatre

Rin-Tin-Tin again. This time the Warner Bros. "wonder-dog" is appearing in "Below the Line", which, according to all reports, affords the most thrilling entertainment of any picture the four-footed star has had since he startled the screen world with "Where the North Begins."

The new picture, which comes to the Palace theatre on Thursday for a run of three days, is featured by a fight between Rin-Tin-Tin and a pack of bloodhounds; a fight said to be so ferociously realistic that the producers had the forethought to obtain a testimonial from the Santa Monica Humane society to the effect that the fight was filmed without any injury to the dogs involved.

Another thrilling feature promised is the fight between John Harron, as Rin-Tin-Tin's owner, and Pat Hartigan, as a man-killing villain. Not since Richard Barthelmess and Ernest Torrence battled in the cabin of "Tol'able David" has there been a more blood-pumping combat, according to the reviewers in other cities.

But the picture is not all fights and terror. There is pretty romance, with John Harron as the romantic boy and June Marlowe as the sentimental girl, and Charles Conklin, in a comedy role, is reported to have made the laugh hit of his career.

SCOUT NEWS

Troop 1 held its regular weekly meeting at the chamber of commerce rooms last Friday night, winding up their indoor work early so several of the Scouts could pass their observation tests. The troop is planning a hike to Cuchegan Rock on the 7th of this month and in the meantime are busy making their collections of tent caterpillars.

Troop 1 of Plainfield met last Thursday night. Action was taken on the bulletin recently sent out and the troop is entering into the work very enthusiastically.

The monthly report meeting of Troop 20 was held last Friday night After notices and announcements were read the troop got out on an Indian skirmish hike, led by Mr. Wyant. Mr. Wyant explained various Indian tactics and then demonstrated to the Scouts the method of walking through the woods in single file and to approach a given spot in skirmish order without being noticed. The troop covered about two miles and then returned to the troop cabin.

Scoutmaster Hill of Troop 5 reports good test work on the part of the Scouts of the troop. The troop meets on Tuesday night and has an attractive programme.

The Scouts of Troop 26 are rapidly learning their Tenderfoot tests and will soon be registered. The turnout of boys for the troop meetings has been so large that it was considered advisable to divide into two troops meeting on different nights, and this plan will be carried out as soon as another scoutmaster is secured.

On Monday afternoon Scoutmaster Wyant while passing over the Jewett City road in Taftville noticed a very lively forest fire burning and only a few men on hand working to put it out. Mr. Wyant immediately phoned about headquarters and in three-quarters of an hour 14 Scouts were on hand to help with the work. The fire had been gotten under control however, before the Scouts reached the spot, and there was nothing for them to do. Scouts from Troops 1, 12 and 20 responded and a number of the boys hiked home, making a collection of big masses of tent caterpillars on the way. The Scouts of Troop 20 secured about three hundred, which will make their total to date about two thousand. Troop 1 secured in the neighborhood of two hundred to the present time, and it is still a bit early for the rest of the troops to be heard from. The Scouts who have made collections report they have not covered nearly all of their territory and that their troop collections will run high into the thousands before they finish. All of the troops are planning hikes for the coming Saturday for collection purposes.

Investigation of the mergers of the Tidewater Oil company and the Associated Oil company and of the Standard Oil company of New York with the General Petroleum company have been undertaken by the department of justice.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two weeks I got relief. I continued using them and in three months I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Mary S. F. Riley, 8 Dewey St., Maynard, Mass., Oct. 15, 1925.

SLUMP IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Development of acute weakness in the mail order and merchandising shares turned the course of today's stock market downward after an opening display of strength. Further calling of bank loans which sent the call money rate from 4 1-2 to 5 per cent. also helped to damen bullish enthusiasm. The average of 20 leading industrial issues touched a new low level for the year. Trading showed a marked falling off in volume. The day's sales aggregating 1,325,000 shares.

Selling of the mail order stocks which originated with bear traders apparently proceeded on the theory that business of those companies would quickly reflect the decreased purchasing power of the farmers as a recent decline in grain prices. Sears Roebuck, which had been bid up to 196 1-4, soon after the opening, broke to 95, closing slightly above that figure for a net decline of 9 points on the day. Montgomery Ward dropped 3 points to 66. In each case the bottom price was a new low record for the year.

Weakness of the mail order stocks brought fresh selling into the merchandising and chain store issues which was accelerated by reports of slowing up of retail trade in some sections of the country. Gimbel Brothers, Weber and Hellbroner, R. H. Macy and May department stores showed extreme declines of 2 to 4 1-2 points.

Motor shares also forfeited part of their recent gains although they did not break below the low levels established last week. Hudson was hammered down over 3 points to 89 3-4, closing just about that price, and General Motors, Mack Trucks, Pierce Arrow preferred and Stewart-Warner at a point or two.

A rather thin market developed for most of the large priced industrial specialties. Amerada, then broke 11 points to 174 and then rallied a point. Coca Cola Commercial Solvents A. Famous Players, General, Texas, National Tea, United States Industrial Pipe and Woolworth all fell 2 to 5 points.

Rail shares were freely offered as a result of the further drop in commodity prices and favorable dividend rate. American Beet Sugar sagged 3 to 36 1-2, Cuba Cane preferred 2 to 29 5-8 and Punta Alegre 1-2 point, all new low records for the year.

Reflection of some traders that the market had been thoroughly liquidated for the time being as a result of last week's reaction led to assumption of bullish operations in several industrials issues when the market opened, but these were quickly abandoned when the mail order shares broke. Among the dozen or more stocks to show net gains of a point or more on the day were American Brown Boveri preferred, Market Street Railway, National Supply, Owens Bottle, People's Gas and Pullman.

Railroad shares, particularly of the investment type, presented several points of strength. Union Pacific advanced a point of 145 1-2 on publication of the February earnings statement, showing net operating income of $1,756,099 as compared with $1,539,245 in the same months last year. Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred each advanced over 3 points to within a point of the year's highs.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices rallied about 2 cents a bushel on short covering. Cotton sagged 8 to 11 points on reports of a poor spot demand. Raw sugar eased to new low records for the season on increased offerings of the duty free product, but the futures were irregular. Coffee prices were firmer.

Renewed heaviness of French francs which sold 3.50 cents to the lowest level in two years featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly higher around $4.85 15-16. Argentine pesos were heavy. Other changes were largely nominal.

JUDGE BROWN DENIES MOTION TO SET ASIDE $2,500 VERDICT

Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court denied on Tuesday a motion to set aside the $2,500 verdict made by David Feiden of Colchester, one of the defendants in the suit of Abraham Simonowkz of Colchester against Feiden and Lorenzo D. Fairbrother of Stonington. The jury gave a verdict for $2,500 against both defendants, whom Simonowitz was suing for injuries he received when he was riding with Feiden in the cab of Feiden's truck at the time it was in collision Feb. 16, 1925 at Frasers Corners, Salem, with an automobile owned by Fairbrother.

The jury verdict was rendered on March 9, 1926. Feiden moved to have the verdict set aside and Judge Brown handed down his decision on this motion Tuesday, filing the memorandum of decision with the clerk of the court, Judge George E. Parsons.

Judge Brown's memorandum of decision is as follows:

The jury's verdict awarded damages to the plaintiff, who was a passenger in the defendant Feiden's auto truck, against both defendants, for his personal injuries received by a collision of the truck with the defendant Fairbrother sedan at a right angled intersection of roads.

While the motion of the defendant Feiden is, to set aside the verdict "as against the evidence and is excessive," upon the argument his counsel expressly conceded that the verdict was not excessive, and rested the motion solely upon the contention that the plaintiff upon the evidence was contributorily negligent as a matter of law and so can not be allowed to recover.

Unless the evidence is such that as a matter of law it must be concluded, first, that the plaintiff failed to exercise the care of an ordinarily prudent man under the circumstances existing, and also second, that such lack of care was a part of the proximate cause of the collision, the defendant Feiden can not prevail upon this motion. It is my decision that neither the first nor the second conclusion can be had upon the evidence.

The jury might well have found that the plaintiff was singly a gratuitous passenger riding with Feiden at the latter's request to show where a certain man lived some distance beyond the place of accident, that he had no authority, control or right of control over the defendant's car or the latter's operation of it, that he had known Feider for some two years as a licensed and experienced driver of a registered automobile, that at the time in question the plaintiff sat on the right end of the driver's seat of Feiden's truck, that one Stein sat between the plaintiff and Feiden who was driving, that all three were enclosed in the cab of the truck with its right door closed, that the truck was proceeding along a straight, wide state road at a very moderate speed of 20 miles an hour or less, that the plaintiff was looking straight ahead and was engaged in conversation with Stein, that there was no reason for the plaintiff to discover that Feiden was driving or to anticipate that he would drive other than in a careful and prudent manner or that he would not keep a proper lookout and that the first the plaintiff knew of the approach of the Fairbrother car was when the impact occured. Under such circumstances it cannot be said as a matter of law that the plaintiff was negligent.

The jury might well have further found that the Fairbrother car as it approached the place of collision was proceeding at a speed of some 40 miles per hour, that its speed was increased if anything, rather than slackened just before the impact, and that had the plaintiff kept a most diligent and exclusive lookout to his right, by reason of the restricted view at this corner, he could not have discovered the approaching Fairbrother car (just as Feiden testified he was unable to discover it though looking out), and warned the defendant Feiden thereof in time to have prevented the collision.

The defendant Feiden's motion to set aside the virdict is denied.

GIVES $714.94 JUDGMENT FOR LESTER-WASLEY CO.

A judgment for $714.94 in favor of the Lester & Wasley Co., in a suit against the Turner-Stanton Co., all of this city, has been handed down by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court where the suit was tried recently.

The suit was brought on a claim for building two winding machines for the defendant company. The defendant's claim was that the machines could not be used for the purpose for which they were intended.

In the memorandum of decision Judge Waller says:

I find that the defendant requested the plaintiff to manufacture for it two standard type winding machines and that the plaintiff in accordance with such request completed and delivered the machines to the defendant and that said machines were reasonably fitted for the work for which they were designed and were capable of reasonably performing such work.

The machines were manufactured ... and express agreement as to ... to be paid therefor.

I find ... in the design and ... of the two machines ... used materials of the value ... and that the time of the designers and mechanics which entered into the construction of the ... amounted to 489 hours. I find ... the charge of $1.35 per hour for ... work is a reasonable charge.

The defendant's third defense ... proved.

Judgment may be entered for ... in favor of defendant.

SUIT FOR BILL FOR REPAIR WORK DONE

Suit has been brought in the superior court here by Walter E. Dunlap of Franklin, N. H., against Harry Trefes of Stonington on a claim for $2,000 damage for work done by the plaintiff in repairing and remodeling two store buildings in Franklin, N. H. The work was done between April 15, 1924 and the present time, and it is claimed was worth $2,786.13, on which $1,500 has been paid, leaving a balance due and unpaid, together with interest of $1,000.

It is claimed that the work was done for the defendant, Trefes, and his co-partners, Harry E. Patch and James Giannestras, who were in business in Franklin, N. H., under the firm name of H. E. Patch & Co.

INTOXICATION CASES DREW FINES IN COURT

Five intoxication cases and one case of violation of the liquor law were disposed of in the city court Tuesday morning by Judge Arthur E. Libby. Three men paid fines for intoxication, one went to jail and another was given an opportunity of leaving town.

New London Ship & Engine Co., Groton, employer, and George Goodyear, employe, hernia, Oct., 1925, at rate of $9.50.

Tooker & Rooney, Lyme, employer, and Arthur Daniels, employer, slight injury to back, Jan. 13, at rate of $14.

Robert H. Montgomery & Son, Norwich, employer, and W. P. Lillie, 4 Cliff street, employe, injured foot, Nov. 25, at rate of $11.50.

JUDGMENT IS GIVEN FOR REPAIRING AUTOMOBILE

A judgment for $88.94 in favor of William R. Frisbie against Jens and Raymond Christiansen, all of Norwich has been rendered by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court. The suit was for $200 for a bill of repairs on an automobile.

In the memorandum of the case, Judge Waller says: "I find that the plaintiff rendered the services and furnished the materials itemized in the bill of particulars and that the charges therefor are reasonable. I find that the work upon the cranks case, commencing with the item dated Dec. 22, was of such nature and performed under such circumstances that it became the duty of the plaintiff to notify the defendant when the cost of the labor exceeded $50 and to obtain written authority for the expenditure of any sum in excess of $50. I have therefore limited recovery in plaintiff's balance items to the amount of $50.

I find that the services and materials for which the plaintiff is entitled to recover, without interest, amount to $50.94.

Judgment may be entered in favor of defendants the sum of $88.94."

The defendants set up in a counterclaim that the work rendered was done in an unworkmanlike manner, etc., and claimed $500 damages.

JAIL FOR TOLLAND YOUTH VIOLATED MOTOR LAWS

Henry Gottier, 20, of Tolland was sentenced to ten days in the Tolland jail, for violation of the motor vehicle laws. A fine of $100 and costs of $11.26 was also imposed by Judge Fisk in Rockville city court.

Gottier was charged with driving a motor vehicle under a suspended license when arrested at 8 p. m., March 17 by Patrolman Walter Burke. The next morning he denied receiving notice of his suspension and the case was continued until Monday. Miss Mary J. Cairns, of the suspension section of the motor vehicle department, appeared in court with Gottier's record. He received the notice at 7:10 p. m. by registered mail, on the evening he was arrested. This suspension resulted from his conviction in the Rockville court on the charges of speeding and driving without a license on February 28 last. In the meantime he had secured a license. Miss Cairns testified that young Gottier had been before court three times for violating the motor vehicle laws in Rockville, Ellington and Hartford, and that he also was involved in four accidents.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS HIGH STREET TENEMENT

Melk Nizeolek, a man about 60 years old, who had the nickname of Flatfoot Mike in police circles, was found dead about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in a small tenement where he lived alone in the lower part of the house, No. 27 High street. A large glass jar, partly filled with moonshine liquor, was on a shelf in the room, and Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, who was called, pronounced death due to alcohol poisoning.

Nizeolek was last seen alive about noon, when a woman acquaintance living at 99 West Main street, who knew he was not feeling well brought him some coffee. About 3:30 she sent her son to the High street house to see how the man was. When the boy went in, he saw Nizeolek flat on his back on the floor behind the stove. The boy summoned Dr. Boris J. Sohn, who found the man dead, and notified the medical examiner, who gave permission for Shea & Burke to take charge of the body after he had completed his investigation.

Sergeant Myron O. Morgan remained in charge at the tenement while awaiting the arrival of the undertaker to remove the body. Nizeolek formerly lived in the Falls section but had recently moved to the High street tenement.

MALEVOLENT DISCUSSION OF PROHIBITION IN HOUSE

Tense Debate Resulted in Representative O'Connor Denouncing Statement Attributed to Dr. Clarence True Walker, of the Methodist Board of Morals "a Deliberate Dastardly Canard"—O'Connor Was Aroused by Press Clipping Quoting Dr. Wilson as Saying That Before Prohibition the "Rum Element" Controlled Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 24—(AP)—Prohibition debate reached the point today in the house where the old-fashioned word "liar" came into play with members edging forward in their seats like a crowd watching the end of a close race.

The prohibition enforcement unit and the department of justice became entangled in the melee and finally the unusual situation was created where the sergeant-at-arms was forced to issue a formal statement on the subject at issue—whether in wet days his chief duty was to drag drunks off the house floor.

Representative La Guardia, progressive-socialist, New York, started the battle of words by charging that Franklin L. Dodge, formerly a justice department investigator, had attempted to dispose of $200,000 worth of liquor permits obtained from the wife of George Remus, convicted Cincinnati bootlegger, and it did not end until Representative O'Connor, democrat, New York, had called Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist Board of Morals, a liar.

Dr. Wilson was quoted by O'Connor as having asserted congressmen in prohibition days gave the sergeant-at-arms a hard task to perform, and as having said his information came from the sergeant-at-arms. Rogers, extricated himself from the situation by saying he did not and had come to work in the house since prohibition became effective.

In making his charges, Representative La Guardia asserted that a general dry law enforcement investigation should be made and that the prohibition unit and the justice department would be a good place to start it. A speech of effort was made, he said, to keep Remus in the Atlanta prison although the government had accepted a court ruling under which his associates obtained freedom.

"When a United States official," he added, "and one who was a prominent investigator in the department of justice, leaves the government service to go into the bootlegging business, and to traffic the very same goods for which others were convicted and sent to jail, it is about time that congress take notice."

Representative O'Connor resented especially a press clipping quoting Dr. Wilson as saying that before prohibition the "rum element" controlled congress.

"It's a lie," he shouted; "it's a deliberate, dastardly canard."

Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, objected to O'Connor referring to a minister of the gospel in such language and demanded that the remarks be eliminated from the congressional record. He later withdrew objections upon request of Representative Madden, republican, Illinois.

Representative Celler, democrat, New York, both in a statement and on the floor, assailed Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon league, for his attitude toward District Attorney Buckner of New York, who has urged a referendum on the dry law in that state.

He accused Mr. Wheeler of being "drunk with his power over a lot of maudlin women and mawkish prohibitionists."

Meanwhile, wet members in congress prepared at a conference called tonight at the home of Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, to draft a program for modification of the dry law, to be pushed simultaneously in both house and senate.

It was explained that up to the present no concerted move has been made for modification.

ANOTHER HEAVY BREAK IN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP) — A deluge of selling orders broke upon the floor of the New York stock exchange today and prices of scores of active issues were carried down 3 to 12 points as stocks were thrown overboard in seeming disregard of quoted values. Judged by the average of 20 leading industrial issues, which dropped 4 points to a new low record for the year, the decline was even more drastic than that of any single session in the sensational series of slumps earlier in the month when the extreme drop for a single day was an even 8 points on March 2.

Total sales, as compiled by the Associated Press tabulators, were 2,500,000 shares, more than double those of Wednesday, but over a million below the record breaking total of 3,785,700 shares on March 3. An idea of the general nature of the decline may be gained from the fact that of the 557 individual issues traded in, only 44 showed net gains on the day, all but one of which were of a fractional nature.

The selling movement was attributed to a variety of causes, the callings of about $35,000,000 in bank loans, which sent the call money rate to 8 per cent., forcing speculators to pay higher rates for stocks carried on long accounts undoubtedly was a factor, but it was not the only one as small markets have been successfully conducted with money rates at even higher levels. This calling of loans also was interpreted as an indication that banks were attempting to force a further reduction in loans on stock and bond collateral, which have been the cause of some uneasiness since the revelation about a month ago that over $3,500,000,000 had been employed for this purpose. This figure has since been substantially reduced.

SENATE REJECTED LONG AND SHORT HAUL BILL

WASHINGTON, March 24—(AP)—The senate today rejected 46 to 33, the Pooling long and short haul bill.

Thus representatives of the Inter-Mountain territory again lost in their forty year fight to prevent trans-continental carriers from granting a lower rate for hauls to Pacific coast ports than to intermediate points.

Two years ago the senate passed a similar measure, 64 to 23, but it failed of action in the house.

Senators from every section of the country were divided on the measure, which was non-partisan in nature.

The recent decision of the interstate commerce commission denying seven trans-continental railroads permission to invoke the long and short haul principle in rate revisions to permit them to meet water transportation competition was cited repeatedly by opponents of the bill as evidence that it was not necessary.

Proponents of the bill on the other hand charged during debate that "a powerful railroad lobby" was at work to defeat it. Senator Gooding, of Idaho, who introduced it declared that if the bill were defeated, the railroad lobby must be credited with accomplishing this objective, but many senators held the interstate commerce commission's rate making discretionary powers should not be transferred to congress.

YOUTH ON BICYCLE WAS KILLED BY MOTOR TRUCK

STAMFORD, March 24—(AP)—Walter Allen, 16, of Port Chester, N. Y., died in the Stamford hospital tonight from injuries received in an accident at noon. The boy was riding his bicycle down Main street hill when the machine collided with an automobile truck operated by Patsy Smeriglio and owned by the Genovese Coal and Mason Supply company. One wheel of the truck passed over the boy's body.

Another boy riding on the handle bars of the bicycle disappeared apparently unhurt. His name was not learned.

Smeriglio, who was operating the truck without a license, was arrested tonight charged with manslaughter pending an investigation by Coroner John J. Phelan.

HOUSE SIDETRACKS THE ALL-AMERICAN CANAL PROPOSAL

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—Republican house leaders flatly refused today to give legislative right of way at the present time to consideration of the all-American canal proposal that would link the Great Lakes with the Atlantic via the Hudson river.

At the same time it was disclosed that Henry Ford looks favorably both upon this proposal and one to connect the lakes and the Atlantic by a channel down the St. Lawrence river.

W. B. Mayo, head of the Ford Motor corporation, in a letter to Chairman Dempsey, of the house rivers and harbors committee, said the all-American route would serve the central west as a whole and had the advantage of being free from ice for one month longer each year than the other, but he also endorsed the St. Lawrence project.

The action of republican leaders was taken at a republican steering committee meeting held after Representatives Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican leader, had visited the white house and conferred with President Coolidge.

Mr. Tilson said it was considered that the all-American proposal was too large a project to be taken up except under an agreement that would permit ample time for its debate in the house Rep. Dempsey, republican, New York, chairman of the house rivers and harbors committee, indicated he would try to get the all-American plan before the house in some way.

MAY CONFISCATE PROPERTIES OF FORMER GERMAN RULERS

BERLIN, March 24.—(AP)—Germany will hold a national plebiscite to decide whether the Reich and its component states shall confiscate without compensation the properties of the former ruling houses.

An official estimate published today showed that 12,500,000 voters have entered their names on lists demanding the submission to the Reichstag of a bill providing for such confiscation. This is 8,500,000 more than the number of signatures necessary to compel the Reichstag to act on such a measure. Should the Reichstag fail to adopt this bill, as it seems likely that it must, the decision must next be submitted to a national plebiscite. In such a plebiscite 50 per cent of the total electorate, or roughly 20,000,000 voters, must take part in order to make the plebiscite's decision effective.

The results achieved by the anti-monarchists in their campaign for support of the plebiscite petitions has caused surprise even in the ranks of the committee which conducted the campaign, made up of socialists, communists, pacificists and liberals.

CANADA WOULD ENFORCE THE WATERWAYS TREATY

OTTAWA, March 24—(AP)—T. L. Church, conservative member from Toronto, presented a motion in the house of commons this afternoon urging that immediate and drastic action should be taken by Canada through the British government to enforce the boundary waterways treaty with the United States and to collect damages forthwith from America for alleged breaches of the treaty by diversion of water for the Chicago drainage canal.

Mr. Church declared that the treaty has been treated as a scrap of paper by the United States government with the acquiescence of the Dominion government.

83 LIVES WERE LOST WHEN BRAZILIAN STEAMER SANK

RIO JANEIRO, March 24—(AP)—Eighty passengers, the captain and the first and second engineers of the Brazilian river steamer Pass de Carvalho perished when the steamer sank in the Solimoes river, one of the upper fork of the Amazon near Manaos, according to dispatches received here today. The disaster was caused by an explosion.

Seventy-eight passengers and several members of the crew were rescued.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

A NEW PLAN IN GERMANY FOR REPARATIONS PAYMENTS

BERLIN, March 24—(AP)—To insure future payments in accordance with the Dawes reparations plan, Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, speaking before the German Colonial society tonight, warmly advocated the formation of a private chartered company on a large scale with the grant of suitable former colonial territory. He declared that payments of raw products through this body would be of a nature acceptable to all the allied countries.

DAY AND NIGHT HEARINGS BY AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—Day and night sessions for farm relief hearings will be held hereafter by the house agriculture committee in an effort to get legislation into congress before adjournment.

The committee decided on this today after members had urged that some way be found to expedite the testimony. Representative Jones, democrat, Texas, made an attempt to have the hearings closed in order to consider a bill but the other members held that those wanting to be heard should be given an opportunity.

Meanwhile, the delegations representing national and middle western farm organizations, here urging a measure to assess an equalization fee upon certain crops to provide a fund for marketing the surplus, arranged to appear before the senate agriculture committee Monday. It is not expected that the delegation will have completed its case in the house at that time, but several witnesses can be detached to testify before the senate committee.

Action on night session of the house committee came after a sharp discussion between republican and democratic members. Representative Kincheloe, democrat, Kentucky, drew fire from the majority side of the table when he said the republicans were "awaiting orders from the other end of the avenue", meaning the white house.

THREE YOUTHS ARRESTED FOR EIGHT ROBBERIES

NEW YORK, March 24—(AP)—Four youths, three of whom police say have admitted participation in eight robberies, in one of which a man was shot and killed, were arrested today in a raid on a rooming house at 123 East 84th street. A young woman, the wife of one of the youths, was arrested as a material witness.

Herbert Roerber, Richard Daunt and James Green, were charged with homicide. The first two are 17 years old and Green is 19. John Roerber, 18 brother of Herbert, was charged with robbery and violation of the Sullivan anti-weapon law, and Mrs. Norah Green, wife of James, was held as a material witness. The police say she accompanied the youths on several of their robbery expeditions.

Detectives had been trailing the youths for some time. They had not been at the 84th street house since Sunday, when a restaurant in Jamaica, L. I., was robbed and the proprietor killed. Police said the prisoners admitted participation in the robbery, but denied all knowledge of the shooting. The prisoners said they had gone to a farm at Danbury, Conn., where they stayed with relatives of the Roerber boys until today.

Four pistols, a quantity of ammunition, several masks and about $1,500 in loot was seized in the raid. Police placed the total value of their robberies at about $4,000.

SCENE OF AFFECTION AT LEITER WILL CONTEST CASE

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP)—The love of two sisters for each other today rose above the legal and financial differences which divided them five years ago when the Countess of Suffolk and Errka, Mrs. Colin Campbell, ranged upon either side in a bitter lawsuit over administration of the estate of Levi Z. Leiter, their father, embraced and kissed.

The scene was the court room of Judge Denis E Sullivan, who will pass upon Lady Suffolk's plea for the removal, as a trustee of the estate, of her brother, Joseph Leiter.

Leiter, with whom Mrs. Campbell has aligned herself, caught in the whirl of family affection, crossed the room, smiling widely, and grasped Lady Suffolk's hand. They chatted a few minutes in whispers and parted smilingly.

It was the first such gesture since the suit was called for hearing a week ago. Each day Leiter and Mrs. Campbell have sat upon one side of the room and Lady Suffolk upon the other, the rift apparently as wide as at any time since 1921, when Mrs. Campbell wrote to the countess that their paths would divide if Lady Suffolk persisted in her accusations of high-handed mismanagement and neglect of duty against Leiter.

TO BE TRIED IN COURT OF WHICH HE WAS CLERK

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 24.—(AP)—Thomas F. Conlin, charged with embezzling $6,316, will be arraigned here tomorrow in the district court where he served as clerk for 14 years. Conlin resigned February 24 after an audit disclosed a shortage in his accounts. He was arrested today soon after the appointment of his successor, Leland C. Talbot, was announced at the state house in Boston.

Auditors from the office of Theodore N. Waddell, state director of accounts, discovered the shortage in Conlin's office and at the request of Attorney General Benton, Governor Fuller asked for the clerk's resignation. At that time Conlin made restitution to James H. Taylor, who was appointed clerk pro tem.

Besides embezzlement Conlin is charged with larceny from the city of Pittsfield and the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CANADA INVESTIGATING EXPORT FREIGHT RECORDS

OTTAWA, March 24—(AP)—Outward freight records which were under investigation by the parliamentary committee which is inquiring into charges against the department of customs were stolen last night from the freight house of the Boston and Maine railroad at Rock Island, Quebec, near the Vermont border, the committee was informed today.

R. L. Calder told the committee he had received a telegram reporting that the freight house had been broken into and records covering the period 1921-25 removed. The telegram urged measures to protect other records on both sides of the border. The committee authorized Mr. Calder to communicate with the commissioner of Canadian Mounted Police with a view to securing the necessary police protection.

More Evidence in Gem Robbers Case

Leader Whittemore Positively Identified as a Member of Gang Which Killed Two Guards.

NEW YORK, March 24—(AP)—Police claimed today that the chain of evidence was wound more tightly around Richard Reese Whittemore, alleged murderer and leader of a gang of nine persons which perpetrated robberies yielding loot aggregating one million dollars.

Already wanted in Baltimore for murder in connecticton with his escape from prison, Whittemore was positively identified as a member of a gang which killed two guards and stole $93,000 from an armored car in Buffalo last October.

Anthony Paladino, a member of Whittemore's gang was identified late today as having taken part in the robbery by the same witnesses that identified Whittemore. They picked Paladino from a line-up of eleven persons.

The police investigation was halted only long enough to have Whittemore, his wife, known as the "Tiger Girl," and three of his confederates arraigned on charges of robbery. They deferred pleading until Friday and were held without bail.

Whittemore, who is known by the police to have profited heavily from his work, surprised the court when he asked that counsel be appointed for him, as he was without funds.

Mrs. Whittemore and the three others announced they had counsel. These three were "Shuffles" Goldberg, and Jacob and Leon Kraemer.

The hundreds of bits of information received by the police were partially coordinated by an alleged detailed confession by Anthony Paladino, another member of the gang, who was said by them to have described in detail a dozen large robberies in the past year, but the police did not make known whether his confession founded on the Buffalo robbery.

Much of the confession was not given out, as the police still are seeking one member of the robber band. However, it tended to clear partially one of the largest jobs of the gang, the police said.

This was the robbery of two jewelers at Fifth avenue and Forty-Eighth street, in which the value of the stolen diamonds was given as $100,000. Paladino was quoted by the police as saying that seven persons got $11,000 each from the sale of the gems, through a "fence," which made the police believe that the value of the jewels might have been near a half million dollars.

Other details of the confession recounted how the band had apartments in fashionable districts of the city and their methods of meeting, selling their loot, and dividing the profits. Their activities, he said, even included the purchase of an expensive, high-powered automobile, in which all shared equally.

The confession was made at the home of Assistant District Attorney Charles J. Garrison.

The investigations of the police today had the co-operation of officials from both Baltimore and Buffalo. The Baltimore officers were here to learn the attitude of local officials concerning the proposed extradition of Whittemore to Baltimore for trial on the murder charge.

Commissioner McLaughlin assured them that there would be no objection to turning Whittemore over to Baltimore, if it was certain that he would have a speedy trial and, in event of conviction, a quick execution.

Action on the extradition has been held up, however, pending the clearing up of local crimes attributed to Whittemore and his lieutenants.

Chief of Detectives Roche of Buffalo also arrived today with the witnesses who identified Whittemore in connection with the robbery and slayings there. This development was said in official quarters to make it possible that Whittemore might be kept here for trial.

The last arrest in the case occurred last night when William G. Unkelback of Cleveland was taken into custody. The police said he confessed being a drug addict, having paid $1,000 for a "sixty days' supply", and they also alleged that his statements had implicated him in several of the major robberies of the band.

SENATOR NORBECK WINS SOUTH DAKOTA PRIMARY

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 24—(AP)—The South Dakota primary which swept Senator Peter Norbeck, republican, into re-nomination, gave him the largest vote that has ever been cast for an individual in a senatorial nominating election in this state.

In 1,363 of the state's 1,598 precincts, the senator had 46,232 votes against 21,875 for his opponent, George J. Danforth, Sioux Falls attorney.

Although Danforth is considered a "stalwart" republican and Senator Norbeck a progressive, he declared his nomination was a victory for farm relief legislation rather than for progressivism over "old line" republicans. The victory of Governor Carl Gunderson, republican, over C. E. Coyne, Fort Pierre, for renomination, was hardly less impressive. In the 1,363 precincts, Gunderson polled 41,842 votes against 27,003 for Coyne.

The democrats apparently have nominated W. J. Bulow, Beresford, a "Jeffersonian", for the gubernatorial nomination in preference to R. O. Richards, who until this year was a republican for four decades.

T. W. Page Attacks Flexible Tariff Law

Claims Business Feels Itself Under Constant Threat and Cannot Make Future Operations.

WASHINGTON, March 24—(AP)—The flexible provision of the tariff law was attacked as a threat and as a deterrent to business by Thomas Walker Page, former chairman of the tariff commission, in testimony today before the special senate committee investigating administration of the law.

The charge also was made that President Harding had sought to influence the selection of members of the commission staff and became "very angry" when he failed to get the commission to accept his candidate for the job of secretary.

The principle of the flexible tariff is all wrong, the former democratic chairman asserted. Tariff should not be flexible but should be established by fixed rates set by congress, he held.

"Business feels that it is under a constant threat and cannot make future operations," he added. "It has a deterrent to business and adds a speculative element that is highly undesirable. It has subjected the president to the charge of tinkering or refusing to tinker with the tariff for political reasons."

During the entire four years of its operation, he declared there had been only two reductions in tariff rates, one on live "bob-white quail" and the other on mill feed.

Pressed by Senator La Follette, progressive-republican, Wisconsin, for an explanation on his charges of white house influence over staff appointments, the witness said that President Harding had sent for a commissioner and requested him to vote to retain a staff man after the commissioner had decided to oppose him. The commissioner came back from the white house, Page said, and voted for the man.

At another time, he related, an outsider made application for the job of secretary and addressed his application to President Harding and former Attorney General Daugherty. The commission was satisfied with the secretary then engaged and refused to heed the request of the president to remove him for the other man, he said, and the president did not like it at all.

The former chairman declared the powers of the commission should be revised and the number reduced to four members, made up of a lawyer, business man and an industrial expert and one other with a judicial mind and sound judgment.

CHAPMAN SEEKS NEW WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

HARTFORD, March 24—(AP)—Judge J. Chapman today signed a new petition for a writ of habeas corpus, raising the constitutional question whether he had a fair trial, which Ray M. Wiley of Springfield, Mass., will present at the conference of the bandit's lawyers in New York tomorrow as one of the plans to be discussed to save Chapman from the gallows on April 6.

Coincident with this move by Mr. Wiley, Attorney Frederick J. Groehl of New York, senior counsel for the condemned man, announced that Charles William Gregory had been found. Gregory is the man who is said to have seen Chapman riding on a train from Springfield, Mass., to New York on the eve of the New Britain crime on October 12, 1924.

"At your service," is the wire from Gregory to Groehl, in answer to the lawyer's appeal, broadcast recently in the newspapers, for information of Gregory's whereabouts. These three words were the substance of Gregory's answer, said Mr. Groehl, who declined to give out the text of the telegram. He said the message was long and very assuring and had been sent from a town in New York state.

Gregory is reported by Mr. Groehl to have played cards and smoked a cigar with Chapman on the crowded Springfield-New York train, which left the Massachusetts city at 4.10 p. m., and arrived at the Grand Central station in New York about 8 p. m. October 11, 1924. His story fits in with Chapman's alibi.

FRENCH FRANC SHRINKS AS STATESMEN HAGGLE

Majority of the Deputies Are Inclined to Despair of Reaching a Solution of the Financial Problem Before the Easter Holidays—Finance Committee of the Chamber is Studying Peret's Measures For the Restoration of the Treasury—Talk Has Been Revived of a Dissolution of the Chamber and New Elections.

PARIS, March 24—(AP)—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies began its study of Finance Minister Peret's measures for the restoration of the treasury while the chamber was engaged in the defense of the infants of France from the alleged pernicious effects of rubber nipples.

Meanwhile the franc continued to decline under the influence of political and financial uncertainty. The lobbies of the chamber were filled with pessimism, and the majority of the deputies were inclined to despair of reaching a solution of the financial problem before the Easter holidays.

There was a revival of talk today of a dissolution of the chamber and new elections as soon as parliament finds time to repeal the electoral law which provides at present for the proportional representation of all parties within each department. Meanwhile political activity is centering in the second electoral district of Paris, where a second ballot to elect two deputies will take place Sunday. The socialists, whose candidate was a bad third on the first ballot, have retired in favor of the communists and radicals, who finished still further down the list, but the socialists are divided among themselves, their militant leaders supporting the communists, while those of nationalist tendencies have come out for two candidates of the bloc national.

The issue will be decided according to what elements stay away from the polls. Therefore it is believed that the best organized party is likely to win.

The chamber had a diversion from its usual strife over financial problems by devoting its entire morning session to discussion of the relation of the use of rubber nipples to infant health after hearing an attack by Deputy Pinard, dean of the chamber, on the "nefarious nipples," the deputies voted by a show of hands to abolish rubber nipples throughout France and the French colonies within three months. M. Pinard, mounting the tribune of the house to make his plea, declared the use of the rubber nipple exposed the babies of France to dangers ranging from stifling to poisoning.

INTERALLIED DEBTS DISCUSSED IN COMMONS

LONDON, March 24—(AP)—The problem of the World war's heritage of interallied debts was given a periodical airing in the house of commons today, and Winston Churchil, chancellor of the exchequer, and Philip Snowden, laborite and former chancellor, who are poles apart politically, joined hands in the house in agreeing that the burden of responsibility for the war debt difficulties rests on the United States for refusing to adopt a policy of all round cancellation.

Mr. Snowden precipitated the debate in the hope of helping to bring Great Britain's recalcitrant continental creditors to time, and he spared neither the United States, France nor Italy in the seething bitter criticism for which he has a reputation.

With ministerial responsibility associated with his utterances, Mr. Churchill restrained his statement somewhat, and on the whole was hopeful of obtaining from Great Britain's debtors the necessary £33,000,000 sterling which this country is now paying to the United States annually. And thus the chancellor of the exchequer believes the British government will be enabled to carry out the principal of the Balfour note, whereby Great Britain declared her intention of collecting from her continental allies only sufficient sums to pay her indebtedness to America.

Mr. Churchill described the undertaking to pay "£100,000 sterlings daily for more than three generations of the nation as one of the most stupendous tasks and burdens ever assumed by any country in the whole world's history."

SEC'Y. MELLON TALKS OF WAR DEBT SETTLEMENTS

PHILADELPHIA, March 24—(AP)—America's war debt settlements with European nations were the most favorable which could be obtained short of force Secretary Mellon declared here tonight in an address before the Union League club.

Touching on the moral obligation to assist other peoples to clear away the wreckage of war, Mr. Mellon said: "We do owe this obligation, and we will carry out this duty."

The administration believes in help, and not charity, he continued, "and our financial policies toward Europe are backed not by sentiment but by sense.

The address of the treasury head had been prepared prior to the remarks made in the house of commons today by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, who also discussed the moral aspects of the war debts.

BOSTON PATROLMAN SHOT BY AUTOMOBILE THIEF

BOSTON, March 24—(AP)—Patrolman Frank J. Comeau, of the Dorchester district, was shot and fatally wounded tonight by one of three men in a stolen automobile. The trio then mingled in a church crowd and escaped, leaving behind the automobile and the revolver used in the shooting. Comeau was shot through the abdomen and was dead on arrival at a hospital.

The patrolman was lounging in the door of a patrol wagon house in civilian clothes when an automobile came rushing down the street and stopped. TWO WINDSOR DEATHS MURDER AND SUICIDE

WINDSOR, Conn., March 24—(AP)—Investigation conducted by the police today, following the discovery of the bodies of Milton Dibble, 50, a farm hand, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Dora Howard, 75, dead in their beds this morning, has convinced officials here that the theory of murder and suicide was correct.

The man and woman were asphyxiated by gas escaping from a gas stove and in an informal finding, the medical examiner expressed the opinion that the woman had turned on the jets of a gas stove before retiring last night.

Neighbors questioned today said that Biddle and Mrs. Howard had quarreled often and that a quarrel took place last night. Dibble at the time was under the influence of liquor. He had often beat his housekeeper, it was learned today, and it is believed by the medical examiner that she turned on the gas to end her troubles.

A search of the house today disclosed that a broken window at the rear of the house had been covered with a piece of rug, the latter being held in place by a broom handle.

The medical examiner, who attended Mrs. Howard at 11 o'clock last night, said that Dibble was home at that time and that he was intoxicated. He expressed the opinion that Dibble, in his condition, would not have been able to turn on the gas jets.

GOLDEN WEDDING NOTED BY MR. AND MRS. G. L. JAMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24—In their colonial home in Mansfield Center, Mr. and Mrs. George L. James observed their golden wedding anniversary this week, receiving many callers between three and five in the afternoon and seven and ten in the evening Monday. The house had been decorated in yellow and white. Mr. and Mrs. James sat before the open fire in the living room to receive their friends. Among the many gifts presented them were gold pieces of $50 from their children and $40 from the people of the community, there being a total of $160. Mrs. Jones read a poem composed for the anniversary by her husband, Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, who offered prayer. Refreshments were served, Mrs. Willard James and Mrs. Brockett, pouring.

Mr. and Mrs. James were united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage on Willington Hill by Rev. Mr. Potter, March 22, 1876. Mr. James was born July 26, 1843 in Tolland. Mrs. James, who was Adeline Whitaker, was born in Pomfret, December 11, 1843. Both have spent the larger part of their life in Ashford. After their marriage they moved to North Coventry where they remained for one year and where their oldest daughter, Alice, now Mrs. Robert E. Stearns, was born. Later they purchased the farm between Mansfield Center and North Windham. There five children were born to them, Arthur of Newington, Willard of Plainfield, N. Mr. James entered upon a political career as a republican when he cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln. Some time later he became identified with the prohibition party and won the distinction of being the first person in New England and the second in the United States to be elected to the legislature on the prohibition party. He represented the town assessor for several years. Among other interests which he has is in Echo Grange of Mansfield, being one of the charter members and the first master. Mrs. James, at an early age, left her home in Ashford and went to Hartford where she opened and successfully conducted a dressmaking establishment. Shortly after the Civil war she went to Virginia and taugh the newly freed slaves and their children. Her life there was most unpleasant. Southern whites looked down upon her and her sister as "nigger teachers," but although completely barred from society she continued her life of service for over two years. The illness of her mother brought her back to Ashford. There she met Mr. James. Their acquaintance developed into love and their marriage resulted.

Residents of other towns who attended the reception included: Mr. and Mrs. Albert James and two children of Newington; Mrs. Adrien Reed of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Willard James of Plainfield, N. Y.; Arthur C. POINTS OUT VALUE OF PASTURIZATION OF MILK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24—Two new members, Carl R. Alford and Dixon Van Zandt, were present at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held tonight with President Egbert A. Case presiding. Edgar A. Bass was a guest. President Case introduced as the speaker of the evening, Prof. George White of Connecticut Agricultural college, who gave an instructive talk on "Milk Supply," pointing out the necessity of such a supply and the value of the pasturization of milk in order to kill vitamine C. He strongly advocated that cows be pastured and be given the tuberculin test in order to safeguard the milk supply. A check up showed that very few herds in this vicinity had been tested. Prof. White told of the dangers of pouring milk while making deliveries, advising that milk be transported in sealed containers. He stated however that the milk situation did not warrant any alarm. The farmers, he said, were ready to co-operate in any sensible method of regulating and inspecting the milk supply. He was given a rising vote of appreciation for his talk. There were 30 members of the club present.

TWO MILE WALK NOT LONG IN MILD WEATHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24—The petition of residents of Upper Ash street for continued transportation for their children to the Chestnut Hill school house was rejected at the special meeting of the Mansfield town school committee held in the poultry building at Storrs tonight. There had been no transportation over the distance until January of this year when accommodations were given to 10 children who had been walking a distance of from 1.5 to 1.7 miles from Ash street, just over the Willimantic city line to the school at Chestnut Hill. At that time the transportation agreement was made with Joseph Horne for a period of 3 months at $1.50 a school day.

The temporary contract expires April 1st and the parents sought to have it renewed. The committee felt that the distance was not too great during fair weather. The interested parents and a number of their children are Michael Kemmler, (3), Arthur Lee, (2), Michael Protaches, (2), Joseph Horne (2) and Mrs. Sarah Kaplan, (1).

The petition was also signed by the Bronze family who have children attending in this city but would transfer them to the Mansfield school if transportation was furnished. During a lengthy discussion the board voted to abandon the proposed plan to secure ownership of the old Storrs Congregational church, a wooden structure, and remodel it for a school house. It was decided to withhold the building programme until a hearing was held with Dr. A. B. Meredith, state commissioner of education, early next week, relative to receiving state aid.

Mrs. Robert H. Stearns, chairman, was in charge and the minutes and communications were read by the secretary, W. F. Kirkpatrick. The meeting adjourned at a late hour.

JEWETT CITY

ANTHONY PROPERTY SALE BOOMS NEARBY LAND

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 24—The purchase of the Anthony property on Main street, followed without delay by building excavations, has served to present to the attention of local real estate handlers, the true value of several Main street holdings. Wednesday a number of offers were made for adjacent land, adjudged to the close to the prices asked by the owners.

Attention was called Wednesday to the splendid condition of the borough streets, other than those under state repair. East Main street, in class A of the residential sections of the borough, is dry and smooth. Previous to the present macadam construction, it always for two months in the spring was rutted hub deep and was almost impassable on account of soft mud.

During February, there were three deaths in Griswold: Theodore Robillard, 6 mos. measles; Stanton F Maine, 77 years, atrophy of liver; George W. Robinson, 76 years, myocarditis; four births were recorded: Christine Driscoll, Agnes Fontaine, Arthur G. St. John, Charles E. Harrington.

Tuesday evening the patrons of Finn's theatre greatly appreciated an athletic exhibition by Professor Charles Glaske. This included a short talk on physical culture and its benefits, weight lifting and hand balancing. Mr. Glaske is very anxious to interest the people of Jewett City in the practice of physical culture and is willing to do whatever he can to help anyone. He has made a study of this subject for years in different foreign countries and he easily demonstrated that he is well versed in all its forms. Following his talk, he explained and performed certain exercises for developing different parts of the body. He then gave a very clever exhibition of weight lifting and hand balancing in which he was ably assisted by Theodore Boule and Charles Saunders.

Pachaug grange hall held a large audience Tuesday evening, when members of the Southern New England Telephone association of Norwich gave The Old District School. A remarkable conglomeration of knowledge was displayed by the pupils. It was startling to historical students to learn that Eddie Blanchard discovered America, and that Pachaug was the capital of Connecticut. The alphabet class gave local people a lift on every letter. The real prize poem was Nothin' by Nobody. The nice little teacher received a lovely bouquet and he deserved it; the chastising he applied to several of the pupils must have been arm wracking. The recipients revived with celerity. The costumes were bewitching, very much so. The committee man was exceptionally good. The presentation created a riot of laughter from start to finish. Refreshments were served in the dining hall after the performance.

More than the usual pre-Easter activity is being evidenced in the borough for several preceding years. Churches, merchants and citizens alike are planning for the glad spring festival. Local dressmakers and tailors are crowded with rush orders and there are certainly going to be some smart frocks and nobby suits when the parade starts!

An agent from a well known 5 and 10 cent concern, was in town this week looking over Main street property values.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

THREE ASSAILANTS HELD FOR BEATING UP YOUTH

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, March 24—While on his way home after visiting at the house of a friend on the Hollow road, one night last week, Jack Dennehey a young man about 20 was held up and given a good beating by three young men who were going toward Stafford Hollow in an automobile. It was not known at the time who the young men were but clever work on the part of the state police led them to a clue and they secured sufficient evidence by Wednesday to place the three assailants under arrest. They have already made a clean breast of the whole affair. Walter Craig age 22, George Guay 18, and Stanley Kology, 19, were brought in by the state cops and placed under bonds for a hearing next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Craig's bond was fixed at $500 and was furnished by his father, William Craig.

From the story which the young men told Craig was evidently the ring leader of the bunch. Guay and Kology were each placed under a bond of $300 which was furnished by Guay's father, Henry Guay.

Dennehey says that as the automobile which was driven by Craig approached it slowed down and finally stopped. The three men jumped out of the car and the next thing he knew he received a blow between the eyes which threw him on the ground and he was then handled very roughly until an approaching automobile frightened the men away. He has been under a doctor's care since the assault, although it is said that his injuries are not serious. Just what was the object of the assault is difficult to say. The young men say they did it just for fun.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Only lead and zinc form opaque white films that completely cover and hide the surface to be painted. All the other pigments form transluscent films.

DANIELSON

SNAKE MEADOW BROOK POSTED BY STATE AGENTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 24—Wednesday afternoon signs prepared by the state board of fisheries and game were being put up along the course of Snake Meadow brook, a state-leased stream. There is a variety of these signs. Among other things they give notice that Snake Meadow brook is closed to fishing until April 15, that fishermen must keep within ten feet of the banks of the stream, that the waters have been heavily stocked by the state and other information that should give fishermen all necessary facts relative to obeying regulations for fishing such a brook. There are dozens of these signs to be set up along the several miles of territory through which the brook wends its way.

CHAMMER OF COMMERCE PLANS TOURISTS' CAMP

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 24—Danielson's chamber of commerce during the month has made a considerable distribution of its new publication which sets forth the advantages of Danielson and other sections of the town of Killingly for manufacturing enterprises. Much of this literature went into New Jersey, where labor troubles have caused great turmoil and where the statement that this area is wholly fre from such disturbances should be of real appealing interest. The chamber also is interested in the prospect of the development of a real camp for tourists here this summer. More about this project will be heard later. The prospect is for the development of such a finely appointed camp as this section of the state cannot boast at the present time.

CIGARETTE SALES TO BOYS UNDER 16 PROHIBITED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 24—Chief John McFarland said Wednesday that a warning is issued to all dealers in tobacco that the sale of cigarettes to boys under 16 must cease forthwith or such summary action as may be required to check the practice will be taken. Chief McFarland has received a complaint from a school official that sales of cigarettes are being regularly made to boys as young as 12 or 13. This is against the law, as the sale of tobacco to persons under 16 years of age is forbidden in Connecticut. Observant persons have noted considerable cigarette smoking for some time past among very young boys. It is believed that this can be largely checked by enforcing the statute against the sale of cigarettes to such young people. It is likely that many older persons would be induced by such youngsters to go and buy cigarettes for them.

The next meeting of Killingly grange will not be held until April 5, when the first and second degrees will be conferred on candidates by the new officers. Grangers are bearing in mind that three weeks will elapse between meetings this time instead of two weeks. The officers of the grange are to meet next Monday night to rehearse degree work and it is hoped to have every officer in attendance at that time. In a competative program between married and single people at the meeting of Putnam grange last Monday night, C. A. Downs of Goodyear was selected as one of the three judges. The married people won the contest.

The coming election being little more than a formality and extremely unlikely to stop any contest, Danielson is assured of an experienced board of officials for another year. The only change in list of nominations as made at Tuesday evening's caucus is in the office of warden, for which place, Attorney Harry E. Back has been named. Attorney Back has previously served the borough as warden so thoroughly familiar with the borough administrative system and will take up the work with none experience the office he is to fill.

Tyler P. Andrews is to take up his duties as instructor and caretaker at the Putnam Country club Thursday next, the first of April. Mr. Andrews announced the appointment during the winter. He is to succeed Clarence Isham who was professional and caretaker at the club for the past two years. Mr. Andrews will devote all of his time to the new position.

Next week William F. Mulligan will take a new selling position in southern New England. He is an experienced salesman and for a number of years was one of the principal stockholders in the Killingly Worsted company, with a plant at Elmville. Mr. Mulligan will continue to conduct the mercantile business that he established here the past fall.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of Elzear Bousquet was held at 8:30 from his home in Pineville with services at St. Joseph's church, Dayville, at 9 o'clock. There were many relatives and friends at the high mass of requiem, of which Rev. Ignatius Kost, the patsor, was celebrant. The body was placed in the tomb at St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Etienne Favreau, Arthur Chapdelaine, Arthur Viens, John LaBelle, F. X. Malihot and Cleophas Beauvais. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Ignazio Longo has been visiting relative sin Willimantic for a few days.

The Center Street brook, for years a nuisance, has been subdued insofar as its making difficulties is concerned, and little is heard nowadays about this stream that runs through a central section of the borough, largely underground.

Holders here of the security are not displeased over the quotation of the preferred stock of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at 104; this a splendid recovery from the slump of 1920.

It is not unlikely that Danielson will have a clean-up period during April—a combined effort of citizens to put the borough in spic and span condition for the warm weather season.

Charles A. Downe, pastor of the Goodyear church spoke Sunday morning on "World Kingdoms and the Lord's Kingdom." He took as a text Rev. 11:15, and expressed the following thoughts. Blotting out the old and making new world maps has been mans unpleasant pastime throughout recorded history. The establishment of Christ's kingdom was never calculated to make a one-map world, but rather to leaven wit righteousness existing world kingdoms. Individuals live in their own little world kingdoms, circumscribed by the range of their horizon. Wise is the person who climbs the heights, broadens the view and learns to hope, pray and work in terms of the whole world. The spiritually enlarged vision is the noblest of all university training.

Henry Nadeau, who has been a patient at Day Kimball hospital in Putnam for a number of weeks, has been discharged from the institution and is staying for a time at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Allard, in Pomfret. He is the son of Mrs. Clara Nadeau of School street.

In Killingly there is appreciation of the praiseworthy thing Putnam has done in appropriating $30,000, for an addition to the State Trade school. This town has sent numbers of students to the Trade school, without cost to the town other than for transportation and it is a privilege that is well worth while.

As soon as frost is out of the ground, further progress will be made by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company in running a new line carrying electric light wires from Moosup to Oneco, in the town of Sterling.

Among the matters to come before the voters at the annual borough meeting early in April will be a proposal that an appropriation be made for the installation on the central fire station of an auxiliary fire alarm siren.

Lenten services are to be held at St. Alban's church this (Thursday) evening.

Water, that it was necessary to use in great quantities, added largely to the damage at the Perkins house fire, Monday afternoon.

Two large trees cut down at the high school grounds Wednesday to make way for the addition are believed to have been about 100 years old, at least a count of the rings on a cross section indicated as much.

Ernest Morin severed cords on the back of his hand Wednesday while he was working about a power-driven sawing machine at the James Danielson place on the Goodyear road.

Among the athletes at Killingly high school talk is turning to baseball, and it will be only a short time before the squad is at practice for the coming season's schedule.

John C. Lachmann of Providence visited with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

A special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange is to be held with Brooklyn grange April 24. This is to be an evening meeting, opening at 5 o'clock with a supper.

SHOULD HUSBANDS DO HOUSE WORK?

How Mrs. Dyer Solved the Problem.

Mrs. Mildred Dyer was lucky. She had a good-natured husband who helped her with much of her housework. Because she was in ill health for five years, it was often necessary for him to do this. But it bothered Mrs. Dyer. She felt that he had to work hard enough anyway. The time he spent in doing her work was needed for his own. She determined to find the road to better health.

She writes: "I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is simply wonderful. My health is better than it has ever been. I am getting stronger and gaining in weight."

The Dyers live at Redlands, Calif., Route A, Box 183.

How often does your husband have to do your housework? No matter how willing he is, no woman feels comfortable about it. Perhaps you, too, will find better health through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Now when the germs of Grippe abound, physicians advise keeping the bowels open. Constipation poisons the blood, lowering your resistance to the germs of infectious diseases.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

WEEK ENDING MARCH 20, 1926:

12,764

TAXATION RESULTS

Estimates were made, as is usually the case, concerning the taxes that would be collected by the government under the new revenue bill for the first quarter of the year. Naturally no one can tell what the amount is going to be. It depends entirely upon conditions, upon the business done, the incomes received and the effect of the tax reduction.

It is not impossible for a reduced tax to bring in a larger amount of revenue. The first cut in the surtaxes on incomes had that effect. This year there has been a further cut in surtaxes along with the reduction in normal income taxes and the abandonment of certain other taxes, but as the figures for the first quarter of the year show there has been a reduction in the amount collected March 15 over the same date last year of only $1,000,000, the collection being in fact almost $40,000,000 greater than the estimate.

It will require some study to determine whether that is due to the anticipation of the cut in surtaxes, which might have brought a greater amount of money away from tax-exempt securities and into taxable income investment, to a general increase in business activity or to the fact that more people have paid their entire tax on March 15 instead of doing so by quarters throughout the year.

Without a doubt prosperity has had its effect, and it is by no means improbable that the other two causes have been figured in the excellent showing. It may be some time, however, before it will be possible to definitely state just where the greatest amount of the credit rests, although prosperous conditions cannot be ignored.

But while attention is being centered upon the fine showing for the first quarter, no one knows what the second quarter, or the remainder of the year is going to bring forth. Congressman Tilson maintains that it is not wise to plunge into unwarranted appropriations. Certainly the first quarter's collections are pleasing but appropriations have already been heavy. There should be no deficit, and the one sure way of avoiding that is to see that the outgo is smaller than the income.

ESCAPING PENALTY IN NEW YORK

Bond Embezzler Who Killed Girl Has Easy Chair. This is the headline of a story which tells of the confinement of Harry W. Cowan who was charged with the killing of a Brooklyn girl. The conviction calls for the death penalty and in the ordinary treatment of the case it might be expected that he would pay for his act with his life. But will he?

There seems to be no particular reason why he should do anything as much depends upon Governor Smith of New York. He has the power to commute the sentence and it is known that he has been engaging quite freely in such work despite the protests of juries and the courts.

According to a committee which has been looking into the pardons, commutations and respites that have been granted by the governor of New York in comparisons with those in a corresponding number of years by Governor Hughes and there is a striking contrast and it is to be noted likewise that the increase in the Smith administrations accompanies the large increase of crime that has been committed.

For four years of the Smith administration there have been 196 pardons to 162 during the Hughes administration of similar length. Smith commutations reached the total of 394 while those in the Hughes terms were but 71 and the respites were 71 for Smith and 69 Hughes. The committee's view is that "present conditions demand caution in all officials having to do with administration of criminal law." With that 92 executive pardons, the largest number in 40 years, 79 commutations of sentence and 202 restorations to citizenship in the year 1925 do not fit in such a picture. Leniency in any official heartens a criminal."

It was not so long ago that Governor Smith criticised the parole board of New York state because of certain conduct on its part against public welfare but it would appear that he had a chance to take some of that upon himself from the manner in which he has been overriding the actions of juries and courts of appeal. The record certainly doesn't leave a good impression.

RESPONDING TO PUBLIC CLAMOR

There is a national committee for the restriction of outdoor advertising and it makes a report of progress for the past year in which it points to the fact that there are few new boards going up in the rural districts and old boards in noticable number are decreasing. This means that results are being obtained and bill board advertising is decreasing in those localities where it is a detriment to residential property and where it is a disfigurement to the landscape.

On a trip through the country by automobile, or a trip by railroad, it will be noted if attention is given to it that the countryside is not plastered as it used to be with the great obstructive signs, nearby and at a distance. There has been recognition on the part of such advertisers and those in that kind of business that there is public opposition to it and the reaction is apparent. There may be seen some signboards that are weatherbeaten and abandoned. Others of more recent type still stand and probably will until the present contract expires. There is no activity in the way of new signboards, except it be in city districts where there is bound to be restriction and where the effect is less detrimental.

It is a change that is for the better. State legislation has dealt with the problem in many commonwealths. In many states it is no longer possible to erect bill boards within the public highway and those there can be destroyed and in Massachusetts authority has been given to regulate all advertising within public view.

It is all the outcome of public resentment and the efforts of the organizations which have taken up the cause in response to conditions which have developed in many cities and states. It was a case where the idea was overdone, so much so that the great outdoors was being shut off from view of those traveling the highways. The crusade against the objectionable has borne fruit in many instances and is approaching that stage in others and the relief is appreciated

RHODE ISLAND'S TAX LEAGUE

There has been a persistent fight against the federal inheritance tax and congress has furnished good reasons why it should be repealed. Changes have been made in it and the intimation is that eventually it may go, but until the states come to some definite and proper understanding among themselves in the way of state inheritance taxes such as reciprocity concerning such tax levies there has been urged the maintenance of a federal tax with 80 per cent rebate to the states if those states provide rates in their inheritance taxes that produce a similar amount.

It is not a provision that pleases Rhode Island is already up in arms against it. A body of 200 representative merchants, manufacturers, lawyers and business men has organized the Rhode Island Tax league and it is turning its guns on this federal law and proposes to organize sentiment in the state against this and other policies which are "making for extravagance in federal and state expenditures of public funds."

This organization sets forth that Rhode Island has an inheritance tax up to 3 per cent. and it maintains that "this yields adequate revenue for the purposes of the government of Rhode Island. Yet under the federal enactment the Rhode Island general assembly is plainly told that unless it raises its inheritance tax from its present 3 per cent. maximum to a minimum of 14.92 per cent. its citizens will be paying into the federal treasury some $2,000,000 a year in inheritance taxes which the state can have without costing the people of Rhode Island a single dollar."

The tax league regards this as coercion of state governments. It opposes it, urges repeal of the federal law and maintains that it ought not to be used as a means of compelling states to a certain tax policy.

The Rhode Island effort is another echo of the opposition to the federal inheritance tax and it is bound to get a lot of sympathy and support not only within but outside of Rhode Island, and not only where the inheritance tax is involved but in regard to its opposition to the federal aid plans and also its objection to the corporation tax. The last named is objected to until the individual or copartnership engaged in business is similarly taxed.

The way of the tax league may not all be a bed of roses but it is on its way.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Reappointment in the house of representatives at Washington has been hanging fire ever since the last census. By the action of the house census committee in deciding to make no recommendations concerning bills dealing with such a matter it means that all prospect of any such change is over.

Changing the representation of the people in congress always encounters much opposition. Nevertheless it is possible, although it has been demonstrated from time to time that the house is already large enough, if not too large and ought not to receive additional members that would only make it all the more unwieldy.

Reapportionment can be accomplished without increasing the total. This would involve reductions for some states and increases for others in keeping with the population, but even under such a plan the chances are that any such move will now be delayed until the next decade, or after the next census.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

One day not very long ago when I was golfing out at the Wayfarers' Dexter Haines I noticed that the wrists of his sweater were badly worn. He shrugged his shoulders when he saw me looking at them.

"Not exactly—too indigent to get a new one, Lucille," he said, "but the truth is I hate to discard the veteran. You see, I bought it in Scotland when I was training there in 1915 for the R. A. F. I got a superstitution that it gave me luck in flying, and now I have a hunch that it helps my game. Am I silly?"

"On the contrary, I quite understand how you feel," I said in a tone that I know impressed him with my sympathetic nature, or he smiled at me in the whimsical way he has when he is particularly pleased. "Let me take that good old jersey home with me and knit new cuffs on it."

"That's mighty kind of you, Lucille and I accept with gratitude. It will mean a lot to me!"

"I'd just love to do it," I said, and I certainly was pleased to be able to do something for him that none of his other girl friends would think of doing.

The very next morning when Cousin Fannie happened to be going down town I asked her to get the wool for it.

"I had to go all over town to find that shade," she sighed, and complain when she came home late in the afternoon. "And then I had to buy two colors to be knitted together to get the right tone."

"Oh dear," I pouted. "I'm not clever enough at knitting to do that. I'm afraid you'll have to do it for me."

"I fully epected to," answered Cousin Fannie in an odd voice, but I thanked her heartily and asked her to do it as quickly as she could, because I knew that Dexter would hate to be without his favorite garment very long. Greatly to my satisfaction she completed the task in a surprisingly short time, and I was just going to telephone Dexter to call for it when my new friend, Frank Freeman, drove up to the house in a spic and span sport model which he gleefully said he had brought around for me to try.

"A friend of mine in Evanston wants me to buy this toy, and I told him I wouldn't even consider it unless a certain fastidious person I knew approved of the upholstery. So you see, young lady, you must come for a while. Do you have to be vociferously urged?"

"Of course not when my judgment is so much needed," I replied laughingly. I took mother's fur cape from the hall rack and when I got into the car I found I was still holding Dexter's sweater in my hand.

"Oh, you thoughtful child, did you bring that for me?" asked Frank. "I am some chilly!"

We drove way out to Palos Park and the autumn foliage was so beautiful that we lingered in the woods so late that the had to stop on our way home for a very tardy luncheon.

"Good gracious, Lucile," cried mother the moment I appeared, "why did you go away with my mink cape without saying a word? I was sure that some one had sinned in and taken it, and I've been worried sick about it."

"Oh, mother darling," I said soothingly, "I do wish you could delete all the worry in your makeup. You just make yourself and everybody else in the family unhappy by your little unnecessary anxieties. I can't help being grateful that I did not inherit your Martha like propensities."

"Well you surely didn't," returned mother crisply. But something occurred this very day to trouble me greatly.

Dexter Haines telephoned to know if his sweater was ready, for he is to play a special match at the Wayfarers' tomorrow. I had to tell him it wasn't ready, and I hesitated so he thought I felt upset and he told me not to feel bad: that he was sure he could win even without "old faithful" as he called it. I called up Frank Freeman's house in Evanston, only to learn that he had suddenly gone east, and the sweater was not in sight.

Frank is a charming chap, but I do think that when I suggested that he wear the sweater home, that day we were driving, he should have refused. It is really bad taste to borrow wearing apparel, and it has put me in an awkward position. I do hope he will come home and return the sweater before Dexter asks me for it again.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mansfield Schools.

Mr. Editor: Just a few lines in regard to the public schools of Mansfield. As a preliminary I will state the fact that the town has for a number of years, been carrying a heavy debt which was increased during the war. In the last three or four years the selectmen have succeeded in paying up some of the debt, and if the rate of taxation had been kept at about 25 mills for two or three years longer it seems very probable that enough would have been paid so that the interest on unpaid taxes would have paid the interest as it became due on the notes, and that would have made things a little easier. The 20 mill tax will not take care of the budget.

But it is the unnecessarily heavy expense of the public schools that keeps taxes so high. I know that figures are uninteresting to read about but I will mention just a few. According to the report the town paid last year $6,276.54 for transportation of the scholars. There is a good school house at Mansfield four corners; yet the town paid for the transportation of the 28 pupils in that district to Storrs, hence the congestion there. The town paid for building an addition onto the Hollow school house and for transporting all the scholars from the Spring Hill district (and there are enough for a good school). Other changes have been made so that very few of the scholars walk to school. In addition to the transportation the town paid over $7,000 for tuition of scholars in the high school at Willimantic and there is no doubt that in several cases it was money wasted because they are better fitted for something else; in fact, if they were put at work it might keep them out of mischief, but they go there because the town does pay the expense and they have a good time.

With 13 school districts in the town and several of the school houses not open, the item of teachers' salary appears in the report 16 times. The town also pays for all school books and supplies, and several other things. There are many families in town that do not have children in the schools; they expect and are quite willing to pay their share towards the necessary expense of supporting good schools, but not such extras. If these conditions are to conform to the ideas of a school supervisor then he should go. Probably the laws governing the actions of the state board of education are responsible for some of it, and it seems as though that is more the local boards are hampered by them the more the expenses mount up. I certainly believe in having good schools and in the law which requires all children to attend them up to the age of 14 years, but beyond that the capability and adaptability of the pupil for positions which require the exercise of the higher branches of education should be considered before he or she wastes time and the public money in trying to advance in educational institutions.

From Small Beginnings

Samuel Schwabe, the Druggist, a Great Astronomer

It always pays to cultivate a hobby some form of amusement that has in it something of real worth. Work on a hobby is not real work; it is play, and it rests and refreshes one after the real work of the day. Many a man has found that the thing that he has worked at for the very pleasure it gave him is his real work in life. Among such people is Samuel Schwabe, who was a druggist, but who loved to look at the stars.

Samuel Schwabe was born in Germany. Early in life he was obliged to go to work for a living. He found a place in what we should call a drug store, and there employed himself busily, learning how to make careful measurements of drugs and how to put up prescriptions. For a long time he worked humbly at his daily tasks, reading and studying in the evenings. From the time when he had been a little child he had been attracted by the sight of the stars, the moon, and the sun. He felt a fascination in the heavenly bodies and a curiosity to know more about them. He did not know it at the time, but curiosity is the foundation of all real learning.

He procured a small telescope and proceeded to use it as best he could, merely for the sake of amusement and the satisfying of his curiosity. When he was 37, having kept up his hobby for some years, he began to pay particular attention to observing the sun. He noticed that spots appeared upon the bright surface of the great orb. Curious concerning these mysterious spots on something so bright as the sun he watched them day after day, and recorded his observations. He made no pretence to being an astronomer; he simply wished to find out all about the sunspots.

By the time he was 54, Schwabe put forward a theory that the sun spots had regular movements and that they came more into view at intervals of ten years. He was loudly laughed at for his theory—but he was persistent, insisted he was right and set about proving it by making many more observations. Today, he is recorded in books of astronomy as one of the most original of observers, and as the first man to put frward what astronomers now consider a fact—that the sunspots move as he said he had seen them move. The obscure druggist, with his hobby, had beaten the astronomers at their own work and had made himself famous forever.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The election of Charles N. Whitehead to the presidency of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway adds another name to the growing list of men in commerce and industry who have attained the position of chief executive in large organizations before reaching the age of 50. The new head of the "Katy" system is 48 years old and has been in railroad service since the age of 14 when he started as a messenger boy in Cairo, Ill. Soon after this his family removed to Texas and it was there that he entered the service of the M. K. & T. as a stenographer, working up the line until in 1905 he was transferred to New York as assistant secretary of the company. Rising to the position of secretary and treasurer, he was made assistant to the president in 1913, and in 1923 became executive vice president of the system.

Stories That Recall Others

He Had Been Squire.

Around the stove in the back end of the grocery a discussion was raging. The question had something to do with the power exercised by a justice of the peace. Finally one of the debaters turned to an old man sitting silently by the counter.

"How about that Uncle Zack?" he queried. "You was justice of the peace once, wasn't you?"

Uncle Zack spat coptiously toward the sawdust under the stove.

"Naw," he replied, and solemnly shook his head. "I never wuz. I wuz squire for nine years."

POETRY

An Early Bluebird

Leap to the highest hight of spring,
And trill thy sweetest note,
Bird of the heavenly plumes and twinkling wing
And silver toned throat!

Sing, while the maple's deepest root
Thrills with a pulse of fire
That lights its buds. Blow, blow thy tender flute,
Thy reed of rich desire!

Breathe in thy syrinx Freedom's breath,
Quaver the fresh and true,
Dispel this lingering, wintry mist of death
And charm the world anew!

Thou first sky-dipped spring-bud of song,
Whose heavenly ecstasy
Foretells the May while yet March winds are strong,
Fresh faith appears with thee!

How sweet, how magically rich,
Through filmy splendor blown,
Thy hopeful voice set to the promise-pitch
Of melody yet unknown!

O land of mine, where hope can grow
And send a deeper root
With every spring, hear, heed the free bird blow
Hope's charmed flute!

Ah! who will hear, and who will care,
And who will heed thy song,
As prophecy, as hope, as promise rare,
Budding to bloom ere long?

From swelling bulbs and sprouting seed,
Sweet sap and fragrant dew,
And human hearts, grown doubly warm at need,
Leaps answer strong and true:

We see, we hear (thou liberty-loving thing,
That down spring's windy winds doth float),
The promise of thine empyrean wing.
The hope that floods thy throat!

—Maurice Thompson.

Burn's Last Poem

The last poem of Robert Burns, written a few days before he died, to the girl who nursed him on his deathbed, has been found in Waiko Maiti Otago, a remote settlement in New Zealand.

How often in the dreary night I clasp my burning hands
Upon those throbbing sleepless lids o'er eyes like glowing brands,
And wonder in my weary brain if haply, when I'm dead
My old, boon friends for love of me will give my bairnies bread.

Oh, did the poor not help the poor, each in their simple way,
With humble gift and kindly word? God pity them, I say,
For man, a man who clasped my hand with pledges o'er the bowl,
When the wine hale passed away proved but a niggard soul.

Oh, wilt thou gang o' nights, Jessie, to my forsaken hearth,
And be as thou hast been to me, the truest friend on earth?
Tho sweetly in your linnet voice you'll sing my wrans to rest,
While Jannie leans her weary head upon thy loving breast.

OVER 70 YEARS OF SUCCESS

LAST YEAR LYNCHINGS SHOW SMALL INCREASE OVER 1924

WASHINGTON, March 24. (AP)—Seventeen persons—all negroes—were lynched in the United States during 1925, an increase of one over the record for 1924, the Federal Council of Churches set forth today in its annual report on the subject.

All the states in which the lynchings occurred were not named directly, but the council put on its honor roll 38 commonwealths where no lives had thus been taken. It also saw that in 39 cases officers of the law had prevented mob violence and that there had been a number of convictions of mob members.

The report was preparted by the council's committee on Race Relations and the committee in an accompanying statement declared "mob law has thrown down the gauntlet to the churches and all other organizations standing for law and order and justice through the courts."

The goal of abolishing a lynchless land in 1926 could not be reached because a lynching had occurred as early as January, the report added.

Two unusual events were recorded in 1925. Texas for the first year since the beginning of records in 1882 became free of lynchings and Utah having its first occurrence of the kind since 1884.

"During the past five years states which had previously been on the honor roll (namely Arkansas, Ohio, Virginia, Alabama and Utah) lost their names because of mob murder within their borders," the committee declared. "Four states, Illinois, Kentucky, South Carolina and Tennessee, which had been on the roll in former years, were restored because their borders were forced open again in 1925."

The complete roll of honor follows:

States that have had a record of a lynching: Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont. Additional states that have no record of a lynching since 1886: Connecticut, Maine and New Jersey. Additional states that have no record of a lynching during the past 20 years: Delaware, Montana and Wisconsin. Additional states which have no record of a lynching in the past five years: Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Maryland, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania and South Dakota.

Additional states which have no record of a lynching in the past five years: Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, California, Colorado, New York, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming. Additional states which have no record of a lynching in the past two years: North Carolina and Oklahoma. Additional states which have no record of a lynching during 1925: Indiana, Kentucky, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Total states free of lynching in 1925: 38. Total states also having no lynchings: 1.

COLCHESTER MAN DIES IN CRASH THAT SENDS BRIDGE INTO WATER

Elias Glaubinger, 48, a well known cattle dealer and butcher of Colchester, was killed Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock and Patrick Kinney, 60, also of Colchester, who was riding with him suffered a broken hip, when Glaubinger's automobile struck and cracked the steel corner support on the Post bridge in Lebanon on the main road between this city and Colchester, going off the abutment into the river when one side of the bridge sagged down into the stream.

Glaubinger received a fractured skull and was drowned in three feet of water before he could be removed from underneath the overturned machine. Kinney was taken out by state highway employes who were working close by under Forman Ernest Gadbois and was hurried to the Backus hospital in an automobile driven by John F. Gorman, a salesman of the Norwich Motor Mart.

Kinney was unconscious when taken from underneath the car, but he recovered consciousness at the hospital. Besides the broken hip his only injuries were minor bruises and scratches on the hands.

Bridge Over Yantic River

The bridge where the fatal accident occurred is a steel structure with a span of about 40 feet which extends over the Yantic river several hundred feet southerly from the crossroad leading to the abandoned rubber mill site. It is in the town of Lebanon a few hundred feet from the Bozrah town line.

Hit Highway Fence

Glaubinger was driving toward his home, approaching the bridge on a slight downslope. Fresh scratches on the highway fence on the right of the road show where the Glaubinger machine scraped the fence at a point about 20 feet distant from the bridge and scraped it again about ten feet farther on. Two iron fence posts were knocked out and splinters from the highway fence were reported by investigators found in alongside the radiator of the automobile. The machine apparently traveled on with considerable force and plunged into the corner support of the bridge, striking this with the left forward end of the automobile. The steel post, which is set on an angle and serves as the supporting point for the steel girder that runs the length of the bridge to a similar post on the opposite side was cracked in the middle by the force of the blow from Glaubinger's machine, causing that entire side of the bridge to sag down into the water. Wreckage from the bridge was deposited on top of the automobile which plunged off the abutment and turned over in the water, imprisoning the two men under it.

Kinney Unable To Explain

Kinney was interviewed at the hospital Wednesday night by Coroner J. J. Desmond but was able to throw little light upon the cause of the accident. He said he had been with Glaubinger during the day on a cattle buying trip and they were returning from Willimantic. He was riding in the back seat and the first thing he knew he was underneath the car in the water.

Foreman Gadbois who was working on the road with a gang of six men about 300 feet westerlily from the bridge was the first to reach the bridge after the crash. He said Wednesday night that none of his gang saw the Glaubinger machine before it hit the bridge, but the first thing they knew of any accident was by hearing the crash as the touring car struck the bridge. Looking up, they saw the bridge going down. Leading his men, they started on a run for the bridge and when they got there discovered the automobile in the water. They were then on the far side from where the wreck was, but he and one of his men went down into the water and got Kinney out from the wrecked car, bringing Him up on the bank. They tried to get the other man out, but the automobile was weighted down by wreckage from the bridge that had fallen on it. Others of the gang came to their help, got into the water, the wreckage was cleared off and the car was propped up so that they could pull out the body of Glaubinger.

It could be plainly seen that the man was dead and the body was placed at the waterside and covered with a sacking to await the arrival of the coroner.

Taken to Hospital.

Shortly after they had taken Kinney out of the wrecked machine, the automobile driven by John F. Gorman arrived. Mr. Gadbois said, closely followed by a Connecticut Motor Transportation bus driven by Jerome J. Sullivan of Colchester.

Kinney was placed in the Gorman machine so that he could be taken to the hospital, while the bus driver helped the road gang to get the body of Glaubinger out of the machine in the water.

Foreman Gadbois had one of his men telephone word of the accident to Division Engineer John Smith at his office in this city who hurried to the broken bridge and immediately had guards posted at Yantic and at Colchester to divert through traffic.

No Eye Witnesses.

So far as Coroner J. J. Desmond and Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, had been able to learn Wednesday night there were no eye witnesses of the accident. On theory advanced to explain why Glaubinger hit the bridge was that he had been forced off the road by a machine approaching from the opposite direction and that he was trying to stop as the bridge is too narrow for two machines to pass on it. Foreman Gadbois, however, stated that no automobiles had passed in either direction for 15 minutes before the accident.

It was stated Wednesday afternoon by residents near the bridge that a motor truck with a load of sand had crossed the bridge 20 minutes or so before the Glaubinger machine came along.

After Coroner Desmond and Medical Examiner Gildersleeve had made an investigation, they gave permission for a Hebrew undertaker from Colchester to take charge of the body of Glaubinger.

Mr. Gorman, who took Kinney to the hospital, stated that the Glaubinger machine had been behind him as he was driving along the Bozorah road, but it passed him when he stopped at a filling station over the brow of the hill just before coming to the bridge. At the time Glaubinger was driving about 20 miles an hour, Mr. Gorman said. When Mr. Gorman started out from the filling station again, the bus was just behind him as they came up to the bridge.

Bridge Recently Inspected.

A. R. Collier, bridge superintendent with the highway department, who was in Niantic, arrived here during the afternoon. He said that the bridge had been inspected three weeks ago and had been found all right. After a cursory examination he gave it as his opinion that repairs could be made by jacking up the structure and replacing the broken parts. He did not think it would be necessary to build a new bridge.

The crash left the bridge impassible except to pedestrians, who can find a precarious footing across the sloping floor of the structure. The northerly side hands down in a curve to the water of the stream, but the southerly side is practically in place and it is expected that it will slip back into position as soon as the low side has been jacked up. The flooring of the bridge is supported by ten wooden beams running the length of the bridge from abutment to abutment. The ends of the two most northerly of the floor beams have slipped off the abutment at the side where the Glaubinger machine struck but the other beams retain their hold.

Detour For Traffic.

Division Engineer Smith stated that he would have through traffic on the road detour around by way of the New London-Hartford turnpike and the East Haddam-Norwich turnpike past Gardner lake. Local traffic east, from Colchester and west from Norwich can drive as far as the bridge.

State Policeman Bobnick took pictures and made measurements at the bridge.

Glaubinger lived on the old John Backus place in Colchester and was very well known among cattle dealers in the state.

He is survived by his wife and eight children.

Wells announced the national woman's law enforcement meeting which is to be held in Washington April 11th to 15th and urged all who could attend to do so. Mrs. Greenbacker gave a report of the enforcement meeting held recently in Boston for New England and Mrs. Arthur F. Wyman presided at the piano during the session.

At 1:30 o'clock the afternoon session was called to order and there was a devotional period led by Mrs. C. Newberry of Mystic. Mrs. Sigrid Aston of Massapeag sang Law Enforcement and As a Volunteer. This was followed by a treasurers conference conducted by Miss Ethel D. Barrows of New London. Ten women took part in this conference to demonstrate the different ways in which the W. C. T. ARCTIC MAPPING FEATURE HOBBS EXPEDITION

ANN ARBOR, MARCH 24. (AP)—Establishment of weather stations in the refrigerator of Greenland is the principal purpose of an expedition which the University of Michigan will send out in June or July.

It is in the Greenland area where breed the boreal blasts that sweep down upon the northern hemisphere, said William Herbert Hobbs, professor of geology, who will head the expedition. From the proposed weather stations it would be possible to wireless storm warnings to Europe, in his opinion.

"To travel from the margin of Greenland to Europe, these storms require from three to five days," Prof. Hobbs explained. "Even while they are crossing the eastern Atlantic there will be time to send warning from Greenland by wireless."

A secondary purpose of the expedition will be an attempt by government experts, who will accompany Prof. Hobbs to shatter with explosives the huge icebergs, compelling them to melt or sink before they have drifted far enough south to menace Atlantic shipping.

The adventure also will have several scientific by-products. Airplanes will map the region of the Umanak fjords, in latitude 71 degrees. Movements of ice-mountains will be recorded. There will be observations of gravity magnetism and tides. The fish life of the Greenland waters will be studied.

The expedition also will attempt to sound the thickness of the ice, which heretofore has been guessed. An American oil company has provided for this purpose one of its experts skilled in the "seismo" method, which depends upon the reflection of waves from the rock bottom.

Prof. Hobbs believes the most difficult work of the expedition will fall upon Peter Freuchen, former Danish governor of the Thule Eskimo settlement in northern Greenland and second in command on both long expeditions of Knud Rasmussen. Freucher has volunteered to remain throughout the year in a tiny, snow-buried hut 100 miles eastward from the coast of the great ice-shield, in order to record weather conditions.

Freuchen's hut will be in a desert waste of snow and ice, 7,000 feet above sea level. He will have as a companion Fred W. Bartlett, a graduate of the Michigan geological department.

Besides the extreme cold Freucher and Bartlett must combat the effect on the nerves of the long, dark winter night. Temperatures of 30 degrees below zero prevail in midsummer and kerosene becomes like lard in the extreme cold.

"A small, wind-proof hut of heat insulating material will be half sunk in the snow," Prof. Hobbs said. "It will be provided with self-registering meteorological instruments mounted at the top but with the clockworks attachments within the hut. The greatest difficulty in operating such instruments in such places is the extremely low temperatures."

In the party of 20 will be Vilbert Douglas, an instructor at Harvard university and a member of the last Shackleton Antarctic expedition; Prof. Howard T. Barnes of McGill university, Montreal, authority on icebergs anchor and river ice; W. P. Ferguson of the United States Weather bureau, an expert in the use of meteorological instruments; Dr. Walter N. Koelz, zoologist of the United State bureau of fisheries, and several specialists in zoology and botany from the University of Michigan faculty.

At least six of the party will remain until the summer of 1927 studying conditions. The main party will return in September.

The cost of financing the expedition will be $100,000 most of which already has been provided. The biggest item of expense will be the two amphibian planes of special construction that can take off and land on water and on snow during the same flight. The planes will be used for mapping and to take supplies to the inland weather stations.

The expedition will cooperate with a Danish government expedition which will leave Copenhagen about the same time, led by Dr. Lange Koch of the University of Copenhagen.

Dr. Koch will make his base on Scoresby sound on the east coast of Greenland. The base of the Michigan party will be in the Holstenborg district on the west coast, although the iceberg problem will be tackled farther north, in the waters off Umanak.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24.—(AP)—Walter Hagen won the West Coast open golf tournament here today over his home course, the Pasadena Country club, with a score of 70, 73, 69, 73—285.

Bobby Jones of Atlanta, the national amateur champion, came second, two strokes behind Hagen, with rounds of 75, 69, 71, 70—285.

Both Hagen and Jones passed Bobby Cruickshank in the final round when two sixes and a seven spoiled Cruickshank's chance to win. He took 78 for the final round for a total of 287.

Bobby and Walter have wagered a good hat on their total scores for 252 holes of play in the Pasadena tournament, the British open and the American open. Hagen won a two stroke lead at Pasadena.

Jones was entitled to take $500 in plate but asked that this money should not be taken from the purse of $3,000, so Cruickshank took second money.

RUTH CLOUTS TWO OVER FENCE IN EXHIBITION

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP)—Mid season glamour was imparted to today's chronicle of exhibition games among the major league baseball clubs by an eleven-inning game jammed with protechnics and a pair of more runs by the former sultan of swat.

George Herman Ruth put two over the fence at St. Petersburg, Fla., neither counted, since they were made prior to the game which the Yankees won from Cincinnati, 4 to 1, but they were bona fide Ruth home runs.

The Philadelphia Nationals and the American league team from St. Louis put on the overtime exhibition to the eleventh, at Bradenton, Fla.

Something like a basketball score was reported from the South Carolina encounter of the Toronto International and part of the Detroit Tygers, who converted 16 hits into 15 tallies while the Canadian club realized ten runs from a dozen hits. From the Tygers' camp in Georgia, came the word that three of Cobb's rookie pitchers will stay, the trio being Clyde Barfoot, Left Johns and Eam Gibson, whose improved work has been somewhat of a surprise to the management.

George Uhle made his second start of the season against the Boston Braves today, when the Braves defeated Cleveland, 3 to 1 in a tight game. Tris Speaker was not in the Indian lineup.

Another big score marked listless game which the Chicago White Sox won from a local team at Texarkana, Ark. Crouse and Kamm were the only 1925 soxmen in the lineup. Four home runs helped along the 14-10 score.

The St. Louis Cards finished their series at San Antonio with a 3-1 decision over the Texas league outfit. The Cardinals perform at Texas university tomorrow.

Charlie Root, Pacific coast league pitcher of last year, hurled for McCarthy's Chicago Cubs against the San Francisco missions today, the Cubs winning 3 to 1.

STRIBLING IS FAVORITE TO BEAT SLATTERY TONIGHT

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Young Stribling, Georgia's light-heavyweight challenger, and Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, N. Y., meet for the second time in their eventful pugilistic careers in a ten-round match at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Slattery is expected to enter the ring with a slight weight advantage, but Stribling rules a favorite as a result of the Buffalo boy's knockout defeats last year at the hands of Dave Shade and Paul Berlenbach.

The northern entry, however, will have the confidence of a point victory over his opponent in their first battle at Buffalo two years ago over the six round route. Both since then have reached their majority and are eligible under New York rules to box the limit of fifteen rounds.

The match is important to Slattery as an opportunity to regain prestige while to Stribling it will bring a chance to balance his defeat by Slattery in 1924 and to improve his possibilities for a contest with Gene Tunney.

The ten-round semi-final will bring together Carl Carter, Cuban heavyweight, and Bud Gorman of Wisconsin. In a third bout over the same distance, Solly Seeman will square off against K. O. Leonard, New Orleans lightweight.

St. Michaels Team Forfeits Game

In the basket ball game of the Pawcatuck Valley basketball league, scheduled for Wednesday night in Chapelin hall, Main street, Westerly, between the St. Michaels team and the Stonington A. V. A., the St. Michael's team failed to put in an appearance. Referee Driggs declared the game forfeited to Stonington by the score of 2 to 0. The Stonington A. V. A. and the Westerly Sanitary Corps team are the league leaders and if Stonington beats the sanitary corps in their next game these two teams will be tied for first place, which will necessitate a play-off game.

PRINCESS DOREEN WINS FEATURE AT TIJUANA

NEW YORK, March 24—(AP)—Princess Doreen, ridden by McTague, beat out Kentucky Cardinal by a head in the handicap at a mile and a furlong at Tijuana today. Roycrofter, bracketed with Kentucky Cardinal in the Croissant colors, shot forward at the quarter in an apparent effort to wear down Princess Doreen but McTague held the mare in restraint in fourth place.

Roycrofter weakened at the stretch turn and Kentucky Cardinal went ahead but Princess Doreen, with 120 pounds aboard, moved up and had the reserve to win. Roycrofter placed third. The time was 1:50 4-5, just 1 2-5 seconds slower than Carlaris ran the distance Sunday. Earle Sande, who will ride Princess Doreen in the Cofroth Handicap Sunday, arrived in time to see the race run today but too late to ride.

Sea Green captured the Sanford purse at Longwood, Fla., from Overlook and Brownie Smile, the mile being covered in 1:46 3-5. Edward A. Pohlman has taken over the management of the Longwood track.

The Tampa Times handicap featured the day at Tampa Downs with Seth's Alibi the winner of the six furlong spring in 1:17 3-5. Texas was second and Odd Seth third.

DISPUTE ARIES OVER THE USE OF RESIN IN EXHIBITION

LAKELAND, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Rather than disappoint the crowd assembled to see today's game here between the Boston Braves and the Cleveland Indians, Manager Speaker conceded the use of the resin bag to the National lague team though protesting to the officials of that club that it was not sanctioned by American league rules.

The game was delayed an hour as a result of the dispute. Umpire Wilson of the National league also declared that he would not officiate unless the use of the resin bag was permitted by the Boston players.

Use of the resin bag on which pitchers could wipe their hands was sanctioned by the National league at its last meeting.

Frank Ellerbe, purchased by Atlanta some time ago, from the Kansas City club of the American Association, is not so sure he wants to continue in baseball. At any rate, he has shown no disposition to announce that he will join the Southern League team. Owner Michalove will try to coax a third sacker out of the New York Yankees, if Ellerbe does not report.

Frank Zoeller, crack outfielder, who was purchased from Atlanta by the Yankees and turned over to Bill Lane's Hollywood club of the Coast league, is wondering if he has been promoted. According to the best information, Zoeller does not think so, if the figures quoted on his contract are to stand. The little fellow has taken a firm stand and so has Lane.

Representing a football field with a team at play, an enormous wreath was carried at the funeral of a prominent gridiron player in England the other day.

News from the southern training camps has led many New York baseball fans to the opinion that the Yankees made a mistake in letting Pipp go to the Cincinnati Reds.

The great gymnasium-armory just completed at the University of Maine contains the largest indoor baseball field in the world. The diamond is of regulation size, with plenty of room fo rthe infielders to play deep.

The Tri-State Baseball league, with a circuit of six cities in Arkansas, Tennessee and Alabama, will open its second championship season May 3. The schedule calls for a split season, with August 31 as the closing date.

In the Grand National Steeplechase, which will have its annual renewal on the celebrated Aintree course near Liverpool, on March 27, the water jump has a fence 3 feet high and 2 feet 3 inches wide in front of it, and the entire jump is 16 feet.

The claim has been made that the Chinese were the originators of polo. It is said that polo was played in China during the Tang dynasty, about A. D. 600, and the theory is that the Chinese learned the game from the conquered Tartars.

Philadelphia baseball fans would not be surprised if Connie Mack would retire from the active management of the Athletics at the close of the 1926 season. Mack is now in his 63rd year and has had a long and strenuous career in the national game.

The churlish conduct of skippers of steamers was responsible for a calamity which obertook the Cambridge crew in the annual boat race with Oxford in 1859. The race was rowed on a stormy day, and just after a heavy fall of snow. When going to the start Cambridge shipped a large quantity of water, and when their boat was half-full a steamer went in front of them. They pulled on, however, until the boat was on the point of sinking, when the wash from four steamers swamped it.

"Have a Camel"

These words are first call to the world's finest smoke

THE choicest tobaccos grown are bought for Camel cigarettes. Millions of dollars are spent every year to insure their uniform quality.

No money is spared in the making of Camels. The tobacco is cured carefully and aged long. The exclusive Camel blend of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos is the work of experts. The paper in which Camels are rolled is specially made in France to obtain the best. Nothing is too good or too expensive that will make Camels a better smoke. But not a cent is spent to doll up Camel cigarettes. No fancy tips or gay and wasteful wrappings. We believe that the smokers of America want smoking quality without frills.

Camels simply will not tire your taste or leave a cigaretty after-taste, no matter how liberally you smoke them!

"Have a Camel!" is the password to the quality cigarette, with all the quality in the tobacco.

WESTERLY

START ON NEW THEATRE TO BE MADE NEXT WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 24—The work of removing the two feet of loam from the lot, 43 High street, owned by Daniel Novogrod, formerly the site of the Dr. J. Howard Morgan house, until recent demolition occupied by the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross and the Westerly Visiting Nurse association, will be begun the first of next week or as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Samuel V. Magee will remove the loam and then the gravel beneath will be excavated for the new combination business block and theater to be built there for Mr. Novogrod.

Several plans have been prepared for the structure of modern and fireproof construction, of brick, with stores on the street front level and commercial rooms on the second floor. When built the theater will be leased by Mr. Novogrod to some theatrical syndicate, from several of which Mr. Novogrod is reported to have had applications. When built, the block will have a frontage of about 75 feet on High street or more than 11 feet wider than the front of the Bitgen Opera House on Main street in which Mr. Novogrod was the proprietor at the time it was burned Jan. 6, 1925. This will permit a theater building 75 by 140 feet, with seating capacity of 1,200.

In the arrangements of the store fronts the theater entrance will not be in the center of the frontage on High street but at either the up or downgrade end of the High street front. With the theater entrance front in the rear as in the old Bitgen Opera House it was found that the draft when doors were opened made it uncomfortable for theater patrons.

REMOVING IRON POLES OF NORWICH-WESTERLY LINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 24—A force of workmen in the employ of the Rhode Island Public Service company of Westerly was engaged Tuesday and Wednesday in removing the iron poles on the north side of Railroad avenue, which were used for car wires to supply the power for the jacked Norwich and Westerly Lincoln railway. With the removal of rails and ties and sewer mains were set, this takes one of the last visible vestiges of the old electric street railway.

PERIL OF FLOODS MENACE NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, March 24.—(AP)—Northern New England today still faced the peril of flood waters, should weather bureau warnings of a rapidly rising temperature coupled with possible frizzling rain materialize.

With the sudden advent of spring, Maine Vermont and New Hampshire's snow crested hills and mountains fast were being denuded of their cloak of white, and numerous streams trickled down the slopes to join the swollen rivers.

A gradual thaw would do much to relieve the situation, but a warm rain, such as is feared for tomorrow, would be certain to do costly havoc along the paths of many rivers.

Several roads north of Burlington in Vermont were reported as under and it was thought that others would have to be closed to traffic if the water continues its rise tomorrow. In New Hampshire, the condition was more serious. At Nashua the Nashua river had risen an additional six inches, while heavy damage was feared for property along the banks of the overflower Mohawk at Colebrook and Stewartstown.

Ice jams in northern Maine rivers threatened Dams and reservoirs were filled to overflowing in the Penobscot and St. Croix valleys, while the Kennebec and Dead rivers momentarily threatened to blot out adjacent property.

In Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut the flood menace was not great, although there had been a slight rise in the Connecticut river in the Springfield district.

Prickly Porky Climbs the Tree

The obstinate don't try to drive,
If you would anywhere arrive.
OLD MOTHER NATURE.

There is no one in all the Green Forest more obstinate than Prickly Porky the Porcupine. He is just plain contrary. He never wants to do anything that anybody wants him to do. If you want him to go anywhere do not try to drive him there. Instead, try to drive him the opposite direction. Then possibly he will go where you want him to go.

Bowser the Hound was barking at

"Good afternoon, Prickly Porky," said he

some one up in the big hemlock tree over in the Green Forest. Reddy Fox, nicely hidden, was watching and wondering who that some one was up in the big hemlock tree. His curiosity was growing every minutes. But whoever it was, he was keeping nicely hidden. You see he felt quite safe. He knew that Bowser the Hound could not climb that tree. Therefore there was nothing to worry about.

Reddy did wish that Farmer Brown's Boy would come to see what Bowser was barking at. You see, Reddy didn't know that Farmer Brown's Boy had gone away for the day. Then Reddy began to wonder if there wasn't some way of getting that stranger to some down; and while he was wondering he heard a rustling back of him a way. He looked back. There was Prickly Porky the Porcupine, shuffling along.

"If only Prickly Porky would climb that tree that other fellow would have to show himself. I'm sure," thought Reddy. Then, an idea coming to him he trotted back to where Prickly Porky," said he.

"Unk, unk," grunted Prickly Porky in the most disagreeable way.

"Where are you going?" inquired Reddy.

"That's my business," retorted Prickly Porky.

"If I were you I wouldn't go over to that big hemlock tree," said Reddy most politely.

Now, Prickly Porky had had no intention of going to that particular tree, but the instant that Reddy suggested that he shouldn't go there Prickly Porky made up his mind that he would go there. "Why not?" he demanded.

"Because Bowser the Hound is at the foot of the tree."

"What difference does that make to me?" demanded Prickly Porky, and headed straight toward that big hemlock tree.

Now, Prickly Porky is, as you know, one of the most independent of all the little people in the Green Forest. He shuffled along toward that big tree just as if there were no one else in all the Green Forest. Bowser the Hound turned quickly. He was all ready to run open mouthed at whoever it might be. But he didn't. The moment he saw Prickly Porky Bowser backed away. He stopped barking at the one in the tree and began barking at Prickly Porky. You see, once Bowser had had his face full of those little spears with which Prickly Porky's tail is armed and which he carries hidden all through his coat.

Prickly Porky grunted as he shuffled along. He didn't look this way nor that way. He simply moved straight along toward that tree. He paid no attention to Bowser's barking. When he reached the foot of the tree he stopped and looked up. He appeared to be trying to make up his mind whether or not to climb Bowser barked harder than ever, as if he were telling Prickly Porky not to climb that tree. That settled it. Slowly, very slowly, Prickly Porky the Porcupine began to climb the big hemlock tree.

SET NEW HIGH RECORD IN STORRS EGG LAYING

A new high mark in egg production for the fifteenth contest at Storrs was made during the twentieth week when the 1400 pullets shelled out a total of 5,119 eggs, or a lay of slightly over 52 per cent. This is 367 eggs more than were laid last week, and 509 more than were laid for the corresponding week a year ago. A grand total of 79,513 eggs have been laid since the contest got under way last November, which is an average production of 56 eggs per bird.

For the second time in the fifteenth contest, 12 pens managed to lay enough eggs to crowd onto the weekly honor roll. In laying 60 eggs to head the honor roll for the week, the Barred Rock entry of the Ontario Agricultural college from Guelph, Ont., set up the best weekly record attained to date in the fifteenth contest. Their record of 60 eggs out of a possible 70 eggs for the week is a production of almost 86 per cent. Second place for the week was taken by the Rhode Island Red entry of Fabry Bros. from East McKeesport, Pa., with a lay of 54 eggs. Third place saw a tie between two more Red pens, the entries of Hayes Hennery from Dover, N. H., and Edgemont Farm from Northboro, Mass., each with a lay of 52 eggs. A total of seven pens, six Reds and one White Wyandotte, tied for fourth position with a score of 51 eggs each. B. A. Barker of Mazon, Ill., entered the Wyandotte pen. The six Red pens were entered by D. H. Horton, Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y.; R. D. Sargent, East Ryegate, Vt.; Red Mount Farm, Franklin, Mass.; I. W. Mitchell, Wallingford, Conn.; Donald L. Goodenough, Burrville, Conn.; and John Z. LaBelle, Ballouville, Conn. It is interesting to note that nine of the 11 honor roll pens this week are Reds and that for the first time in the present contest there is not a Leghorn entry represented among the high pens for the week. Seventeen pullets in the contest flock managed to make perfect scores of seven eggs each during the twentieth week.

John Z. LaBelle's Rhode Island Red entry continues to increase its lead over other high pens in the contest and now the Connecticut Reds have a total score of 995 eggs. This is an advantage of 105 eggs over their nearest competitor, the White Leghorn entry of the Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

HARVARD HAS NOTHING AGAINST THE PLAY SYSTEM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 24—(AP)—The football rules committee has no objection to the playing of games by the 'play system" if the teams agree to the plan, it was revealed today by Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of athletics at Harvard. After declining to incorporate regulations for the system in the rules book, the committee at its recent meeting voted that it would have no objection to teams running their games by plays instead of time, Mr. Moore said.

Proponents of the system claim various advantages for it, especially elimination of the delaying tactics often employed by teams which have gained a lead early in the game. The plan provides for a stipulated number of plays per period, usually 40, in place of the existing rule limiting quarters to a certain period of time.

The new rule imposing a five yard penalty for each incompleted pass after the first one will not appreciably cut down indiscriminate passing at the end of the game, Mr. Moore said.

Mr. Moore took occasion to state that he had been misunderstood recently in his comment upon the new rule he made it clear that he does not believe that a team that is behind would foreco eleventh hour gambilings for forward passes because they might entail a penalty of five yards, or even more.

The real purpose of the rule, Mr. Moore said was to balance the game and check the over-use of the forward pass throughout the game.

"As a matter of fact, the committee couldn't think of any reasonable rule that would stop gambling with forward passes at the end of a game," he concluded.

MANY NEW SECOND SACKERS LAND PLACES ON MAJOR CLUBS

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Infield reconstruction, problem at many baseball camps for regular baseball teams, has reached its dark stage with a general atmosphere of managerial satisfaction over the training camp tests of extravagant minor league purchases.

The struggle of high priced recruits against veteran campaigners for positions in the pivotal combinations around second base has found youngsters more than holding their own. As a matter of fact, the teams will take the training camp results with nine keystone changes to guess best for the season's opening.

The New York Yankees will begin a brand new outfit in Mark Koenig and Tony Lazzeri. The Detroit Tigers have Ivan Gehringer, their Fordham purchase the call over Frank O'Rourke at second base, while Hunnefield has apparently nosed out the veteran Everett Scott as first string White Sox shortstop.

Buddy Myer, promising Washington infielder, has been regularly appearing at shortstop for the Senators, although Manager Bucky Harris announced in mid-winter he expected to start the veteran, Roger Peckinpaugh. Spurgeon, once regular second sacker of the Cleveland Indians, is being pressed by a promising recruit in Guy Lacy.

Maurice Shannon, last year with Louisville, seems to have satisfied Manager McCarthy as the Cubs' best shortstop possibility for 1926, while Frank Emmer appears likely to crowd Bohne out of the same spot in the Cincinnati infield works. At the camp of the champion Pirates, a three-cornered second base fight has been in progress with Hal Rhyne, Pacific Coast find, making a strong impression on Manager McKechnie, although Johnny Rawlings or Eddie Moore may get the call.

Illness of Johnny Butler and failure of Rabbit Maranville to play up to expectations worries Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Robins. Standaert looms as an infield certainty, either at second or third base. Butler is expected to be a fixture when his health returns, but the Dodgers are still highly uncertain of their opening line-up.

There may be a few third base changes, Picinich having made an impression on Manager Bancroft of the Braves, and Hodapp having pushed Lutzke closely for the same job with Cleveland.

First base issues, however, appear to have been disposed of, with the former Giant pitcher, Jack Bentley, satisfying Manager Fletcher of the Phillies at the initial bag and Wally Pipp closing a gap in the Red's infield.

YALE BOXERS LEAVE FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE TOURNEY

NEW HAVEN, March 24—(AP)—The Yale boxing team will leave here tomorrow for Annapolis to take part in the annual intercollegiate tournament to be held under the auspices of the naval academy on Friday and Saturday. Yale is not a member of the association but because of her prominence in boxing has been invited to take part. The only defeat the Elis have suffered this season has been at the hands of the naval academy, present intercollegiate champions. Yale will have an entry in each of the seven classes.

TILDEN PLAYS SINGLE AGAINST PAIR AND WINS

ATLANTA, Ga., March 24.—(AP)—William Tilden today defeated Alfred Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., 6-4, 6-3, in an exhibition match played on the East Lake country club courts here. The champion also played Chapin and Frank Owens of Atlanta, without a partner, defeating the pair, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5. Tilden played a full court against the two.

EAST LYME MOTORIST CARELESS PAID FINE IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 24.—Samuel T. Bindloss, an East Lyme farmer, was fined $10 in the police court this morning for recklessness in the operation of an automobile truck on Bank street yesterday. Findings had parked in front of the Odd Fellows' building when the truck from the submarine base was moving down Bank street. Archie A. Blatchford was the operator of the latter truck and Rudolph Korn, a marine was a passenger. As the base truck got abreast of the Bindloss machine the vehicle pulled into the highway and there was a crash. The base truck was thrown against another truck that was passing and in which Louis Kitain was hurrying fruit along. Blatchford declared that Bindloss gave no signal that he was to leave the curbing. Blatchford stepped on the brake and endeavored to stop, but he could not avoid the crash. His car fender was broken and otherwise damaged. The Kitain truck suffered more than the others. The front axle was bent, the brake disabled and a spare tire and the rim that held it were torn off. Kitain was out of business. He made inquiry to ascertain what the expense of repairs would be and was told morethan $100. Bindloss in the face of testimony that he did not give a signal that he was to start, declared that he extended his arm. He was found guilty of recklessness and was fined as stated.

SUPPOSED LODGER PROVED JUST A MEAN SNEAK THIEF

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 24.—A sneak thief operated at the lodging house, 14 Main street, conducted by Michael Driscoll this morning and in his search for loot succeeded in getting away with a gold watch, chain and charm and a purse containing $7. The theft was discovered about 7 o'clock and was reported to the police. Sergeant Nelson Smith was assigned to the case and his investigation showed that a stranger was observed by lodgers in the hall way of the place shortly before 7 o'clock, but they believed that the fellow was a new lodger here. The crook visited only the room of Driscoll, so far as is known and made his way to and from the room undetected while Driscoll was engaged about the business of his establishment.

FIRE APPARATUS OUT— AUTOMATIC SPRINKLER USED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 24.—A fire that threatened to assume serious proportions occurred this morning when flames attacked the Armstrong building, Bank street, and but for the fact that the building, a three story brick structure, is equipped throughout with an automatic fire sprinkler, a fire with considerable loss must have occurred.

The fire was discovered about 11.15 o'clock when a quantity of cardboard and wooden crating was found to be ablaze on the third floor of the building, a section of the structure occupied by the R. & J. Waist company. The inflammable material was a mass of flames and an alarm was sent in from Box 32, in front of the fire quarters of the Allen Hook and Ladder company, causing a half dozen pieces of the city's fire fighting equipment to respond. With the arrival of the firemen and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman at the scene of the fire, a line of chemical of the Niagara Engine company was stretched to the third floor, but its service was not needed as Deputy Chief Shipman had the automatic sprinkler set in operation and had a liberal quantity of water thrown upon the burning mass which was quickly extinguished. The damage to the building was trivial, as was the loss by water.

The fire department was called out at midnight for a trivial blaze in one of the apartments of the Ryan block, Bank street, when a lace curtain took fire. Some excited person caused an alarm to be sent in from the corner of Bank and Truman streets, but there was no need of the services of the department as the fire was extinguished by occupants of the place and without damage.

The treasury of the New London fire department was enriched $100 today when Davis & Savard, State street merchants, occupying a store in the four story structure State street, known as the Bacon block, forwarded a check for this amount to Chief Charles Rose as a token of appreciation of the firemen in handling a series of fires, which gutted the store during January.

Work on the foundation for the Woolworth building near the corner of Lane A on the west side of Bank street discloses the necessity of providing some means of keeping water out of the cellar. This, it is believed has been done and a six feet cellar will be provided there that will be free from water though the tide now rises and falls in the cellar.

Work on the Messer building discloses that three stores will be established there. The building is being completely remodelled. It was formerly the residence of the late Michael Finnegan, who amassed a fortune during the years he was a resident here.

Joseph F. and Mary Caldon have sold to Max Steiger a building lot on Squire street.

Oberline Lebeault has sold to Ellen C. Jones a house and a lot on the former United States Housing corporation plot, off Jefferson avenue.

The funeral of Luke Martin held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, among whom was a delegation of members of New London lodge of Elks. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, pastor of the church. The bearers were Joseph Kelley, James R. May, John F. Murray, James Sheedy, Thomas Kaneen and Patrick Leary. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Rose Forader, wife of Max Forader, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 169 North Bank street, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

One New London auto driver and another car owner, a resident of Waterford, have lost the privilege of operating their cars for one year, according to an edict issued last week by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel who suspended the licenses of 31 drivers throughout the state, following the court conviction of the drivers on charges of operating their machines while under the influence of liquor. The New London driver is Albert Alchols and the Waterford man is George Watrous.

There is little or no change today in the condition of James Manning ,37 Colman street, critically ill with pneumonia at his home.

The police of Holyoke, Mass., communicated with the New London police this afternoon relative to facts pertaining to the injuring of Gerald McCarthy, a resident of Holyoke, who was run down by an unknown autoist in Groton Sunday night and left bleeding and injured in the highway, known as Poquonoc road. McCarthy is under treatment at Lawrence hospital suffering from head injuries and lacerations.

Michael Friedman and family have moved from Montville to 317 Huntington street.

Mrs. Esther Carroll, 24 Garfield avenue, is entertaining Thomas R. Murray and family of Woodlynne, N. J.

James F. O'Leary, of Montauk avenue and manager of O'Learys' hotel, who is spending an indefinite period at the home of his brother and partner, Patrick J. O'Leary, in South Manchester, was in New London for a brief period yesterday, making the trip by automobile.

Albert J. Richard of Blackhall street, a carpenter, and Joseph Francis, Bank street, were arrested late this afternoon by Patrolmen George Perkins and Ernest Opperman charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Both were apprehended upon complaint of Richard's wife. Mrs. Richard returned to her home about 6 o'clock and found her husband and Francis there and both in a disgusting state of intoxication. She upbraided her husband, also Francis, and demanded that the latter leave the house. She finally succeeded in persuading Francis to depart, but instead of going from the premises he loitered outside. Mrs. Richard had the door locked, in order to attempt to keep her husband inside the place, but she was unsuccessful for Richard started to make it easy for him to depart by smashing the door. This led to complaint being lodged with the police. When the two officers reached the Richard house both Richard and Francis were found there and both were taken to the police station and lodged in a cell to await being given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. The police have received numerous complaints of late because of the alleged nuisance at the Richard's home, when the husband returns in an intoxicated condition.

Broadway Theatre

The management of the Broadway is giving his personal endorsement to next week's appearance here of the now famed and always popular Myrkle-Harder company in a week's engagement of recent New York stage successes.

The organization will make its initial presentation Monday evening March 29, when it will stage an internationally successful comedy entitled "The Whole Town's Talking", a production that had a whole year's run in New York at the Bijou theatre, and is at present the leading comedy sensation in London, England. All who are associated in the bookings of attractions in Norwich have for a long time been in touch with Mr. Harder regarding this engagement and have become well informed as to the excellent list of plays to be presented here, and feel a sincere pride in offering the attraction to local playgoers. The management says, "Since the close of last season we have received letters at intervals from William H. Harder, who, with Emma Myrkle, sponsor the company opening here Monday evening, and have been impressed from the start by the serious attitude taken by both of them towards their attraction. When you read the title of such plays as "Simon Called Peter," "The Whole Town's Talking," "The Dangerous Age", "The Love Bandit," "Good Bad Woman," "Cheating Husbands," etc by such authors as Willard Mack, John Emerson and Anita Loos, James Eckart Goodman and Edw. Knoblock and Kirkpatrick Boone, and others, it certainly is a pleasure to endorse this engagement which by the way, will be the twenty-ninth annual tour of the Myrkle-Harder company. Seats go on sale Friday morning. Evening seats reserved.

Special thanks to the prince of Wales, the officials of the Calgary Stampede and the Royal Northwest Mounted Police were given by Carl Laemmle for their aiding in the production of "The Calgary Stampede," a Universal-Jewel starring Hoot Gibson which is now at the Broadway theatre.

Inasmuch as the company under Director Herbert Blache spent two months in Canada where every foot of the picture was filmed there can be no claim of inaccuracy.

The prince of Wales and Guy Weadick loaned their ranches to the company for exteriors while the stampede officials almost literally turned the gigantic spectacle of the stampede over to Universal for photographic possibilities.

A thrilling story set in a beautiful background is "The Calgary Stampede." The cast of the picture includes Virginia Brown Faire, Clark Comstock, Ynez Seabury, Jim Corey, W. J. McCulley, Philo McCullough, Charles Sellon, Eva Gregory, Frank Rice, Tex Young and Bill Gillis.

My boy was run down—just about skin and bones, and no appetite, writes Mrs. Baker of Boston.

Now Sturdy and Strong

"I am writing you in the hopes that other Mothers will read this voluntary testimonial regarding McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. My boy, Emanuel, was run down completely. Just about skin and bones; also irritable and with no appetite.

"I noted a wonderful improvement in him while taking your tablets and purchased three more boxes. His appetite picked up, and he is now sturdy and strong. A cheerful youngster and a happy mother want to thank you.

"You may print this at any time or anywhere you wish.

"MRS. ALBERT E. BAKER,
"23 Ridgewood St., Boston, Mass."

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing, and wise parents are buying, McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar coated, and as easy to take as candy.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents, at Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggists.

EDWARD McCLUE JAILED HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 24—Edward McClue, 24, residing with his parents, on Mitchell street, corner of Poquonoc road, Groton, was arrested this morning at his home by Captain of Police Andrew J. McCarthy, charged with indecent assault upon a seven year old youth residing in the neighborhood, the arrest of McClue being at the instigation of his father, who lodged complaint against the young man. Later McClue was presented before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court. Probable cause was found and the accused was bound over to the next term of the superior court. In default of bail of $1,000 McClue was committed to the county jail in this city to await trial.

SHIP & ENGINE COMPANY TO BUILD MORE SUBS FOR PERU

NEW LONDON, March 24.—The New London & Engine company is anticipating the reception of additional orders from the Peruvian government for the construction of submarines, and it would not be surprising if the company was in receipts of several contracts for the building of undersea craft within the next two months. Already the two submarines for the Peruvian government, which have been under course of construction several months are nearing completion and the 20th of April the two crafts will be launched. Plans have already been formulated for the launching and already officers of the Peruvian government are here to take charge of the craft as soon as the submarines are put into the water.

Arrangements at the plant have also been completed for the launching next Saturday of the street ferryboat Elmer V. Jones, which has been in progress in building several months. The ferryboat is 125 feet in length and will be propelled by a 300 horse power Diesel engine. The craft is being constructed for the Brockville and Morristown Transportation company, Canada, and the boat will be operated between Brockville and Morristown. Following the launching the boat will be given a series of tests, after which she will be delivered to her owners and prior to April 15, the contract time for delivery.

The force at the plant is now employed under normal working conditions, eight hours each day, as against 14 hours per day for 14 weeks, during which time there was a rush to get out the work on hand in contract time.

of the streets throughout the city has been started and will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Montauk avenue is still receiving the attention of workmen and as soon as this important highway has been placed in condition Pequot and Ocean avenues will receive like treatment. Some of the streets in the heart of the city that are also in need of repair one of the first being North Bank street for between State and John street, that highway had been filled with depressions since late last winter. Blue stone and tar are being placed in the holes and will answer temporarily.

STATE-WIDE INTEREST IN STATE WORKERS CONFERENCE

State-wide interest centers around the preparations now moving forward for the sixteenth annual Connecticut Conference for Social Work, April 25, 26, 27 and 28 in Norwich. Two hundred and fifty people, including delegates from the social welfare agencies throughout the state and individuals interested in social betterment, are expected to be present. Norwich will throw open its homes to the visitors and the majority of conference members will avail themselves of this old-time hospitality.

Ralph Barrow, of Hartford, general secretary of the conference and executive secretary of the Connecticut Children's Aid society, has arranged a stimulating programme for the convention period. Such national figures as Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau in the department of labor, Washington; Lawson Purdy, general secretary, Charity Organization society, New York city; Dean George C. Kirchwey, Columbia university; and Dr. Elton Mayo, Baltimore, are among those who have been secured to address the sessions.

Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, of Norwich, president of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work, will preside at the opening session on Sunday, April 25. The first day and a half of the conclave will be devoted to a study of children in relation to social welfare agencies and legislation. Delinquency and correction and community life will occupy considerable attention from the conference. Among the other vital problems to merit study and discussion from the delegates are those pertaining to the family, mental hygine, social service, exchanges, health, the unmarried mother and her child, children's protective methods, the foreign born, occupational thearapy and publicity methods in social work.

The conference meetings will be open to all interested persons, upon their payment of membership dues for the current conference year. In addition to the state conference at Norwich a regional conference is being promoted, modeled after the one successfully sponsored at Stafford Springs last November. April 21 is the date set for the regional conclave to take place in New Milford.

Officers of the Connecticut Conference are as follows: Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, of Norwich, president; George S. Palmer, New London, Rev Matthew J. Judge, Hartford. Mrs. John H. Buck, Hartford, Arthur Reed Kimball, Waterbury, vice presidents; Edward Y. Messinger, Norwich, treasurer; and Ralph Barrow, Hartford, general secretary.

The executive committee includes Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, Norwich; I. Robert Broder, New Haven; Miss Margaret F. Byington, Hartford; Miss Marjory Cheney, South Manchester; Judge George H. Day, Hartford; Mrs. Edward C. Douglas, Stamford; Charles E. Dow, Hartford; Mrs. Philip A. Johnson, Norwich; Charles P. Kellogg, Waterbury; Clarence King Bridgeport; Eugene Kerner, Waterbury; Miss Victoria Lamour, Bridgeport, William T. Lynch, Hartford; Richard Mansfield, New London; Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, Norwich; Miss Caroline DeF. Penniman, Middletown; Miss Margaret K. Stack, Hartford; George L. Warren, Bridgeport, and Mrs. C. E. A. Winslow, New Haven.

WARD FOOD PRODUCTS CORPS DENIES GOV'T. ALLEGATIONS

BALTIMORE, Md., March 24—(AP)—Seven corporations, headed by the Ward Food Products corporation, denied, in an answer filed in federal district court today, government allegations that they are engaged in formation of "a huge combination in the baking industry." The government action, a petition in equity filed February 3, asked an injunction on the grounds that the corporations were in violation of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts.

The Ward Food Products corporation is incorporated in Maryland with an assessed capitalization under the laws of this state of $30,000,000,000. Other corporations and individuals involved in the court action are the Ward Baking corporation, the Ward Baking company, the General Baking company, the Continental Baking corporation, and William B. Ward, Howard B. Ward, William Deininger, Paul H. Helme, J. W. Rumbough, B. E. Peterson, George G. Barber and George H. Smith.

The corporations deny that they form a combination controlled from New York, or that their principal officers are officers in other companies or corporations engaged in the manufacture and distribution of food stuffs.

BREAK IN MARKET

NEW YORK, March 24—(AP)—Stock prices broke sharply in today's market under an avalanche of selling orders for both accounts. Net declines in scores of active issues ran from 3 to 10 points, with the average of 20 leading industrial stocks dropping 3.05 points to 128.50, a new low level for the year and 17.57 points below the year's high, established on February 12. Trading was in enormous volume, the day's sales aggregating 2,705,600 shares or more than double those of yesterday.

So far was influenced by a wide variety of factors, chief of which was the heavy calling of bank loans, estimated as high as $25,000,000 which sent the call money rate to 5 1-2 per cent. The highest since the first of the month. This was widely interpreted as an indication that banks favored a further reduction in loans on such collateral which seemed to find no information in the apparent absence of business support by large financial institutions.

Pessimistic trade rumors such as the widespread cancellation of automobile orders, falling off in commodity buying and a slackening in certain retail lines were freely circulated during the day, and apparently found plenty of believers. Other contributing causes to the prevailing bearish sentiment were the omission of the Pennsylvania Coal preferred dividend, failure of the Republic Steel directors to name the action on the common and the postponement of the General Electric annual meeting 1925 earnings to April 7, lowest since 1924 and the beginning of another investigation of packers and stockyards by the federal trade commission.

American Can, old stock, was the weakest issue, breaking 28 points on sales of less than 6,000 shares to 247, a new low record for the year, and nearly four points below the year's low. It rallied to 252 3-4 at the close the new stock sold down to 41 1-8 and later rallied to 42 1-4 one block of 1,000 shares changing hands at 44 1-2. Extreme declines of 5 to 13 points took place in such diversified issues as Allied Chemical, American Brake Shoe and Foundry, California Packing, Commercial Solvents B, Du Pont, Fifth Avenue Coach, Fox Film A, Motion Picture Capital, General Electric, Gimbel Brothers, Hudson Motors, Kelly-Springfield Tire, Kennecott Copper, Loew's Inc., Mack Trucks, Nash Motors, National Biscuit, National Cash Register A, National Tea, Otis Elevator, Pullman, Remington Rand, Republic Iron and Steel, Sears Roebuck, Standard Milling, Studebaker, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Timken Roller Bearing, Union Bag and Paper, United Drug 2nd preferred, United Fruit, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, while moderate rallies took place in some issues, closing prices generally were at or near the lowest levels of the day.

Heavy liquidation of weakened margin accounts was apparent in the issues Mack Trucks was hammered down over 8 points to 107 1-4 and General Motors nearly 7 to 116 1-4, new records of record breaking first quarter production and sales. Hudson which sold as high as 113 1-2 last week slumped nearly 10 points to 80 and then rallied to 88. Fisher Body, Pierce Arrow preferred, White Motors and Stewart-Warner sold down 2 to nearly 5 points.

As a group the oils offered good resistance to selling pressure although net losses of a point or two took place in a few issues, particularly those known to be heavily held in margined accounts. Rails received better support than the industrials, the average of 20 leading issues showing a decline of only 1.55 points on the day.

Commodity markets also were reactionary. Active wheat futures dropped 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 cents a bushel with the drastic decline in stock prices undoubtedly contributing to the liquidation of speculative holdings. Cotton sagged 6 to 11 points and coffee 1 to 17 points. The sugar market held steady.

Call money renewed at 4 3-4 per cent, as compared with 4 1-2 yesterday and 4 1-4 the day before, advanced to 5 and thence to 5 1-2, closing at the top. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A further recession in French francs to 3.43 1-2 cents bringing them to within a few points of the extreme low or 3.42 recorded two years ago, featured the easier foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 7-8 but most of the continental rates showed slight recessions.

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Charles Lang and son, who have been visiting Mrs. Lang's mother, Mrs. Lee Leonard, and her sister, Miss Isabelle Leonard of South Second avenue, have returned to their home in New York.

An item in the Taftville news in Wednesday's Bulletin should have stated that three evening services are to be held during holy week at the Taftville Congregational church.

A number of friends and relatives of Jerry Bentley, surprised him Sunday at his home, 53 Merchants avenue, the occasion being his birthday. He was presented with a smoking set, and many other gifts. During the evening, there was music and singing, and a cake with 32 candles was cut and distributed. Refreshments of cake, fruit and ice cream were served by Mrs. Bentley. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Richard of Groton; Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Fontaine of Jewett City; Mr. and Mrs. James Bentley and son, and daughter, Noella and Joseph Bentley; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith; Mr. and Mrs. George Lamoree Mr. and Mrs. Louis Morrissette, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gueropic.

The members of the home department of the Taftville Congregational church school wish it clearly understood that the social and entertainment that they are to have Friday evening in the church vestry is for all the ladies of the congregation over 15 years of age.

The lenten devotions at the Sacred Heart church Wednesday evening included beads, sermon and benediction of the blessed sacrament.

The standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church met Tuesday evening with the chairman George H. Young presiding. Routine business was transacted, and an appropriation made for the purchase of flowers to be used in the decoration of the church Easter Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Vinal Bogue were appointed a committee to attend to the purchase of the flowers. It was also reported that following action on the matter at a business meeting of the church and congregation, new hymnals had been ordered, and it is believed that they will be ready for use at Easter. A committee was also appointed to ascertain the best method of refinishing the floors in the vestry and parlors, and to bring the same to the attention of the members of the church and congregation.

Lt. Louis Case of South Lyme avenue has resigned his position with the Ponemah mills.

Joseph D Aiken, former assistant agent of the Ponemah mills, who retired last August and has been spending some time in European travel and in the south, was in town Wednesday, calling on old friends.

The members of the Sacred Heart dramatic club are to present their play "Lighthouse Nan" Sunday evening under the auspices of St. Joseph's church of Oneida.

Terence Lariviere was painfully and seriously injured Wednesday morning, when he was struck on the head by a heavy door, which had been knocked off its hinges. Mr. Lariviere sustained a deep scalp wash which took 15 stitches to close. He was attended by Dr. George Thompson and was later taken to the William W. Backus hospital, where he is now a patient.

The interior of the local postoffice has been redecorated.

JURY GAVE $1,000 VERDICT FOR INJURIES MYSTIC GIRL RECEIVED

After 30 minutes of deliberation the jury in the superior court at New London Wednesday returned a verdict of $1,000 for Mary Palencar, 11, of Mystic, who, through her father, Andrew Palencar, brought suit for $10,000 damages against Cyrus F. Mitchell of Mystic. Judge Allen L. Brown accepted the verdict, which was reported by Samuel L. Holdridge, jury foreman. Attorney Benjamin F. Hewitt, plaintiff counsel, concluded up the arguments Wednesday following the addresses of Attorneys Clarence Roche and George R. McKenna, counsel for the defendant. Judge Brown then charged the jury.

Late Tuesday afternoon, Attorney Clarence Roche started the defense argument and Attorney McKenna finished Wednesday morning.

Miss Palencar sued to recover for injuries received when she was knocked down by a car driven by the defendant in Greenmanville avenue, Mystic, in 1923. According to the allegations, the girl received a broken collarbone and injuries about the head, leg and foot.

Suit for Death Through Fall

Damages of $10,000 are asked in the case of Attorney Clayton B. Smith, administrator of the estate of Dell Phillips, late of New London, against Francisco Scialabba, also of that city, which started in the afternoon after the Palencar verdict had been reached. Attorney C. Hadlai Hull appears for Attorney Smith and Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and William T. Connor are conducting the case for the defendant. One peculiar feature of the case is that the suit brings in John Quinn, stepson of the late Dell Phillips, as one of the plaintiffs, while the defendant is at present bondsman for Quinn, who is bound over to the superior court on a charge of violating the liquor law.

Attorney Smith, as administrator, seeks to recover damages for the death of Dell Phillips, who, according to the papers in the complaint, fell from the veranda of the building owned by Scialabba, at 690-698 Bank street, when the rail which, according to the allegations, was rotten and in need of repair gave way as Phillips was about to cast some sweepings over the banister. The allegations charge the owner of the property with not having the veranda in good repair and with negligence and carelessness. The accident is alleged to have taken place on June 21, 1925.

ROTARIANS HEAR OF Y. M. C. A. BOYS' WORK

Two interesting talks, one by Rotarian Arthur M. Thompson and the other by Arthur N. Cotton, boys' work secretary of the national council Y. M. C. A., featured the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President Edwin A. Harris presided at the meeting and in the absence of William H. Oat, who was scheduled to be song-leader for the day, E. Howard Baker of Stamford, former member of the club, acted in that capacity.

It was announced at the meeting that Henry J. LaFontaine, local vocalist, would give a song recital for the benefit of the Dr. John S. Blackmar Boys Work fund. Mr. LaFontaine is to be accompanied at the piano by Evadne Lappan who was the accompanist for Mme. Louise Homer.

A report on ladies' night was given by Dr Clarence A. Spear, who said that the advance sale of tickets was very large. District Governor John Alison of Holyoke and Mrs. Alison notified the club of their acceptance of the invitation to be the club's guests at this social function.

Arthur M. Thompson was the first shaute speaker of the day and took for his topic, "Why Rotary?" He said in part:

Rotary, in the great competition of [illegible] romance more fantastic than all fiction. Today science [illegible] the dawn of an awakening bewilderment to which all geological eons led up and for which the world through untold ages had been [illegible] and combing a day of days when man first stood upon [illegible] and looked around with new [illegible] mind and a soul to [illegible] the beauty [illegible] and the [illegible] of the [illegible] the midst of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN BERLIN ENDS AN AMERICAN ROMANCE

John B. Goodrich, a Medical Student From Monroe, N. H., Shot and Killed Miss Alice Fitzner, a Dancer From Cleveland, and Then Killed Himself—Shooting Occurred in a Taxicab Among the After-Theatre Crowds—Jealousy of an Impoverished Russian Nobleman Given as the Cause.

BERLIN, March 25.—(AP)—A three year romance of two young Americans ended in tragedy on Berlin's "White Way" early today, when John B. Goodrich, a medical student from Monroe, N. H., shot and killed Miss Alice Fitzner, a dancer from Cleveland, described as unusually beautiful, and then killed himself. He was 23, she 21.

The shooting occurred while the couple were riding in a taxicab making its way among the after-theatre crowds.

Jealousy of an impoverished Russian nobleman named Wassiljev, who was dancing in the same theatre with Miss Fitzner, is believed to have been the cause for Goodrich's action. He died almost immediately with a bullet in his brain, but Miss Fitzner lived a few hours in a hospital.

The couple had been engaged for some time, and last March he obtained a marriage license, which was never used. It was after this that his fiancee said it could never become friendly with the Russian, and he became despondent.

Both lived in moderate circumstances. Miss Fitzner made her Berlin home with an elderly woman vocal teacher in a humbly furnished room.

There was no evidence of any suicide pact, and a letter to Miss Fitzner from her parents indicated that she feared death because of her breach with Goodrich. Miss Fitzner was born in Detroit, but her parents now live in Lakewood, a Cleveland suburb.

Goodrich was the son of the late Rev. George Goodrich of Laconia, N. H. His stepmother, Mrs. Carrie Goodrich, lives in Liverpool, N. Y. He had been studying medicine in Germany for three years, having been in Jena and Munich before coming to Berlin.

The American consulate has assumed charge of the bodies. An inquest will be held tomorrow, at which the girl's uncle, named Settmann, is expected to testify.

R. I. FAVORS AMENDMENTS OF THE PROHIBITION ACT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 25—(AP)—A resolution requesting that the senators and representatives of Rhode Island in congress support legislation to amend the national prohibition act and to submit the question to a vote of the people, who passed today by the Rhode Island house of representatives. About 30 republicans voted with an equal number of democrats in support of the resolution, which was passed 60 to 32. The resolution, sponsored by Representatives James A. Kiernan of Providence, democrat, is the first of its kind to be adopted by a state legislative body.

Today's action followed hard on the heels of the rejection by the same body last Friday of legislation designed to put more teeth in Rhode Island's enforcement law. The resolution itself was taken away from the committee last week. It was passed today over bitter opposition and only after an attempt to postpone action had been defeated.

The resolution as passed particularly stipulates that support of modification legislation be accorded "provided that said bill shall be amended by adding thereto a referendum clause requiring that said legislation shall be referred to the people for a vote thereon."

ANOTHER BREAK IN PRICES OF STOCKS

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Another selling movement swept over today's stock market, carrying 104 individual issues to new low records for the year, but an irregular recovery was under way as the market closed. Final quotations disclosed a heavy number of net declines ranging from 1 to 11 points, and a much smaller number of net gains ranging from 1 to 3 points. Trading was not as heavy as yesterday, the day's sales aggregating 2,931,200 shares.

Banks called about $10,000,000 additional in loans today, bringing the week's total to around $70,000,000, with the result that call money opened at 6 per cent., the highest renewal rate since the sharp break earlier in the month, but it did not go above that figure as it did yesterday. The recent heavy withdrawal of funds from the call money market was ascribed by some bankers to the preparation of interior banks for the usual heavy April 1 demands of farmers, who need money for spring planting purposes. Reports also were current today that many brokers had been called upon to "sweeten their loans" by replacing speculative securities with more high grade investment issues as loan collateral.

TWO SESSIONS AT YALE COMMENCEMENT THIS YEAR

NEW HAVEN, March 25—(AP)—Yale university will divide its commencement exercises into two sessions this year. This is made necessary by the large size of its graduating classes and the fact that Yale's largest auditorium seats 2,800 ersons, a number which almost exactly corresponds to that of the number of these classes and the representatives of their families permitted to attend.

Under the new program, the first part of the commencement exercises will be for the undergraduates and their families, and the second part for the alumni and recipients of honorary graduate and professional degrees.

Because of the size of the class at Yale, faculty members, alumni, and special guests have practically been excluded from commencement in the last two or three years. Various proposals have been advanced to remedy the situation among them that the exercises should be held out of doors—perhaps even at Yale bowl.

MALVY THE POLITICAL OBSTACLE IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 25—(AP)—Activities relative to M. Peret's financial measures are mostly confined to the lobbies of the chamber of deputies, where the friends of the government are endeavoring to bring into line enough deputies to pass the bills. The weakness of the franc is the argument which has had the most influence in the past two days.

It is regarded as possible that the government could muster a majority were it not for the determined opposition of the medorates and conservatives to Louis Malvy's presence in the cabinet as minister of the interior.

M. Malvy went to the south of France a few days ago to recuperate from a collapse which he suffered at the conclusion of a speech in his own defense in the chamber, and it is currently reported that he left his resignation in the hands of Premier Briand, to become effective whenever the premier considered it necessary.

It was remarked by several deputies that M. Briand had sacrificed two ministers of finance, and the least that could be expected of him would be to sacrifice one minister of the interior in order to get a majority to pass the financial restoration measures.

The chamber today passed the revenue section of the finance bill by a vote of 414 to 128. This section provides for revenue amounting to 36,451,000,000 francs, about $1,275,785,000, and now goes to the senate. This, however, does not balance the budget, as there still a deficit of 4,373,000,000 francs.

AROUSED BY ASPERSIONS CAST UPON ROGER WILLIAMS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 25.—(AP)—Baptists of Rhode Island have been aroused because of a statement made by Judge Claude C. Ball in a Pawtucket speech in which he said Roger Williams, the founder of the state, its first Baptist and traditional friend of the Indians, was "like all other traders, who drank and got the Indians drunk before they made contracts for land purchases to their own advantage."

Many prominent men in the denomination today declared that Judge Ball, who himself is a Baptist, should be censured. They stoutly maintain that Roger Williams was a man of "high principles and high ideals who would not stoop to such a thing." Furthermore they are unanimous in the belief that such remarks tend to break down American traditions and in addition have a bad influence upon young persons who have always been taught to believe in Roger Williams as a godly man.

FOUR MEXICANS HELD FOR SLAYING AMERICAN

MEXICO CITY, March 25—(AP)—Four Mexicans have been arrested and placed in jail at Ixtlan under charges in connection with the recent murder of Rex McIlponie, an American, near Ixtlan, William P. Blocker, American consul at Mazatlan, reported to the American embassy today.

Another Mexican, Remigio Ruelas, already was held charged with the murder of Joe Hall, an American employed by the Mexican National railways, last Monday near Ixtlan.

Consul Blocker made a personal investigation at Ixtlan and Tepic, regarding the two murders. Afterward he telegraphed the embassy that the Mexican federal and state authorities were doing their utmost to capture all those involved in the murders of Hall and McIponé and the wounding of E. H. Heidenkamp, another American, who was with McIponew hen he was killed.

The embassy recived a note from the foreign office today saying that President Calles himself has ordered that the greatest possible effort be made to apprhend those two had attacked the American and that the government was doing everything possible.

MAINE'S OLDEST WILL BE 105 YEARS OLD TODAY

PORTLAND, Me., March 25.—(AP)—The dawning of another day will bring to Mrs. Maria Deland, Maine's oldest woman, her 105th birthday. She awaits the event in her home here.

Such celebrations are simpler than they were when she was approaching the century mark, but they still mean calls from relatives and cards and flowers from friends. Although "Aunt Jule's" health is not the best, her mind is still unimpaired, and she can talk with intelligence and interest of current events.

Mrs. Deland was born when Portland was little more than a village, just after the state of Maine divorced itself from Massachusetts.

Injunction Against Victor Page Motors

Action Brought to Restrain Selling of Any More of Its Stocks or Bonds.

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Callaghan today signed a temporary injunction restraining the Victor Page Motors corporation of Stamford, Conn., from selling any more of its stock or bonds. The action was taken on the petition of Deputy Attorney General Milholland.

The case is returnable on Tuesday when arguments will be held to make the injunction permanent.

Milholland asserted that since the corporation was formed in 1931 it has taken in $565,000 for securities, but has not produced a car.

John P. Knox, of Stamford, Conn., general counsel for the corporation, argued against the signing of the temporary order. He said that the firm was ready to produce machines and attributed the litigation to an employe of the company who had been hired to promote it.

This employe, he asserted, had pledged the company to things that it could not do and had in this way aroused animosity against it.

ARTICLES OF IMPEACHMENT AGAINST JUDGE ENGLISH

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—Five articles of impeachment against Federal Judge George W. English, of Illinois, for "high misdemeanors in office" were laid before the house today by its judiciary committee, and will be taken up next Tuesday.

After redrafting its report several times in a futile attempt to submit its recommendations unanimously, the committee asked and obtained the consent of the house that three members be granted until tomorrow afternoon to file a minority report opposing impeachment.

The indictment presented by the majority charged unwarranted disbarment of attorneys, threats and censure of state officials, threatening a jury in court, tyrannous attacks on the liberty of the press, profanity and other misbehavior, appointment of C. B. Thomas as "sole refere bankruptcy", changes in court rules, partisanship in a "bankruptcy ring," misuse of bankruptcy funds, favoritism and partiality, unlawful appointment of receivers, and confessed neglect of duties.

If a majority of the house upholds the committee in these charges, the senate will sit as a court to decide whether Judge English shall be removed from office. A two-thirds decision will be required in the senate for conviction.

The jurist was appointed to his present position in 1918 by President Wilson, on the recommendation of Samuel Gompers, the labor leader. He is the eleventh federal judge in American history to be accused of misconduct in impeachment charges filed with the house. The committee acted after months of investigation, and after much debate in executive session.

300 CHILDREN SNATCHED FROM PATH OF TORNADO

ORANGE, Tex., March 25—(AP)—Three hundred children were snatched from the path of a tornado that swept the village of Orange Field, Texas, today, and were brought safely through the rending gale by Superintendent P. N. Powell, of the Orangefield schools.

Not a child was hurt, although the tornado caused the death of one person and the injury of eight others as it tore through Orangefield and the oil field went of here doing damage estimated at $1,000,000.

Superintendent Powell, a modest gray haired school teacher with his left arm off, had just lined up his 300 charges this morning when he heard the olnous roar and saw the approaching funnel shaped cloud which meant a tornado. The children were ready to enter the school building.

Quickly the superintendent ordered the children to march to the auditorium instead of their separate rooms.

Patting the heads of whimpering and trembling boys and girls and smiling into their frightened faces as they huddled together in the auditorium, the 50 year old school man was calmly about his duty as the tornado neared the building.

Above the howling storm came the sound of timbers splintering and glass shattering as the school house was wrenched and rocked on its foundation. Not a child among the 300 cried out. Superintendent Powell had been firm in warning the boys and girls that under no circumstances were they to scream or start a panic.

One wall of the brick structure was torn loose by the twisting wind but not a child was scratched.

Had the children been caught in the open many probably would have been killed.

IRVIN S. COBB TESTIFIES IN "BATH TUB PARTY" CASE

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Irvin S. Cobb, who was a guest at the recent Earl Carroll "bath tub party" in which Joyce Hawley, a chorus girl, was alleged to have appeared nude in a tub of wine, went before the federal grand jury today and told his version of the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Cobb told newspaper men that he "arrived early and left early" at the party. He said that he himself, was not a drinking man "because you're not sure of what you get these days." For that reason, he said, he did not know of any intoxicating liquor having been used at the party.

"I saw a bathtub filled with a pink liquid," he said, "and I saw a half barrel of what was said to be near beer, but that is all I saw at the party."

Mr. Cobb said he supposed the only reason he had been subpoenaed as a witness was that his face was one not easily forgotten.

HOLD-UP IN CAPITAL LUNCH, BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, March 25.—(AP)—After calmly ordering and eating a meal of steak and onions, a daring bandit at 9 o'clock tonight, held up and robbed at the point of a revolver, Thomas Billeas, owner of the Capital lunch at 477 South Main street. One hundred dollars in the proprietor's pockets was overlooked by the bandit, who was content with a sum of $17 he obtained from the cash register. Detectives on the scene of the robbery within ten minutes were unable to find any trace of the bandit, whose description tallies with the one obtained when a tray of aqua marine rings were stolen from the window of Fairchilds jewelry store in the Arcade after a window was broken a few nights ago.

New Move in Gerald Chapman Case Today

Effort for New Trial to be Based Upon Testimony of Several New Witnesses.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—A last effort to obtain a new trial for Gerald Chapman, under sentence of death for murder in Connecticut, will be made probably tomorrow, counsel for Chapman announced today. This attempt will be based upon the testimony of several new witnesses, recently located, Frederick Groehl said.

Chapman had been sentenced to hang April 6, and this announcement today was made at a conference of Mrs. Groehl and associated attorneys to consider the final move.

Ray Wiley, one of those present, said that the petition probably would be filed tomorrow although the court in which it will be filed remains to be determined. He said that it could be presented in the United States supreme court, the district court in Connecticut or the circuit court in New York.

"The latter course," he said, seems the more likely now, since under a new statute, we could file our petition in the district court of Connecticut in case habeas corpus is refused in New York and then have 30 days within which to perfect our appeal. If we applied to the supreme court, the procedure would be to issue an order of notice and before the red tape unwound it would be too late as such an order does not act as a stay on state proceedings."

CONFERENCE ON STREET AND HIGHWAY SAFETY

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—A uniform traffic code for the guidance of motorists and pedestrians throughout th ceountry was adopted at the concluding session today of the second national conference on street and highway safety.

The code embraces three legislative proposals which would govern issuance of motor vehicle registration cards, certificates of title and operators' and chauffeurs' licenses, and regulate the operation of vehicles on highways.

Governor Winant of New Hampshire, urged the approximately 1,000 delegates to the conference, including representatives of 46 governors, to "take the initiative in placing the recommendations before the various states and municipalities.

Secretary Hoover, in a closing address, warned that if progress was to be made, centralized government should be discouraged in favor of government "by stimulation of the local community of its responsibilities and the education of the local community to intelligent action." He declared the work of the conference, if universally adopted, undoubtedly would result in a diminition of traffic laws.

The conference recommended that pedestrians as well as motorists be required to obey traffic rules and to pay fines for infractions. It also proposed creation of a general committee by Secretary Hoover to coordinate the activities of all the eight committees of the conference.

As the safety conference came to a close, motor club executives of the American Automobile association began a session to consider safety, uniformity and tourist problems.

COMMITTEE VOTES 10-1 TO UNSEAT SENATOR BROOKHART

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—Read out of the republican party councils last year by his senatorial colleagues, Smith W. Brookhart, republican insurgent from Iowa, is faced now with a last ditch battle to save himself from being put out of the senate.

His cause received a blow today when the senate elections committee voted 10 to 1 to unseat him in favor of his democratic opponent, Daniel F. Steck, who contested his election. This action of the committee followed an unanimous report of a sub-committee which held that Steck received a plurality of the votes and should be seated.

The conclusions of the sub-committee carried great weight with the full committee, as the sub-committee conducted an official recount in Washington of the ballots and held extensive hearings. The findings of the majority of the entire committee were reached on the ground that it was the intent of the voters of Iowa to elect Steck but that even if the law alone guided, Steck would have a small plurality.

NEW YORK POLICE AWAIT GENTLEMAN RADIO BURGLAR

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Armed with the first description they have had of the "gentleman radio burglar," 150 police tonight swarmed the Woodhaven section of Queens awaiting the reappearance of the man who during the last seven weeks has shot three policemen and stolen 150 radio sets.

The description was furnished by Patrolman Donnelly, one of the robber's latest victims, who turned his flashlight on the man last night, just before the burglar shot him. Several times the fact that police have not had his description has enabled the robber to escape from them by posing as one of their number or as a resident of the neighborhood.

Last night he slipped out of a net of five policemen by pretending to Patrolman Donnelly that he was a resident until he was near enough to shoot the patrolman. He then fooled Patrolman Kenny by pretending to be a fellow officer. He shot Kenny injuring him so badly that he may die. Donnelly will recover.

WOULD FIGHT UNDESIRABLE EFFECTS OF PROHIBITION

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 25.—(AP)—Prohibition in the United States was attacked today by women delegates on the league of nations commission for the protection of women and children.

Senator Posner of Poland discussing the evil effects of alcohol on women and children, remarked that he assumed all present were prohibitionists.

"We are not!" exclaimed Mme. Avril Sainte Croix of France and Mme. Eetrid Hein of Denmark. They added that they were willing to fight excessive use of alcohol, but were ready also to fight the undesirable effects of prohibition.

Mme. Sainte Croix referred to her visit to America saying she was told while there that prohibition had resulted in increased drinking among women.

THREE MEN STABBED BY STRIKING FUR WORKERS

During General Fight in the Ghetto, New York, When Fifteen Strikers Raided the Home of a Man Who They Suspected Was Secretly Doing His Work at Home—Clifton, N. J., Police Disperse 600 Striking Textile Workers by Free Use of Clubs.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Three men were stabbed and four shots were fired in a general fight in the Ghetto late today when 15 striking fur workers raided the home of William Levy, aged 35, who they charged, was secretly doing his work at home instead of co-operating with them.

When the word of the fight reached the police two patrol wagons were rushed to the scene.

They found Levy, his wife, and son, and two men trying to beat back a mob, armed with clubs, from the door of their tenement. Twelve of the invaders were arrested and several others were chased across the roofs of adjoining buildings. Neither Levy nor his friends were injured.

Police detectives arriving at the scene after the fight made those whom they saw enter a taxicab and later found them being treated for head wounds in a physician's office. Two also were arrested.

Those held will be arraigned tomorrow the police said on charges of disorderly conduct.

CLIFTON POLICE DISPERSE STRIKERS BY USE OF CLUBS

PASSAIC, N. J., March 25—(AP)—Six hundred striking textile workers, converging in lines of 300 each from opposite directions, were routed today at Ackerman avenue and Randolph avenue, Clifton, by the clubs of the Clifton police.

One group of strikers came from Belmont hall, Garfield, crossing Ackerman avenue bridge after picketing the plant of the Samuel Hird's Sons' company. At the Clifton end of the bridge they were met by a squad of 20 police who allowed them to pass at first. The riot was caused by the arival of a similar line of strikers from Ukranian hall, in Passaic.

As the two lines converged at Randolph avenue and attempted to pass the Forstmann and Huffman mill the police stopped them. Five arrests were made. Those held were charged with being disorderly persons.

When the struggle between the strikers and the police was at its worst three bread trucks from New York with a shipment of food stuffs for the strikers' relief arrived. As the drivers fled from the scene of the riot they were arrested for speeding.

FLIMSY GARBED YOUTHS HAUNT TOKYO STREETS

TOKYO, March 25.—(AP)—Youths clad in little more than pleasant smiles are to be seen running through the streets of Tokyo and other Japanese cities. They are a source of amusement to visiting foreigners.

But there is a reason. They are apprentices and young workmen practicing the "mizagori" or age-old water purification rites in Fudo temples to improve, through the grace of that particular god, their craftsmanship.

Their costumes look like abbreviated Ku Kux Klan robes, without the mask. They are only white cotton cloths, loosely thrown about cold hardened bodies, and other smaller cloths wound around the head. Cotton cloth shoes are worn but legs are bare.

As they run through the streets, usually in groups, the youths carry Japanese lanterns and tinkling bells herald their approach and they chant "Rokkon Shojo" a prayer in which they ask to be cleansed of the six roots of evil.

Sometimes there are women among them. Years ago the apprentices were nothing except loin cloths. The flimsy cotton garb worn now is not for warmth but to comply with police regulations.

These religious pilgrims start from their homes shortly after dinner. They meet in appointed places and then begin their maration to the nearest Fudo temple. As they run they keep their minds on their rites and they indulge in no boyish caprices. They chant unceasingly.

When the runners reach the temple they assemble at the well in the temple's spacious compound. Here they cast aside their single cloths and pour cold water over themselves from the tops of their heads. Then they offer prayer to Fudo. Hot amasake, a sweet, non-alcoholic drink made from rice, is served to the pilgrims by the temple authorities and the homeward trip is begun, with the same chanting and tingling of bells.

Even if their prayers are not answered, the followers of Fudo believe, their sensibilities and exercises give them endurance, hardiness and healthy circulation of the blood. Wind, rain and snow do not interfere with the practicing of the rites and few of these devout believers suffer any illness from exposure.

SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION FOR APPRENTICES IN TRADES

BRIDGEPORT, March 25.—(AP)—The executive board of the Manufacturers' association has signified its approval of the plan of giving school instruction to apprentices in the various trades through an arrangement between the manufacturers and the state trade school, whereby apprentices working in these shops will be paid full pay during one day a week when they will attend the school to obtain the schooling related to their trades, spelling, reading, mathematics and trade theories. The plan will go into active operation upon the occupation of the new trade school building on South street, in June.

At the present time about 40 men are being instructed at the school in the same manner under private auspices with 14 manufacturing firms but with the inclusion of the removal of the last limits of the association, it is believed that the scope of the plan will be enlarged to take in evening courses in some of the trades. The executive board of the association has evidenced an interest in the starting of an apprenticeship course in engineering especially and the new school with its equipment, will make possible instruction in foundry work not available before.

STANTON L. BRIGGS HEADS DRY ENFORCEMENT SQUAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, March 25—Stanton L. Briggs has been appointed to have charge of the Eastern Connecticut prohibition enforcement squad, with headquarters in New London. An order to this effect was issued from headquarters at Hartford Wednesday. Chief Briggs has been connected with the force since August 29, 1921. He is a resident of this city at present.

Chief Briggs and two of his men, Harry W. Avery of South Windham and Joseph Fitzpatrick of Norwich started in business with an excellent catch on Bank street, New London at 6 o'clock Thursday morning where they captured Mike Costello, proprietor of the Garden of Italy Restaurant at Ocean Beach. Costello had been watched for some time. As he drove a new Nash car to a house on Bank street and started to take two cans of alcohol from the rear of the car the officers appeared and placed him under arrest. The machine was loaded with ten gallons of alcohol and in secret compartments under the flooring were eight quarts of alleged bonded whiskey. Costello was taken before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at Norwich. He waived examination and was placed under a bond of $1,000 for his appearance at the next term of the United States court, to answer to charges of keeping liquor in his possession and transporting it. The automobile seized is owned by Frank Motto of 15 Holmes street, West Haven.

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 25—What was announced as a final continuance was granted Morris Spector, charged with failure to provide proper care and moral surroundings for his three minor children, when he was presented in police court Thursday morning. The case will be disposed of next Saturday morning. Spector was to have had his children with him in court, but he came without them, stating that when he left Norwich his wife refused to dress the children for the trip. Spector was accused of stalling the case and was told that Saturday would be his last chance. Spector said that he had petitioned for a divorce and he hoped that it would be granted him. There is some doubt of the success of his petition, however, as there appears to be knowledge by the authorities that Spector has been living with his wife, in Norwich on various occasions during the past few months.

By agreement with the Connecticut Humane society, Spector was to have placed two of the children with a family in Mansfield and the other in a Hebrew children's home. It was found that he had not done this and that the children wer living with the mother in Norwich, where the moral conditions were far from acceptable. Mr. and Mrs. Spector have been separated for about two years.

Lamoureux was the final speaker. He reported on the finances of the organization, showing that a net balance of eight thousand dollars is in the treasury. The lodge is free from debt, makes quick reimbursements in case of illness among its membership and is in a healthy condition generally. New officers were nominated during the business meeting. They will be elected at the lodge meeting on the evening of April 7. Vocal solos, dances and a minstrel show made up the evening's entertainment.

Quaker Oats "stands by" you through the morning

That's why doctors urge it to start every day

TO feel right through the morning, you must have well-balanced, complete food at breakfast. At most other meals—that is, at luncheon and at dinner—you usually get that kind of food.

But at breakfast the great dietary mistake is most often made—a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 68% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Food that should start every breakfast in your home.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

The Holmes family in Pachaug are all ill with grip.

Linemen of the Southern New England Telephone company, were busy Thursday removing the old cable from the Main street poles. This heavy bunch of copper wires encased in a sheathing of lead, was first sawed off in long lengths at each pole. Then, when released from its first few hangers, its weight would tear it loose from the long line, and with a loud snapping of the many suspension bands down it would come to the street, where it was chopped into 6 foot lengths, and carted away for such salvage as is possible.

There are a good many things connected with the return of spring each year, that call to the minds of some of the older boys hereabouts incidents connected with the egg hunting expeditions of earlier days. Always about this time come the search for an owl's nest, and today fortunate would be the boy who could add one of the big hooter's eggs to his collection. One year, an advertisement appeared in the Forest and Stream, offering a good price for owl's eggs. That spring the Prentice boys, then living on the Pachaug road, found seven nests and secured thirteen eggs, for which the collector paid them ten dollars.

MR. COOLIDGE ENJOYS CIGARS BUT NOT PIPE OR CIGARETTE

WASHINGTON, March. 25 (AP)—President Coolidge enjoys a good cigar. But, unlike Vice President Dawes, he does not care for a pipe, and differing from his predecessor in office, President Harding, he rarely, if ever, smokes cigarettes.

Although there is a widespread impression that Mr. Coolidge is partial to cheap cigars—stogies, cheroots or five centers that former Vice President Marshall extolled, he really confines his smoking almost entirely to a rather expensive brand—a perfecto that retails for at least a quarter and has a wide sale in exclusive men's clubs.

The president smokes several cigars a day. He uses an ivory holder which at quick glance looks like a cigarette and has given a rise to reports that at times he tries a cigarette for a change.

As for pipes—Mr. Coolidge has received a number of them as gifts, but he never uses them.

ANCIENT SQUARE PIANO IN DEMAND AS ANTIQUE

LOS ANGELES, March 25 (AP)—A corner in "squares," the ancient piano that was popular before the vogue of the upright or grand, has caused a mild flurry in the musical instrument market here.

The "squares" until recently were to be found in some numbers at the large piano stores. But the craving for antique furniture and the demand from the movie studio for the instruments to be used in pictures having settings of 75 years ago, has virtually depleted the available supply.

A search of the piano shops revealed there are scarcely any left in playable condition.

The case of the old "square" was usually made of rosewood or mahogany; of solid pieces rather than veering. There was art and skill in the work of the old cabinet makers and even modern owners who do not care for the "square tone" admire the old instruments for the superb craftsmanship and artistry that went into their making.

SON OF EXPLORER TO MAKE FIRST TRIP TO ARCTIC

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Robert Peary, son of the north pole discoverer, is following in the footsteps of his father and hopes some day to become a great explorer.

Scientific studies now are claiming his attention at Lehigh university, but when June and vacation time roll around, he will take his first trip northward with the Putnam-Williams expedition to Greenland to gather material for the newly completed Hall of Ocean Life of the American Museum of Natural History.

Young Peary is not taking the trip as a pleasure jaunt. Instead, he will be a full-fledged member and will have work mapped out for him just as all others of the party.

The same man who was skipper of the vessel used by Peary on his successful north pole expedition will command the Morrissey on the Greenland trip—Captain Bob Bartlett. The navigator, who has known of young Peary's plans, long has wanted him to make his first trip on the Morrissey.

H. C. Raven, assistant curator of comparative and human anatomy at the museum, is heading the expedition, which was organized by George Palmer Putnam, the publisher, and provided for through a gift by Harrison Williams.

The white whale, sharks, seal and walrus are some of the specimens the party will bring back. Attempts will be made to take movies of the white whale in action as there are no such photographs on record.

Frederick Limekiller and Van Campden Heilner will accompany the party as taxidermist and ichthyologist, respectively. Knud Rasmussen, Danish explorer, also is expected to join the expedition. The youngest member will be Putnam's 12 year old son, David.

DANIELSON

WARREN FIRE ALARM CONSIDERED PRACTICAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 25—Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department and Richard D. Banigan, of the board of burgesses, made an evening trip Wednesday to Warren, R. I., to hear a test call blown on such an auxiliary fire alarm as electors at the annual borough meeting early next month will be asked to authorize for installation here, on the central fire station. Chief Woodward said Thursday that the Warren siren is the real thing—forceful enough to make an overshoe jump up and bark at the sound of it, day or night.

Wild geese—awful wild, were reported in this territory Thursday morning, heading toward the northlands. A particular reason for their excessive wildness, as indicated by the volume of the raucous honking in which they indulged themselves while over Killingly territory, may have been due to the fact that bodies of water where they are accustomed to alight on their northward flights each spring remain sheathed with ice. Flocks of wild geese often alight at Killingly pond and other reservoirs near East Killingly. Though but a few days of March remain, these reservoirs remain frozen over. They are usually clear of ice in early March. That's one of the things that made the wild geese wilder on Thursday.

It has come to light that a complaint has been sent to the state highway department about the condition of Palmer street, deep with ruts that go down through inches of heavy mud these early spring days. The especially interesting thing about this protest is that the state highway department has no more to do with the upkeep of Palmer street than the Khedive of Egypt. Palmer street is under the control of the town of Killingly. It is not a state highway. Incidentally the street is not in worse condition than some other borough streets undergoing the usual early spring transition from frozen ground to a band of mud that will dry out in due course.

There have been 52 fire alarms in Danielson during the borough year that will end next Wednesday night. This is a record number of alarms for this community. As is the general rule, the great majority of the alarms have been for chimney fires. It is possible that numbers of these have been caused by the clogging of chimneys through the use of substitute fuels during the hard coal strike, which endured the greater part of the winter. However, some of the fires were of a more serious nature and the total of losses this year is larger than in any year for several years, though not excessive by any means, if the value of all the property within the borough limits is considered.

Propaganda, if one wishes to classify it under that name, undoubtedly has its rewards, whether for good or evil. For the good of Danielson, let it be known that efforts of the chamber of commerce to broadcast Danielson's attractiveness and its advantageous possibilities for manufacturing enterprises has not failed to arouse attention. Information, in printed form, made available by the chamber of commerce and commended upon in the press is bringing inquiries, even from Connecticut points for copies of the chamber's publication. That's a good sign. It suggests the possibility of some manufacturer becoming interested.

Nearly 150 were present in American Legion hall Wednesday evening at a joint meeting of Leo J. L'Hommie post and the woman's auxiliary theref. State Commander Harry C. Jackson, of Putnam, of the legion, addressed the gathering. He was very late in arriving, having lost his road in driving over, but all appreciated his coming and what he had to say. Another speaker was Rev. W. Harding Gaylord, new pastor of the Westfield Congregational church. A special feature of the evening was an entertainment presented by members of the auxiliary, this including a minstrel, with many jokes and funny sayings with local application.

"Water 65 feet deep." So comes the report from the Kent reservoir dam, a few miles east of here, where the vast water reserve system for the city of Providence has been developed. The depth quoted is at the dam, which is 140 feet high on its face. Eventually the water back of that dam will be 85 feet deep, but months are expected to elapse before that comes about. When the gates were closed early last fall and the impounding of water began, it was stated that two years would elapse before the tremendous reservoir covering 100 square miles with its watershed was filled. Nature seems inclined to beat that estimate by many months.

This week end, with Palm Sunday just ahead, will bring home to a great many not usually given to thinking of spiritual things, that the Lenten season is far advanced and entering upon its most solemn and significant period. Next week will be Holy week. Churches in Danielson have special services arranged for this period, culminating in Easter Sunday, with its joyous significance. Practically nothing in the way of public entertainment is planned between now and Easter Monday.

A steam shovel that is in action is making short work of the excavations necessary incident to the plans for enlarging Killingly high school. It is anticipated that the excavating will be completed by the end of the coming week.

From two to three more months will be required before the alterations to the banking home of the Danielson Trust company are completed. The changes underway since early in the year will practically double the banking quarters.

It's hard to please everyone! Now the croakers are telling the world that one will be unable to catch anything but 6 or 7 inch trout in state-leased Snake Meadow brook the coming season. Trout fishermen know better than that.

This week end the body of William Sullivan, who died in Florida will arrive in his home city of Providence. Mrs. Sullivan before her marriage was Miss Lillian Gates of Danielson. They have three children.

The story that Danielson is to have a new hotel will not down, but there is no real evidence of any movement to give this community such a structure.

At Dayville Thursday, painters were engaged with renovation of the pews of St. Joseph's church. The general work of redecorating the interior is nearing completion.

Frank A. Ballerini of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

A retreat for the English-speaking people of St. James' parish opened at the church Thursday evening and will be continued tonight.

If one is not convinced that East Killingly's pleas for a better road between that point and Elmville are not well founded, one might make a trip from Elmville to Killingly Center, by either of two routes just now and have a battle with the mud.

The plants of the Attawaugan company in the northern section of the town continue to operate upon a part time basis.

The body of Mrs. William Sherman, who died in Melrose, Mass., this week will be brought here today for burial in Westfield cemetery. Mrs. Sherman was a resident at Elmville and in the Masshentuck district for many years.

This week spring trade in Danielson has been showing some real impetus. Warmer weather, bright sunshine and advance April showers are playing their part in speeding up business. This additional activity is a welcome change from the quiet of the winter period.

Staking out of the space to be covered by the new wings to be built at Killingly high school has brought home to a great many people for the first time the scope of the enlargement program. Now they can visualize such a wonderfully fine school as this town will next fall.

The second hand automobile market is a place of many surprises these young spring days. One finds he can own a famous make of car for an amazingly small sum, if he happens to hit the right shop. And a car in fairly good condition, too. Owning a car is not a greatp roblem any more, if running it does continue to be.

One who measured the snowfalls of the past winter in Danielson and allowed an extra inch, for the mild and minor falls, says that 42.5 inches of the alleged beautiful found a resting place hereabouts. And some of it remains.

Mrs. C. A. Hamilton and son, John, were in Worcester Thursday visiting with Mr. Hamilton, who recently underwent an operation at a hospital there and is now gradually regaining his strength.

Chief John McFarland was toting around a bunch of keys picked up on the street here Thursday, but up to late afternoon no one had been a-out inquiring for them.

Hopkins, who died 19 years ago, and a daughter of James W. and Rhoda Harden Slocum. She had lived practically all of her life in Foster. Mrs. Hopkins leaves two sons, George L., at whose home she died, and Byron F. Hopkins of North Scituate. Mrs. Hopkins was a native of Scituate.

RESERVES DECISION IN AUTO ACCIDENT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 25—Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in superior court today heard the evidence in the suit of Frederick C. Payne against Oscar F. Arnio to recover $1,500 for injuries sustained in an automobile accident a year and a half ago.

Both parties to the suit live in Killingly and they were on their way home from Providence on a rainy night when the car which was owned and driven by Arnio left the road and crashed into a four-foot stone wall. Payne was seriously injured, his face being badly cut, one eyeball torn loose from the tissues endangering the vision in his lower jawbone was crushed in a little and seven teeth knocked out. It took him nine months to recover sufficiently to go to work again and then at a job which paid him a third less than he received as a house painter, his original trade. It is also claimed that his sight has been permanently impaired and his nervous system is a "wreck."

The plaintiff alleges that the injuries were due to gross negligence on the part of Arnio. The latter admits the injuries and the seriousness of them but denies the charge of carelessness.

In point of interest the case measures up to the others that have been heard during the March term.

The plaintiff's testimony was to the effect that Mr. Arnio had sold a farm for him and on September 17, 1924, in the former's car, they had gone out to look at another farm which might interest the plaintiff. Later in the day they went to Providence and started on their return journey between 7 and 8 o'clock. It was raining and the roads were slippery. Arnio kept increasing the speed and the plaintiff remonstrated, urging him to "slow down" because of weather and road conditions.

A few miles out of Olneyville the accident occurred. Mr. Payne, who showed traces of the suffering that he has been through, told his story well, although his tendency to grow excited was very obvious.

At the conclusion of the testimony both lawyers reviewed the case briefly, agreeing with the court that it was one almost wholly of fact and not of law. Decision was reserved.

The opening meeting of the chamber of commerce will be held next Monday evening, March 29, in Elks hall. Dr. Willard Scott is to be one of the speakers. He has a national reputation, having spoken on platforms with President Coolidge, Ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, Ex-Vice President Marshall, Ex-Secretary of State Bryan, Ex-Secretary of State Hughes, U. S. Senators Pepper, Lenroot, Copeland, Moses, "Pat" Harrison, Edwards, Neely, Johnson and Governors "Al" Smith, Fuller, Peddier, Silzer, Trumbull, Trinkle and many others.

The taxpayers of the city and town of Putnam who have not paid their taxes for the last year will have a lien placed on their property which will be sold to insure collection, or they may be committed to jail until taxes are paid and fees of officials are satisfied. Neither the tax collector nor the sheriff have any option in the matter. It is a state law which they are directed to enforce.

Town Tax Collector Irving H. Miron and Archibald Macdonald, Jr., city tax collector, have given several warrants to Deputy Sheriff Ayer to be served on delinquents. He is directed to collect the tax or levy on the property if payment is not immediately made. The warrant further says:

"In default of payment of said amount you are hereby commanded to levy upon his goods and chattels and dispose of the same as the law directs, and having satisfied such tax and your lawful charges, return the surplus, if any, to him; and, if such goods and chattels shall not be found, you are to levy upon his real estate and sell enough thereof to pay such tax and the costs of levy and give to the purchaser a deed therefor, or to take the body of said delinquent and him commit unto the keeper of the jail of said county, who is commanded to receive and safely keep him until he shall pay said sum, together with your fees, or he be discharged in due course of law."

SHIP WITHOUT A COUNTRY FLIES INTER-ALLIED FLAG

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 25 (AP)—A ship without a country flies in the oil service out of this port and proves a puzzle to harbors of the world.

It is the tanker Niobe, which carries gasoline from San Pedro to Hamburg, Germany. The Niobe was built in Germany during the war and afterward allotted to the United States. While the United States did not accept ownership of the vessel, the shipping board controls it and allotted the tanker to the Standard Oil company. An American crew is carried although the ship has no American papers.

For a flag, the Niobe carries that of the Inter-allied Maritime council.

When people abuse you, suspect yourself; when they praise you, suspect them.

Sore throats need this Double-Treatment

YOUR sore, aching throat probably needs the soothing, healing vapors that arise from Vicks VapoRub when it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime. And Vicks acts two ways at once:

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing;

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain and soreness and thus helps the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

Good for the colds of all the family.

Volstead Declares U. S. Can Never Be Dry

Former Representative Andrew J Volstead, father of the Volstead act, who is in the National Capital conferring with members of the Prohibition unit, declared that this country could never be dry. Mr. Volstead, who is now legal adviser of the Minneapolis Prohibition unit, was called to Washington for conference with Lincoln Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. He told Mr. Andrews that he thought every law was violated and even the prohibition law did not escape. The country in time will be a great deal drier than it is now, but can never attain the stage of dryness some people expect.

COLLECTING FROM EUROPE

When Secretary Mellon spoke in Philadelphia Wednesday evening he dwelt upon the question of debt settlements in the course of his address and said that the criticism of the arrangements which had been made with certain of the European nations was based upon the belief that the settlements effected impose burdens on the taxpayers because of the failure to collect the last cent due us.

What he had reference to was the position that has been taken by certain ones relative to the Belgian and Italian debt agreements. There have been reductions made in the amounts which they will pay under the agreements in comparison with what they actually owe.

In the case of Belgium it was considered necessary that this country should carry out promises made by President Wilson to Belgium. These promises ceded for the reduction agreed upon.

In the case of all the European debtor nations it was set forth that our policy would be to collect only what was within their capacity to pay. That, after a careful study is the reason for the cutting of the Italian debt.

In justifying the action of the debt funding commission of this country, Mr. Mellon says, "I should rather have solvent customers in the future, which permit us to run a solvent business, than insist upon terms of settlement which will again force my customers into bankruptcy. A business man would prefer making $100 in his business than being repaid $5 of a debt. The farmer or the laboring man would rather have a market for our surplus in Europe than save a dollar in federal taxes."

This country has no disposition to cancel the debts. It believes it the best for the debtor nations that they should pay what they can, and yet it does not feel that they should be squeezed for the last penny when it is apparent that conditions argue strongly against it. The debt settlements as arranged are in keeping with the policy under which the commission set to work and they should and it is believed will be ratified.

CONSERVING THE RAINFALL

For a considerable period of time the city of Providence has been doing extensive work in and about Scituate, R. I., for the purpose of increasing its water supply. It will soon be ready to reap the benefit of its large outlay, but it is noted with interest that the water supply board is to place an order for 100,000 pine trees which are to be planted on the Scituate watershed.

This is referred to as an experiment in forestry but in the light of the experience of others there is no reason to look upon it as an experiment. It is a protective measure which will unquestionably disclose large benefits.

The Scituate watershed has been acquired for the protection of the reservoirs. Its use is therefore restricted and it is important that it should be dealt with in such a manner that the best results will be obtained concerning a water supply. It is long since been realized that the denuded hillsides are responsible for the dwindling streams. Instead of sinking into the ground the rainfall is evaporated, whereas with wooded ground the moisture is retained and feeds the springs and brooks that lead into the streams.

Wooded areas about reservoirs are therefore not only advocated but established where necessary. The quick growing pines furnish the desired protection to the land. They conserve the rainfall and let it gradually seep into the brooklets that finally empty into the reservoirs and a larger percentage of the rain that falls upon a watershed is thus actually ponded.

In the building of new reservoirs and the clearing of watersheds it is frequently necessary to remove many of the trees. Extensive growths have to be eliminated because of the flowage and the cleaning of the basin, but for considerable distances along the slopes that empty into the reservoirs, directly or indirectly there is the need of wooded areas. If this does not exist the wisdom of the forestation work that will provide it has long since proven.

UNITING OCEAN AND LAKES

When the all-American canal across New York state was excluded from the river and harbor omnibus bill it was done without prejudice. The belief prevails, and it is believed justly, that this matter ought not to be railroaded through. It has only just been brought to attention. It has its friends and it has its opponents. It has its good points and it has its objectionable features, but there is quite as good reason for giving it careful consideration as there is for such treatment of the St. Lawrence project.

Up to recently the St. Lawrence plan has received the most attention. It will cost much less and it is apparently the one which the states which are seeking this outlet are desirous of getting. Objection is raised to it because it means that the traffic must go through Canada but even with the all-American canal it would be necessary for the shipping to go through Canadian territory while passing through the Welland canal. It would not be, strictly speaking, an all-American route unless another canal to take the place of the Welland was constructed.

For the ship canal across New York it would permit traffic a month longer each year and it would actually place the Atlantic seaboard in closer touch with the lake ports and the states they serve than the St. Lawrence route.

In connection with the advocacy of the respective routes there is one engineer who maintains that both routes should be developed, which adds to the problem involved. It is thus quite evident that there should be a thorough understanding of the merits of the respective propositions before plunging ahead into the uncertain. It is a matter which can and should stand on its own feet. In the interest of a thorough knowledge of the facts that is the logical manner of dealing with it. There should be no attempt to rush it through blindly, or to kill it without a hearing. The action which has been taken should give it the chance which it is entitled to.

HIGHWAY LIGHTS

For the consideration of the city council of Chicago there was presented a proposition to equip all horses with tail lights. Someone quickly amended it by requiring that the same illumination be required of all dogs and cats and the matter was quickly disposed of by adverse vote.

Whether this was intended to apply to horse drawn vehicles doesn't appear quite clear, and yet it would hardly be expected that horses in any great number would be wandering about the streets of Chicago in a way to bother the night traffic of that city.

Asking that horse drawn vehicles be equipped with lights so that other users of the highway, and particularly the fast traveling motor cars, may have a chance to keep clear of such vehicles regardless of whatever direction they might be going is most certainly within the bounds of reason. Quite the same is it that the person riding a bicycle should have a light that will show both to the front and the rear. It is a protection for everyone.

For a team to loom up suddenly in the dark when there is no warning given by means of a light to the driver of a motor car creates a hazard for all concerned which is needless. The horse drawn vehicle is in no danger of failing to see the brilliantly lighted automobile, but the auto driver should get warning of the team ahead in the highway in time for him to avoid striking it or to prevent a mixup through endeavoring to avoid what a light would clearly disclose sufficiently in advance. Even an individual walking along the highways in the dark understands the importance of carrying a light with him.

SAVING FLOOD WATERS

It is at this season of the year that those who are liable to feel the effects take precautions against freshets. Their steps may be sufficient and they may not, but with much ice in the river, much snow on the ground and spring at hand there is certainly good reason for anticipating high water.

High water would create little concern, but the danger of a freshet that would do much damage through inundating large acreages, menacing bridges and entering property is never welcomed. Along the Connecticut and along other nothern rivers the swollen streams in the spring are always closely watched. It has been so for years and it can be expected to continue unless some method of storing up the extra supply of water, or a certain proportion of it for delivery to the streams as wanted can be worked out.

It is in this connection that some states have resorted to the construction of reservoirs for the holding of this surplus water. By them one means of offsetting a drought has been predicted. It is of course no different than the plans at any reservoir for conserving the heavy rainfalls for use when wanted.

The problem of taking care of the flood conditions is by no means a small one. It is a huge engineering proposition to attempt the construction of reservoirs for such purposes and yet it is not difficult to see that it is far preferable that money should be employed for such a purpose than to experience the heavy wastes year after year. The fact is that there is invariably a great demand for water, equivalent to the spring floods, when the summer dry spells come.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The list shows that Pennsylvania doesn lack for republican candidates.

Someone might suggest to Judge Groehl that the insanity plea hasn't been tried yet.

The average auto owner spends $700 a year for his car, it is figured. Are you an average owner?

The man on the corner says: Consistency may be a jewel but it is quite frequently out of style.

The man with the lawn mower is already wondering how much exercise he is going to get this summer.

Is there likely to be a demand for a recount in the poll taken on the question of prohibition and modification?

People are fainting from the heat in Texas, but no such trouble is being experienced in Vermont with its four feet of snow.

The fellow who has ordered his garden seed is having great difficulty in restraining his ambition to get them in the ground.

The scene has shifted; those who were being pulled out of the snowbanks a few weeks ago are now calling for help to get out of the mudholes.

If this country faces starvation 75 years hence, as one professor says, because of inadequate production it is well to know it long enough in advance just to have something to worry about.

THE BORROWED BOWL

"I didn't think I was especially easy to work, sighed Mrs. Simmons' niece. But I guess I am after all."

"Poor tea," said Mrs. Simmons sympathetically. "And tell me what has happened now. Has anybody been telegraphing you to take care of an invalid or have they wished another dog on you?"

"Neither of those things!" said the niece, as she put two lumps of sugar in her tea. "But maybe either would have been better. You see, I don't know exactly what to do with the present situation. I guess I'll have to leave things just as they are and say nothing, seeing I don't know where the flat is or where Belle has gone. You know, when I was married I made a hard and fast rule that I should never borrow or lend, and I have stuck to it."

"Very sensible of you," commented Mrs. Simmons. "I have had dreadful experiences just because I had no such rule and was weak enough to yield when women came to the back door and asked for a half cup of sugar or one egg or something like that. You always lose. The worst was when we were living in a flat and the man across the hall came over with three friends and rang our bell to know if we were home so that they could borrow the piano for the evening."

"There are times when you can't get out of it," declared the niece dolefully. "As when you're visiting and the daughters of the house borrow your party cloak and your slippers and gloves and things, sometimes without asking. Why, actually when I was on my wedding tour I had to keep my trunk locked, at Aunt Maud's because they all seemed to think they could borrow anything, from my slippers to my hats. Even the boys took my scissors, saying they never could find any in the house, and one of their friends took my camera to a picnic and never said a word about having broken it when he brought it back the day we left. But of course Belle did ask me if she could take this, even though she didn't say what she wanted with it."

"You've known Belle all your life," said Mrs. Simmons. "So I should think she'd know that you do not wish to lend things to anybody."

"Well, Belle has been very nice to me," said the niece with a sigh. "And of course I am very fond of her, so when she asked if she could borrow the big orchestral silver punch bowl I hesitated only a minute before I said she might. Of course nobody has punch bowls like that nowadays, and I realized that she would have a lot of trouble getting anything of the sort as nice as that anywhere. Besides, Belle is used to good things and I knew it would be perfectly safe with her.

"The only thing that puzzled me was that I should not be invited if Belle were giving any sort of affair big enough for her to want to use so big a punch bowl. The kind of punch she serves is no more than fancy lemonade, and even with the ice in it the dish was pretty huge unless it was for a regular reception. I reminded her that it had belonged to my forebears and that I was awfully choice of it and she laughed and promised that it would come back to me perfectly safe later on. That was three months ago and I haven't the slightest idea where that heirloom is at this minute."

"Why, you poor child!" cried Mrs. Simmons. "Why don't you call her up?"

"She was at a hotel, but had left," the niece replied. "So I wrote and wrote and telegraphed and sent special delivery letters and everything else and all my messages came back to me unclaimed. Today I heard."

"At last then, you are on its track?"

"I know no more than before," said the niece sadly. "One of my inquiries reached Belle just as she was starting around the world and she wired me that she had rented out her mother's apartment furnished before they left to some nice people who wanted a punch bowl which they didn't have. She borrowed mine to satisfy them and she declared it is perfectly safe, though I notice that she neglected to give me the address of the flat"—Chicago News.
